

Peter's is Setting Joan Adcock Wedding

Peter's Anglican Church was the setting of the wedding on July 25 at 7:30 p.m., when the youngest daughter of R. H. Adcock, exchanged with John James, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Parks.

For the ceremony, performed by Rev. J. S. Twining, the bride chose a floor length gown of white Chantilly lace and net, featuring a fitted bodice with stand-up collar framing a decollete. The bouffant skirt was of Chantilly lace and net panels. Her finger-tip veil of lace edged nylon tulle was held in place by a Juliette cap. A pearl necklace and earrings, gift of the groom, were worn by the bride. A bouquet of American Beauty roses and Stephanolis completed her costume.

SISTER IS ATTENDANT

Mrs. Mary Tomlinson, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and wore a gown of pink eyelet organza with matching cap. She carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations. Mr. Charles Magnor was best man.

At the reception held in the Canadian Legion, 150 guests were received by Mrs. Joe Richards and Mrs. J. Parks. The former wore a mauve nylon dress with a corsage of yellow roses, the latter a navy blue dress with white accessories and a corsage of white and pink carnations.

THREE-TIER CAKE

The bride's table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake which was flanked by white candles and pink and white carnations.

Serviteurs were Mrs. Angelina Skogg and the Misses Ann Stromdahl, Nellie Pavich, Diane Kennedy and Phyllis Tomlinson.

After the reception, the bride and groom left for a motor trip to the interior. The bride wore a grey worsted suit with red accessories and a corsage of red roses. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Parks will take up residence in Prince Rupert.

Depression Hobby Now Big Business For Mrs. Milne

SUMMERLAND, B.C. — Mrs. David Livingstone Milne, 65, who started canning for charity on a little machine fastened to her kitchen table 18 years ago now is owner of a profitable business in this Okanagan Valley centre.

During depression years she canned peaches and sent them to relatives on the prairies and to Summerland Hospital, of which she was a member of the Ladies' Auxiliary.

Soon she was supplying canned peaches, pears, apricots, prunes, carrots, tomatoes and corn and orders came in from all parts of Canada.

To keep pace with the growing demand, her sons, employed in a packing plant, built her a factory in their spare time. In the first year of its operation, she said, "paid off $1,600 owing on the house and bought a refrigerator, an electric washer and a typewriter."

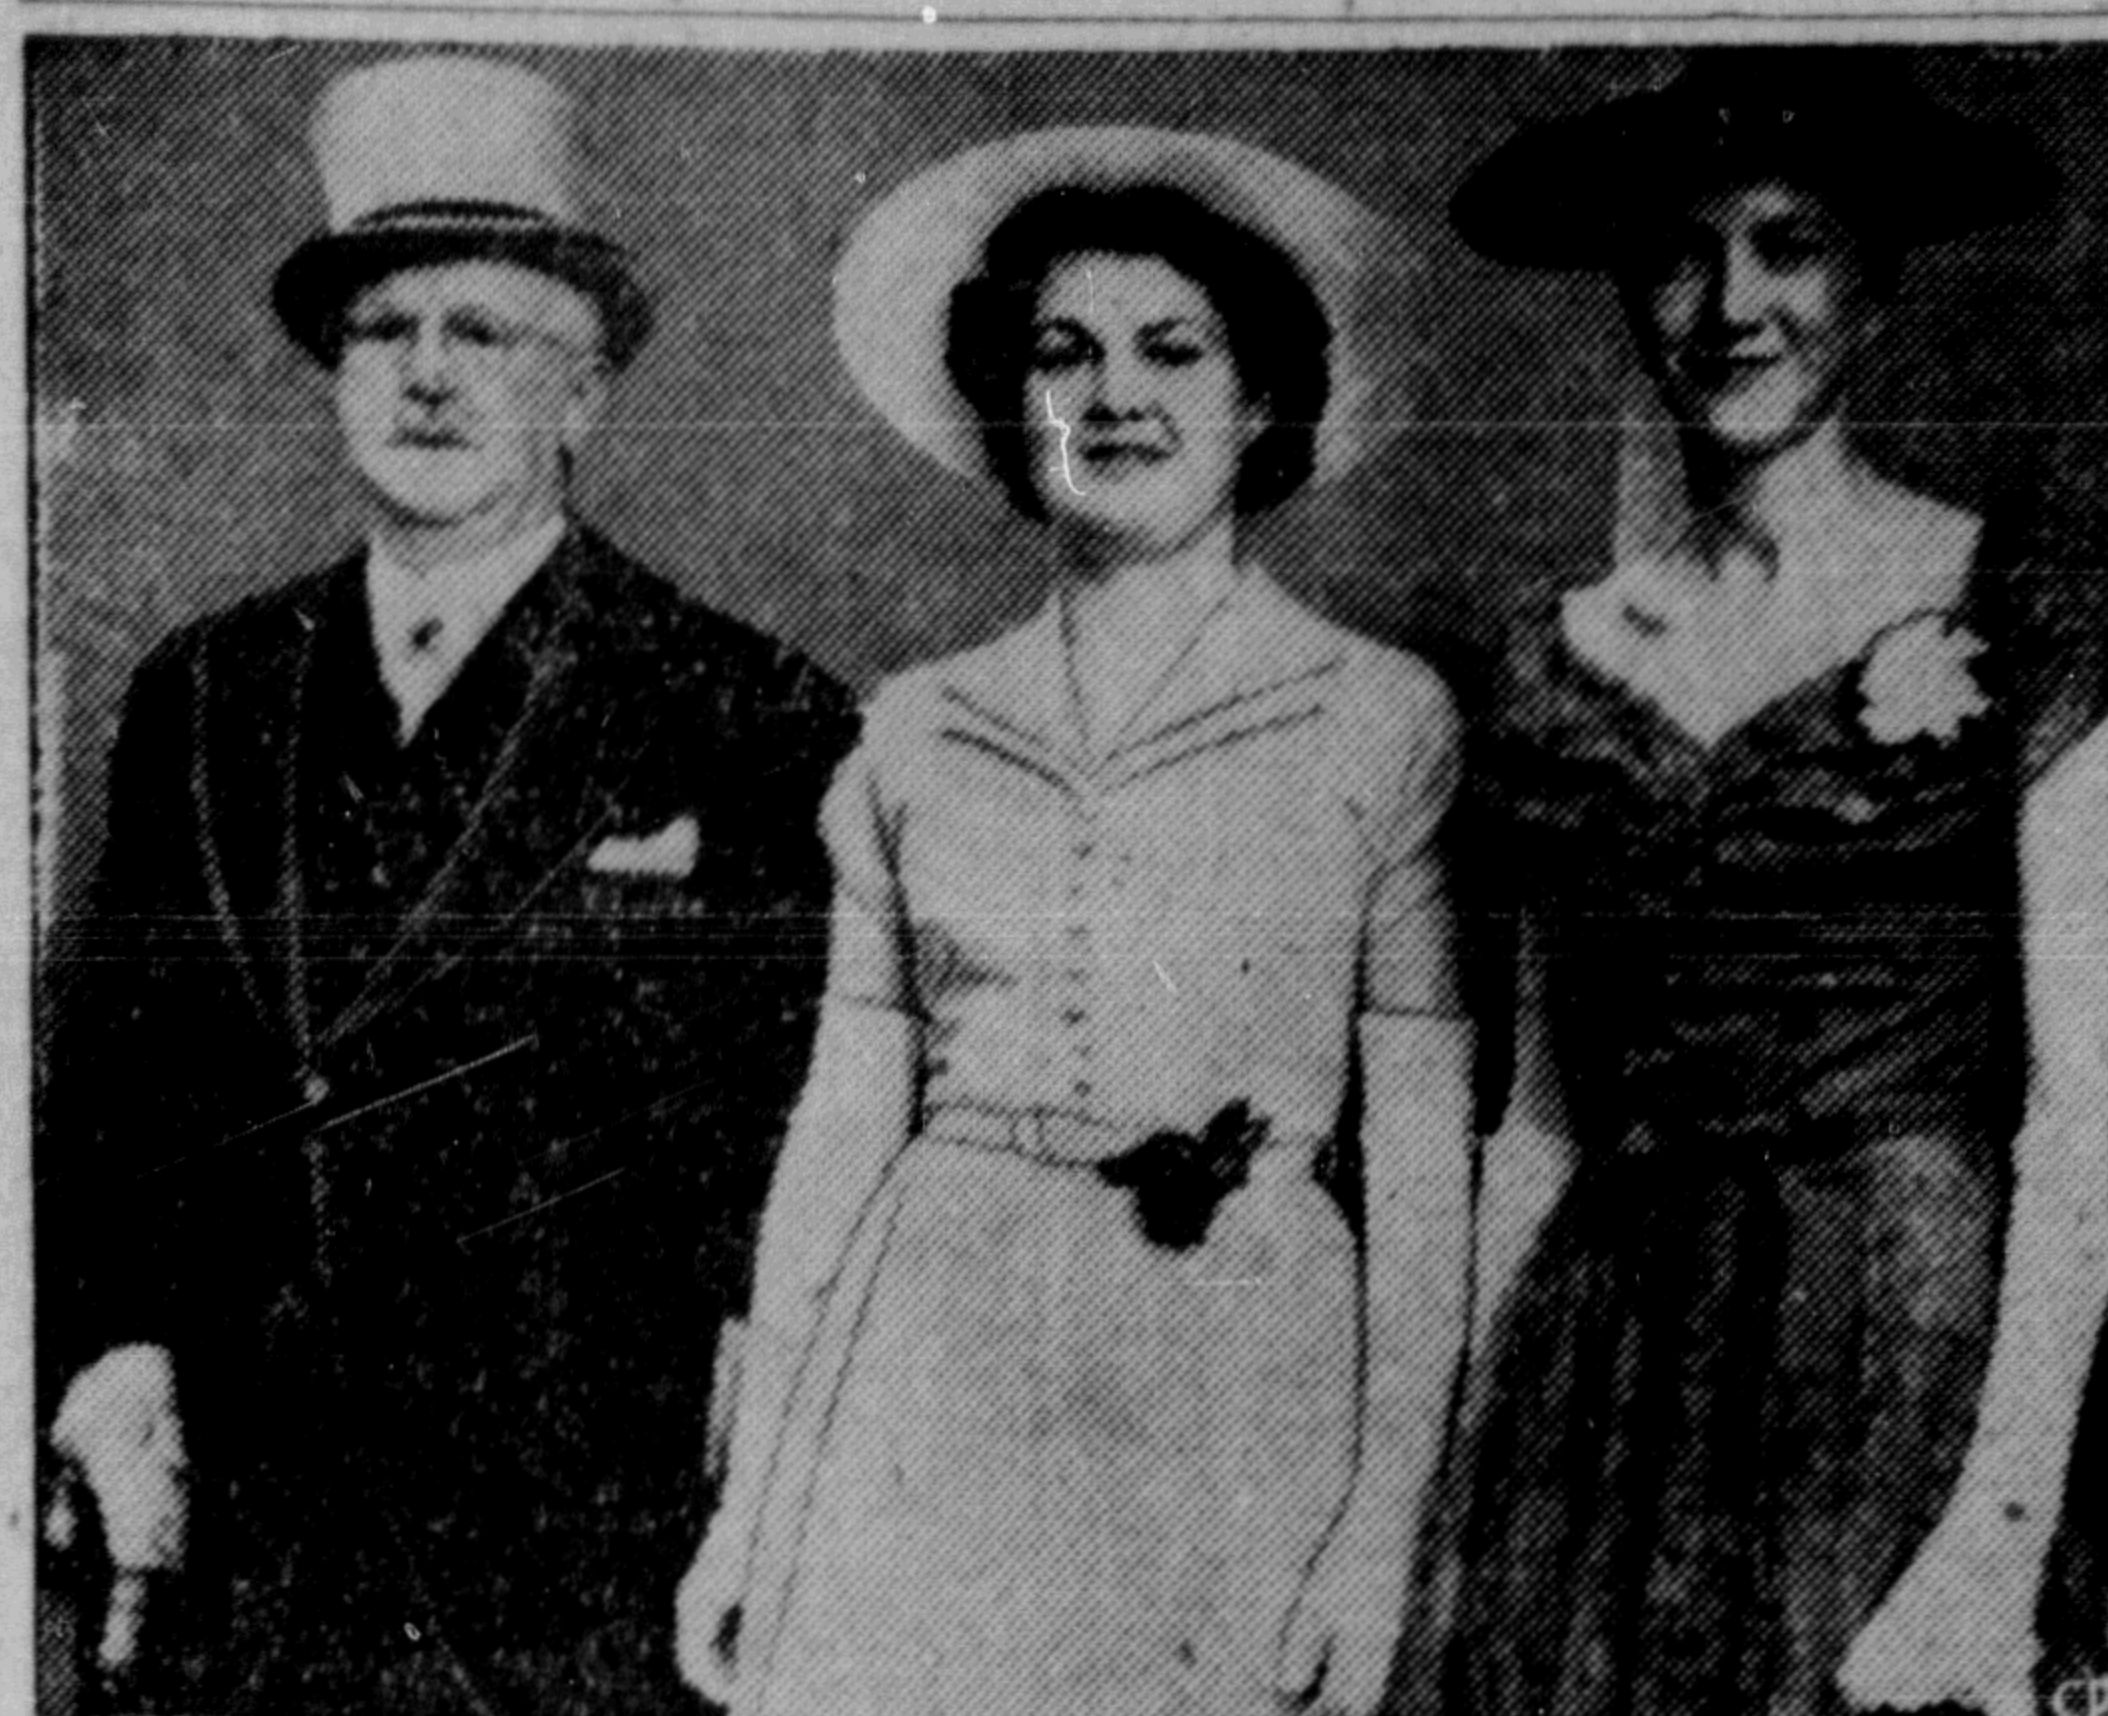

The next year the boys quit the packing house and went to work for their mother; so did Mr. Milne, a science teacher.

Word - of - mouth advertising worked wonders. Soon customers began arriving at the little building with boxes to be filled with Mrs. Milne's preserves and orders came from stores, too. The plant was extended and modernized and at the end of the 1951 packing season Mrs. Milne said she felt she could call herself a success.

Mr., Mrs. Taylor Return From Trip

Mr. and Mrs. James Taylor, Sr., have returned from a three-week holiday in Alberta and Montana. They attended the Calgary Stampede then motored south to Cardston and Glacier National Park.

Motoring back via Edmonton to Bonnyville, Alberta, the couple said beautiful crops were noted all along the way and as there has been lots of rain Alberta should be in for a bumper crop if nothing happens to it.

'Hatless Parade' Worries British Hat Designers

LONDON — The increasing number of distinguished women daily joining the "Hatless Parade" is one more headache for Britain's hat designers.

With the hat trade "a shadow of its pre-war self," manufacturers claim it is bad for trade when such women-in-the-news as Sarah Churchill, the Prime Minister's daughter, arrive in London—hatless.

Add to that such a prominent personality as Queen Mary attending a private showing of "Here's to the Memory," a film scrapbook of the last 50 years—without one of her well-known toques—and film star Ann Todd shopping in London's West End in black suit, pearls and no hat, and it may be admitted manufacturers have something to worry about.

Each summer since the end of the Second World War, more and more well-dressed women have been shedding their hats with their winter woollies. Those who once would not dream of going without a hat, now are constantly seen without one.

Teen-agers follow the lead of such fashion setters as film stars Jean Simmons and Elizabeth Taylor, both of whom like short cuts and no hats. This type of hair-style is perhaps the greatest enemy of hat salesmen. With hair-dressing prices rising and short cuts requiring constant attention, there is little money left for hat-buying, on most teen-age budgets.

Splinter Group Cancels Plans

VANCOUVER — A small group of Social Crediters, who planned to organize a splinter group, has cancelled its plans.

T. G. Birkett of North Vancouver who announced less than two weeks ago he was organizing a group to be called "The Social Credit Yeomanry" independent of the Social Credit League, said today "All plans have been cancelled."

His group of Yeomen was to be a "pseudo-military" organization, "something like Boy Scouts for adults," he explained. "Now I am trying to undo the harm that was done in this way."

He made the announcement from the office of the B.C. Social Credit League.

Mr. Birkett said most of his prospective members of his Yeomanry Corps had been league members and, like himself, had helped the Social Credit campaign in the June election.

Coronation Robes For Next June Already Influence Dame Fashion

By MURIEL PENN LONDON — (Reuters) — Next summer's coronation is already influencing the dictates of dame fashion.

With an eye to the slim evening sheaths which will be worn under gorgeous coronation robes in June, soft brocades are making a comeback.

But the high cost of these luxurious fabrics will probably lead some women at least to resort to what is known as the kirtle. As worn at the last coronation, the kirtle consisted of a straight apron or slip with a wide band of luxurious brocade down the centre-front.

Some of the manufacturers' latest brocade fabrics are expected to figure in the winter collections of London's top dress designers, seen for the first time at the end of this month.

STILL A SECRET

Although what they will show is still secret, indications now are that skirts will be a little longer—though with no drastic change—and waists will continue to be well defined.

Less petticoats will be the order of the day for the winter, although day and cocktail dresses will remain full. The full look will persist with the assistance of linings and stiffened hems for cocktail and dinner wear.

A new permanently-stiff tafeta lining perfected in France will give full skirts the exaggerated weighty look without the actual bulk that was necessary with canvas as a lining.

SILHOUETTE NARROW

The suit silhouette will still be narrow, with jackets buttoned slightly higher and basques not quite so exaggerated, especially at the back.

Coats can be either fitted to the back or loose. Fitted town coats for the fall are nearly all trimmed with fur since this year fur-trimmed garments are taxable at the same rate as an ordinary wool coat.

Loose town coats, on the other hand, have cuffs in long-haired fox, either black or dyed to match the color of the fabric.

These hang straight from the shoulder for daytime and are stiffened slightly to bell out for cocktails and supper.
