Why Build Up Foreign Ports.

A large portion of the grain raised in Canada is sent to the seaboard by way of United States ports, which it helps to build up at the expense of Canadian. If the grain could be carried that way more cheaply than any other no one could object. No one wants to handicap the producer. The way to build up Canadian ports while at the same time not interfering with the present status of the producer is to make the westbound rates the same as the eastbound, mile for mile. That would tend to send the grain out through Canadian ports.

What people want to know is why grain is forced into foreign ports when there are good Canadian ports that could handle it?

Opposed To War But Like To Fight.

Many of those who are causing disturbances and preventing candidates from putting their views before the people in England and Scotland were opposed to the war. They like to use force to get what they want, but they object to force in the interests of the nation.

Most people are opposed to war and they also are opposed to interrupting meetings and especially at election times when people are anxious to hear both sides of the questions at issue. However, when the nation needs their services they are willing and ready to go and do their duty.

Ontario Decides To Remain Fairly Dry.

Ontario by vote has decided to remain dry or fairly so. It is said that in the cities whiskey is sold in large quantities. However, taken by and large, the province is dry and will remain so for some time to come.

It was expected that the big cities would vote wet. They look across at Montreal and see thousands of people going there to assuage their thirst and they think they see prosperity for themselves if they open up the traffic. The same was prophesied for Prince Rupert when the liquor law was passed, but it has not been anything to notice.

Returning To Two Party System.

It looks as if Britain was about to return to the two party system, only they give them new names. In the old days there was a radical section of the Liberal party that was recruited from the industrial districts. East Bristol, which was reported yesterday as breaking up Liberal meetings, formerly returned a member of the Radical Liberals. Handel Cosham who represented them for many years was in the habit of speaking slightly of the Royal Family and designating Queen Victoria as "The Old Lady of Windsor." He was much like the extreme Labor candidates of today except that he had some money of his own and paid his own election expenses.

Labor Is Taking Place Of Liberals.

Formerly most of the people who now form the Labor support in Britain formerly formed the Liberal support. There is little real change other than a change of name. If the Liberals should be eliminated as a separate entity in the state, many of them will join the Labor party and that will mean a steady down of the Labor groups with the Liberals for ballast. It happened in Australia and other countries. The name given a party does not count much. Already there are many noble lords and other titled gentry campaigning on the Labor side and the number will probably increase if the Labor party is wisely led. If it is not, Liberalism will revive, and again take its place as representing the masses as opposed to the classes.

Not Enough Labor Extremists To Govern.

There are not enough Laborites of the extreme type to govern the country and never will be. Of the very nature of things there cannot be. British people are naturally conservative in their ideas and ideals. They refuse to be led away by every new doctrine, however plausible it may seem. They are governed very largely by the traditions of the past and they can be depended on to be reasonable in the future.

In the past the underdog has had a bad time. Now there is a greater measure of equality and in time, it is to be hoped, people will learn to so administer affairs of state that there will be no really poor and no inordinately rich. To such a condition we all look forward. Most people are workers and strongly object to the barnacles that encumber the ship of state and impede her progress.

The Man in the Moon

SAYS:-

THESE joyful dull days—
Just listen to the patter
Of the rain on the walks.
Yet what does it matter?

For we snuggle round the fire
Or hug the radiator,
As we delve into a book
Or chatter to the mater.

Ah, the dull, dull days!
Ah, the dear, dull days!
Rupert drinks a lot of joy
So everyone says?

IT takes a lot of sand to get rich on the Massett peninsula.

WHEN Dr. McMillan had a few minutes off from talking to Jack Barnsley in Prince Rupert last fall, he conversed with an Eskimo named Took-A Suk. Yet they have no liquor vendor in the North.

The flappers in the north are away out of date. While the young Eskimo ladies smoke, they do not bob their hair.

GONE is the sunshine of summer
Gone is the blazing sunset
But still we have here with us
The delightful days that are wet.

WHEN you can't talk of nothing else, there is always the weather or the movies.

ANIMOSITY, bellicosity and verbosity cause most of the trouble in this dear old troublesome world of ours.

IN Britain they have a democracy all right, all right, I should say.

THE lady gave a rug to a tramp and told him to beat it. He did and then he had to interview the magistrate the following morning. Never take a woman at her word.

THE kind of friend I like is the one who wonders how I manage to keep out of jail.

IT is just possible, if the election reports are true, that the people of Great Britain are not yet fit for self government. Suppose we send missionaries across the pond to convert them from their evil ways.

THE man who curses the town is the man who is slipping.
Watch him.

Ten Years Ago

in Prince Rupert

October 25, 1914.

William McAdam, proprietor of the Edmonton Capital and one of the best known newspapermen of Western Canada, returned to Edmonton this morning after having spent a few days in the city to personally size up the local situation.

Between $100 and $200 was realized at the patriotic ball held last evening in St. Andrew's Hall by the Daughters of the Empire.
The patronesses were Mrs. F.
McB. Young, Mrs. J. Fred Ritchie,
Mrs. H. E. Tremayne, Mrs. Alfred Garss, Mrs. J. H. McMullin and Mrs. S. M. Newton. The stewards

were Hugh Dunn, Adair Garss and Alex Young.

The city council last night endorsed a resolution from Peach-land municipality urging that the provincial government control city sinking funds so as to avert possible financial difficulties.
Those approving the resolution were Ald. Montgomery, Ald. Maitland, Ald. Kerr, Ald. McClymont and Ald. Basso-Bert. Those against it were Ald. Morrison, Ald. Dybhavn and Ald. Morrissey.

MILLION WIRELESS SETS

LONDON, Oct. 25.—There will be about one million wireless receiving sets licensed in the United Kingdom by the end of October, says a Post Office official. At the end of August 945,- 000 licenses had been issued, compared with 118,000 at the same time last year.

ARCHBISHOP DU VERNET.

Ever he strove to draw more near to God,
Knowledge he sought, and perfect faith
Guiding his patient footsteps, till he trod
On Holy ground, and neared the Sacred Veil.

Now the Most High hath granted his desire,
For, "Come," He saith, "and sit at My right hand,
"Humbly to serve thy God didst thou aspire,
"High Priest of God be thou for evermore."

RATEPAYERS' ASSOCIATION
VIEWS ON TAX SALE

Editor Daily News.

May I respectfully ask for your indulgence in setting out the position of the Ratepayers' Association towards the proposed sale of City Tax Sale lots.

It has been stated that the change in the motion before the City Council last Monday was made with a view of meeting the wishes of our Association, in spite of the fact that our letter to the Council was filed without being read.

The proposed change does not meet the wishes of the Ratepayers' Association. The Association is of the opinion that the City Council could hardly have chosen a more inopportune time for such sale, and for that reason are opposed to it.

A sale at the present time will not affect the financial conditions of the city as far as this year is concerned. Consequently there is nothing to be gained by rushing a sale at this time, just immediately after the ordinary annual tax sale.

and Spokane on a business trip.
