ICE PREVENTS ZANNI FLIGHT

Argentinean Airman Will Continue Flight Next Year—Awaits Instructions at Tokio

TOKIO, Nov. 7.—Major Pedro Zanni, the Argentine aviator who announced this week that he had abandoned his proposed attempt to fly over the transpacific air lane from Japan in the approaching winter season, reached his decision when word was received here that the ports of Petropavlovsk and Paramushira were ice-bound. This condition ended the possibility of obtaining ships to lay in supplies along the route. Major Zanni has three plans of action for the future. Subject to approval of a committee of three in Buenos Aires, to which he has cabled, the Argentine aviator would remain in Japan until spring and continue his flight as outlined, or he will proceed to Europe, making a flight across the Atlantic to Buenos Aires, or he will make a flight from New York to Buenos Aires.

Resources Exhausted
The Argentine aviator said he had exhausted every resource in an effort to continue the flight along the original route across the Pacific, but he was regretfully compelled to admit the impossibility of making a successful attempt at this season. Major Zanni was hopeful that the Buenos Aires committee would agree to his plans concerning other routes.

JOSEPH BUSSINGER PREPARING TO SHIP ORE FROM VENUS MINE

Two Car Loads to Go to Trail Smelter as Test of Possibilities

SMITHERS, Nov. 7.—There are prospects of ore shipments being made from the Venus Group this winter.

Joseph Bussinger of Telkwa who has done considerable work on these mineral claims was in town the fore-part of this week and stated that he is making preparations to ship a couple of cars of ore to the smelter at Trail, B.C. He has just finished building a road from the mine to connect up with the Provincial Highway and is getting things in readiness to commence hauling as soon as sleighing comes.

The assay returns of samples taken from the vein on the Venus Group show average values of about $100.00 per ton and Mr. Bussinger is taking out the two cars in order to give the property a test to determine if it can be operated profitably at the present time. This work will be closely followed by other miners and prospectors in the district who have similar holdings and all hope that he will be able to get good returns and continue to ship indefinitely.

URGES DEVELOPMENT OF A CIVIC SPIRIT

L. T. Hopkinson, chairman of the Tariff field commission that is visiting in the city, yesterday told the Rotary club, of attending a Rotary luncheon in Florida where they were putting on a campaign to make the state of Florida the summer playground of the United States. Success followed their efforts because they all pulled together and took pride in the development of their own city.

The people here were the ones who knew their own problems best. He liked to see a people who boasted of the place in which they lived rather than in some other. There were some who climbed the mountain to get a better view of the needs of their home town. This was the sort of civic pride to be admired.

On Wednesday evening members of the local Fisheries Association met the United States field tariff commission at the United States Consulate. Problems of the halibut industry were discussed and certain points of information were tendered the commissioners.

Customs Officers Will Act as Enforcement Officials Under Provisions of Halibut Treaty

Customs officers will act as officers for the enforcement of the halibut close season on the Pacific coast which, under a treaty finally reached between the United States and Canada, will begin on November 16 and end on February 15 announced Jarvis McLeod, local customs collector, on receipt of an official document from Ottawa this morning.

One of the clauses of the regulations received by Mr. McLeod reads as follows:

"As the customs officers are in a much better position than fishery officers to enforce the prohibition, the Department of Customs and Excise, at the request of the Department of Marine and Fisheries, has authorized all customs officers to become officers for the enforcement of the aforesaid provision. Hence, you will exercise very careful supervision over the movement of fishing boats entering any waters under your supervision and take over any halibut on board such vessels and sell it. Fisheries officers are being instructed to co-operate."

Under the close season treaty, fishing other than that for halibut is not prohibited but, should any halibut be taken and retained by Canadian vessels or boats while engaged in other fishing, it must be used by the crew of such boat for food or, immediately after the vessel arrives in port, be handed over to the officers to be disposed of to the highest bidder and the proceeds deposited to the credit of the receiver-general.

EXPLAINS PROVISIONS OF TARIFF COMMISSION

Chairman Says They are Simply Collating Facts on Which Policy Will be Formulated

In his address to the Rotary club at their luncheon yesterday, L. T. Hopkinson of the U.S. Tariff Commission explained that his work was simply the collating of facts on which to base a tariff policy. Under the U.S. Law the tariff was a flexible one and the president was given power after receiving a report from the tariff commission to vary the tariff fifty per cent either by adding to it or reducing it. It was known as the Fordney tariff law. It changed to meet changing conditions.

The problems to be investigated under it were manifestly numerous and especially in an industry such as the one they were now inquiring into. Mr. Hopkinson expressed great appreciation of the assistance given him in the work by those engaged in the fishing industry in Prince Rupert.

SMITHERS MERCHANT LEAVES FOR SEATTLE

Relieves in Interior Centre but Daughters Health Makes Move Necessary

SMITHERS, Nov. 7.—Mrs. and Mrs. I. Anger and their daughter Miss Winnifred left on Wednesday morning for Seattle and intend to make their future home at Renton, a suburb of that city. Mr. Anger has conducted a gents' furnishing and tailor establishment for a number of years in this district but was obliged to sell out and seek a milder climate on account of his daughter's health, which has not been of the best since an attack of ptomaine poison a couple of years ago.

Mr. Anger who was the first merchant tailor to set up in business in the interior, came to Hazelton from Seattle in 1911 with a stock valued at $5,000 and opened up there on May 15 of that year. He also conducted a store in New Hazelton for three years, moving on to Smithers in May, 1920, where he purchased the building known as the Red Front Store on Main Street. This he has now leased, part of the lower floor to the Newbery Bakery and the balance including the upstairs to Shield's Grill. He regrets having to leave Smithers and stated that there has always been a good business here for a tailor.

Several years ago, Mr. Anger purchased a small fruit and poultry farm about three miles from Renton which has since been rented, but he now intends to give this his attention and go in for poultry breeding on a large scale and in addition will also open up a store in the town.
