BIG PAGEANT OF CANADA AT WEMBLEY PARK

Twice a Week Will be Shown Illustrations of Canadian History and Development

PRELIMINARY MEETING

LONDON, March 26.—At British Columbia House, in Regent Street an interested audience listened to J. S. McKinnon, director of the Canadian industrial exhibits at the Empire Exhibition at Wembley, as he explained the place of Canada in the Empire and the part she is playing in the portrayal of our development and importance. Colonel A. Lawn Hamilton, who presided, introduced Frank Lascelles, the organizer of the British Empire pagent.

Mr. Lascelles dwelt on the importance of pageant in relation to Empire. That spectacular effect had been inaugurated by the British Government with the intention that the Dominions should take their part. He had been asked to become the organizer, and he had told the authorities that he could only do so if the Dominions gave him material. The whole spirit of the pageant must come from them if it were to be Canadian. As to the value of such a display, many would be attracted by the beauty and the picturesqueness of Canadian history. Pageants were not Lord Mayors' shows, nor were they processions. Their pageant would be a pointer to the serious work in the Canadian pavilion, and would disclose how much romance there was in the history of Canada. Present -day life in the Dominion would also be displayed, and he thought that section would not only draw all London but practically the whole of England to the exhibit. Everyone of weight in Canadian matters in London was helping. The pageant of Canada would be shown twice per week—on one day there would be the historical aspect and on the other the conditions of present-day life.

Opportunity for All

Mr. McKinnon remarked that the object of Canada in relation to the exhibition was to show to the people of the world that Canada was a good place in which to live, and that every man, woman, and child had an equal opportunity. There was no room, however, for the sluggard. Those able and skilled to work would find full scope. While Canada did not beg anything from this country, she did wish it to be known that, when any movement of population was to take place, there was no better county to which they could move than Canada. At the exhibition they would display their natural resources, the machinery of the city, agriculture, timber, products of the dairy and horticulture, and of water and power. There would be portrayed also their wonderful harbors. They sought to increase the export trade of Canada and the inter-trade of the British Empire, a subject on which he thought there was a lack of knowledge. The exhibition would, he thought, help to place Canada in the proper light. The Canadian building would be of splendid dimensions, and on its sides would be buildings erected by the Canadian Pacific and the Canadian National Railways. The building proper would be divided into two sections. One would show the national resources of the country and the other its industries. In the possession of full loyalty, nothing would stop the progress of the British Empire.

Labor and Preference

Mr. F. C. Wade, K.C., Agent-General for British Columbia, in moving a vote of thanks to Mr. McKinnon, said that he believed the Canadian section would take second place to none. At the moment the fate of the Empire was trembling somewhat on the balance. He asked: Would the Little Englander have his way, or would our statesmen realise the full import of Empire and the extent to which the great Dominions were prepared to give support? Was Great Britain merely to be in the Empire, or was she to be of the Empire, with all portions trading among themselves? How could that be if the centre of all ceased to function as an Empire? As to Imperial Preference, he said that there was not from shore to shore in Canada a man who would not raise both hands for preference in regard to foodstuffs. That would weld the Empire for common good. He was talking to a leading labor M.P. the other day, who stated: "All I can say is that we are not bothering about the fetishes. We do not care what Cobden or others thought a long time ago. All we care for is to try to understand the situation as it is and to apply our brains to a remedy."

MUST TIE UP VICIOUS DOG

Pound Keeper Uses Water Gun In Carrying Out Duties

A VIOLENT DISLIKE

The denial of Tom O'Brien, poundkeeper, that he carried a revolver but the admission that he had been toting a water gun for the past two weeks caused a litter of merriment in the police courth this morning. The point came up while a charge against Henry Smith of keeping a vicious dog was being heard. In giving evidence, Mr. O'Brien, said he had told Mr. Smith's young son that he would have to shoot the dog. The boy replied that Mr. O'Brien could not do so for he had no gun. Thereupon, Mr. O'Brien showed the boy the water gun and said he would shoot the dog with turpentine. The gun was produced in court.

Made Mad Rushes

The charge against Mr. Smith was laid on information of the poundkeeper who gave evidence to the effect that the dog had made mad rushes at him and would have bitten him had he not been on his guard.

A. H. McPherson testified that the dog had threatened him and on one occasion had driven him from Ninth Avenue to his home on Eighth Avenue.

Charles Gustafsen said the dog had barked at him but had not bitten.

Mr. Smith denied that the dog was vicious but admitted the animal had taken a violent dislike to Mr. O'Brien who had knocked him over with a block of wood when he was a pup.

Verdict of Court

Magistrate McClymont ordered that the dog be tied up for a month and assessed costs on the defence. City Solicitor Jones conducted the prosecution and W. E. Fisher appeared for Mr. Smith.

EDMONTON TO COLLECT FEES IN HIGH SCHOOL

EDMONTON, March 26.— The proposal by Dr. William H. Alexander, chairman of the school board, that fees be collected from all high school students was passed by the school board.

Dr. Frank Crang, opposing Dr. Alexander, took the stand that fees should not be levied on high school students.

Dr. Crang said that the poorer citizens would not be able to pay their children's way through the secondary school, and, therefore, children fifteen years and under would be out around the streets wasting their time and acquiring bad habits. He told of his own experiences when he had had to stop going to school as his parents were not able to pay his expenses, and that it was for this reason that he wanted to oppose this motion. He said that he knew what it meant from personal experience to be denied from their education at that age.
