

Fish Business

From Monday to Friday 612,000 pounds of halibut has been marketed on the Fish Exchange.

Canadians were high at 17.9c and 8.5c and low at 14.3c and 7c.

Americans were high at 19c and 8.5c and low at 14.5c and 6c.

Arrivals were American—Tom and Al, Ominay, Sunset, Majestic, Volunteer, Alaska, Rainier, Resolute, Democrat, Venus, Teddy J., Eastern Point.

Canadian—Dolphin, Atli, Livingstone, Ringleader, Annie May, Marimac, Carruthers, P. Doreen, Ethel June, H. & R., Rosespit, and Point May.

Diving, Dredging, Lightering, Coaling Ships, Heavy Lifting, General Salvage Work, Pumping a Speciality.

VANCOUVER DREDGING AND SALVAGE CO. LTD. COW BAY.

Phones: Green 259. Green 487.

Fish Business

From Monday to Friday 612,000 pounds of halibut has been marketed on the Fish Exchange.

Canadians were high at 17.9c and 8.5c and low at 14.3c and 7c.

Americans were high at 19c and 8.5c and low at 14.5c and 6c.

Arrivals were American—Tom and Al, Ominay, Sunset, Majestic, Volunteer, Alaska, Rainier, Resolute, Democrat, Venus, Teddy J., Eastern Point.

Canadian—Dolphin, Atli, Livingstone, Ringleader, Annie May, Marimac, Carruthers, P. Doreen, Ethel June, H. & R., Rosespit, and Point May.

Diving, Dredging, Lightering, Coaling Ships, Heavy Lifting, General Salvage Work, Pumping a Speciality.

VANCOUVER DREDGING AND SALVAGE CO. LTD. COW BAY.

Phones: Green 259. Green 487.

"Scientific" Fish Culture

Those who have the future of the fish industry at heart are looking forward with keen anticipation to the time when the Biological station will be established here.

The northern source of half-halibut has been cut off and it has been found increasingly difficult for both the Canadian and American schooners fishing on the deep sea banks to obtain the necessary "toothsome morsels" with which to lure the wily halibut on to the hook.

With the frozen bait exhausted many of the schooners are fishing for their own while on the banks. The weather has been adverse, to remunerative fishing.

Salmon Fishing Over

The white fleet of salmon trollers, which had been fishing for the past summer months in distant waters, have practically returned to port to a boat.

The fishing off the Queen Charlotte coast returned early in the week and the Hippo Island boats are all moored at their home stations.

One of the liveliest of the morning after broke black and moist and as Bob turned out of his warm bed the murky atmosphere hit him straight between the eyes and he had a presentiment that all was not well at the temporary fish station. After hurriedly dressing, and grabbing a light breakfast of stuffed doughnut, Bob made haste to the trout pails. What met his startled gaze drove him back against the wall in terror, while cold shivers ran up and down his walking stick. There in the pails lay his beautiful trout as dead as a wax image in Madame Tussauds. The trout evidently found the encircling kindness too great a shock to their nervous systems.

To quote the classic phrase of the medical profession "the operation was a complete success but the patients died." Nothing daunted, however, Bob finally did secure an additional catch of small trout and the prowess of his manly skill and as a token of his determination small live trout are gaily sporting themselves in a beautiful tank at the exhibition.

The object was to improve the living conditions of the various varieties of trout found in local waters. Having been commissioned to procure live trout for an exhibition display Bob waited for the wettest day of the month and then, armed with gum boots and untried fishing nets, proceeded to fill the order. Sifting on the banks of Shawatlans Creek, while Jup. Pluvus wept down his manly neck and into his high boots, Bab started in to lure the wily youngsters with all his art and skill. While the rain poured down his back and the peppy fish dashed past his net Bob meditated upon the hardships of the life of a trout and their uncomfortable living quarters.

As the turbulent waters of the creek surged past him his sympathies went out to the speckled buties as they constantly strove to hold their own in the impetuous flood. As he rescued them one by one from the torrent and placed them in the selected bucket he murmured to himself "There, there, little ones, rest in peace."

In due time our hero arrived at the temporary biological station with the two pailsful of material for experimental work.

Much Sympathy

As Bob gazed upon the fish swimming serenely in the placid security of the pail his meditations took the form of speech, "Why should these small fish be compelled to continually fight the roaring waters and thus wear out their beautiful fins? Tonight for once in their young lives they shall enjoy a good night's repose. No flowing waters shall disturb their slumbers. This water they are now in, taken from their home pond, shall support them through the long dark watches of the night." Thereupon he left them to their dreams.

Tragedy Awaits

Sad to relate, however, the morning after broke black and moist and as Bob turned out of his warm bed the murky atmosphere hit him straight between the eyes and he had a presentiment that all was not well at the temporary fish station. After hurriedly dressing, and grabbing a light breakfast of stuffed doughnut, Bob made haste to the trout pails. What met his startled gaze drove him back against the wall in terror, while cold shivers ran up and down his walking stick. There in the pails lay his beautiful trout as dead as a wax image in Madame Tussauds. The trout evidently found the encircling kindness too great a shock to their nervous systems.

To quote the classic phrase of the medical profession "the operation was a complete success but the patients died."

Nothing daunted, however, Bob finally did secure an additional catch of small trout and the prowess of his manly skill and as a token of his determination small live trout are gaily sporting themselves in a beautiful tank at the exhibition.

The object was to improve the living conditions of the various varieties of trout found in local waters. Having been commissioned to procure live trout for an exhibition display Bob waited for the wettest day of the month and then, armed with gum boots and untried fishing nets, proceeded to fill the order. Sifting on the banks of Shawatlans Creek, while Jup. Pluvus wept down his manly neck and into his high boots, Bab started in to lure the wily youngsters with all his art and skill. While the rain poured down his back and the peppy fish dashed past his net Bob meditated upon the hardships of the life of a trout and their uncomfortable living quarters.

As the turbulent waters of the creek surged past him his sympathies went out to the speckled buties as they constantly strove to hold their own in the impetuous flood. As he rescued them one by one from the torrent and placed them in the selected bucket he murmured to himself "There, there, little ones, rest in peace."

In due time our hero arrived at the temporary biological station with the two pailsful of material for experimental work.

The object was to improve the living conditions of the various varieties of trout found in local waters. Having been commissioned to procure live trout for an exhibition display Bob waited for the wettest day of the month and then, armed with gum boots and untried fishing nets, proceeded to fill the order. Sifting on the banks of Shawatlans Creek, while Jup. Pluvus wept down his manly neck and into his high boots, Bab started in to lure the wily youngsters with all his art and skill. While the rain poured down his back and the peppy fish dashed past his net Bob meditated upon the hardships of the life of a trout and their uncomfortable living quarters.

As the turbulent waters of the creek surged past him his sympathies went out to the speckled buties as they constantly strove to hold their own in the impetuous flood. As he rescued them one by one from the torrent and placed them in the selected bucket he murmured to himself "There, there, little ones, rest in peace."

In due time our hero arrived at the temporary biological station with the two pailsful of material for experimental work.

The object was to improve the living conditions of the various varieties of trout found in local waters. Having been commissioned to procure live trout for an exhibition display Bob waited for the wettest day of the month and then, armed with gum boots and untried fishing nets, proceeded to fill the order. Sifting on the banks of Shawatlans Creek, while Jup. Pluvus wept down his manly neck and into his high boots, Bab started in to lure the wily youngsters with all his art and skill. While the rain poured down his back and the peppy fish dashed past his net Bob meditated upon the hardships of the life of a trout and their uncomfortable living quarters.

As the turbulent waters of the creek surged past him his sympathies went out to the speckled buties as they constantly strove to hold their own in the impetuous flood. As he rescued them one by one from the torrent and placed them in the selected bucket he murmured to himself "There, there, little ones, rest in peace."

In due time our hero arrived at the temporary biological station with the two pailsful of material for experimental work.

The object was to improve the living conditions of the various varieties of trout found in local waters. Having been commissioned to procure live trout for an exhibition display Bob waited for the wettest day of the month and then, armed with gum boots and untried fishing nets, proceeded to fill the order. Sifting on the banks of Shawatlans Creek, while Jup. Pluvus wept down his manly neck and into his high boots, Bab started in to lure the wily youngsters with all his art and skill. While the rain poured down his back and the peppy fish dashed past his net Bob meditated upon the hardships of the life of a trout and their uncomfortable living quarters.

As the turbulent waters of the creek surged past him his sympathies went out to the speckled buties as they constantly strove to hold their own in the impetuous flood. As he rescued them one by one from the torrent and placed them in the selected bucket he murmured to himself "There, there, little ones, rest in peace."

In due time our hero arrived at the temporary biological station with the two pailsful of material for experimental work.

The object was to improve the living conditions of the various varieties of trout found in local waters. Having been commissioned to procure live trout for an exhibition display Bob waited for the wettest day of the month and then, armed with gum boots and untried fishing nets, proceeded to fill the order. Sifting on the banks of Shawatlans Creek, while Jup. Pluvus wept down his manly neck and into his high boots, Bab started in to lure the wily youngsters with all his art and skill. While the rain poured down his back and the peppy fish dashed past his net Bob meditated upon the hardships of the life of a trout and their uncomfortable living quarters.

As the turbulent waters of the creek surged past him his sympathies went out to the speckled buties as they constantly strove to hold their own in the impetuous flood. As he rescued them one by one from the torrent and placed them in the selected bucket he murmured to himself "There, there, little ones, rest in peace."

In due time our hero arrived at the temporary biological station with the two pailsful of material for experimental work.

The object was to improve the living conditions of the various varieties of trout found in local waters. Having been commissioned to procure live trout for an exhibition display Bob waited for the wettest day of the month and then, armed with gum boots and untried fishing nets, proceeded to fill the order. Sifting on the banks of Shawatlans Creek, while Jup. Pluvus wept down his manly neck and into his high boots, Bab started in to lure the wily youngsters with all his art and skill. While the rain poured down his back and the peppy fish dashed past his net Bob meditated upon the hardships of the life of a trout and their uncomfortable living quarters.

As the turbulent waters of the creek surged past him his sympathies went out to the speckled buties as they constantly strove to hold their own in the impetuous flood. As he rescued them one by one from the torrent and placed them in the selected bucket he murmured to himself "There, there, little ones, rest in peace."

In due time our hero arrived at the temporary biological station with the two pailsful of material for experimental work.

The object was to improve the living conditions of the various varieties of trout found in local waters. Having been commissioned to procure live trout for an exhibition display Bob waited for the wettest day of the month and then, armed with gum boots and untried fishing nets, proceeded to fill the order. Sifting on the banks of Shawatlans Creek, while Jup. Pluvus wept down his manly neck and into his high boots, Bab started in to lure the wily youngsters with all his art and skill. While the rain poured down his back and the peppy fish dashed past his net Bob meditated upon the hardships of the life of a trout and their uncomfortable living quarters.

As the turbulent waters of the creek surged past him his sympathies went out to the speckled buties as they constantly strove to hold their own in the impetuous flood. As he rescued them one by one from the torrent and placed them in the selected bucket he murmured to himself "There, there, little ones, rest in peace."

In due time our hero arrived at the temporary biological station with the two pailsful of material for experimental work.

The object was to improve the living conditions of the various varieties of trout found in local waters. Having been commissioned to procure live trout for an exhibition display Bob waited for the wettest day of the month and then, armed with gum boots and untried fishing nets, proceeded to fill the order. Sifting on the banks of Shawatlans Creek, while Jup. Pluvus wept down his manly neck and into his high boots, Bab started in to lure the wily youngsters with all his art and skill. While the rain poured down his back and the peppy fish dashed past his net Bob meditated upon the hardships of the life of a trout and their uncomfortable living quarters.

As the turbulent waters of the creek surged past him his sympathies went out to the speckled buties as they constantly strove to hold their own in the impetuous flood. As he rescued them one by one from the torrent and placed them in the selected bucket he murmured to himself "There, there, little ones, rest in peace."

In due time our hero arrived at the temporary biological station with the two pailsful of material for experimental work.

The object was to improve the living conditions of the various varieties of trout found in local waters. Having been commissioned to procure live trout for an exhibition display Bob waited for the wettest day of the month and then, armed with gum boots and untried fishing nets, proceeded to fill the order. Sifting on the banks of Shawatlans Creek, while Jup. Pluvus wept down his manly neck and into his high boots, Bab started in to lure the wily youngsters with all his art and skill. While the rain poured down his back and the peppy fish dashed past his net Bob meditated upon the hardships of the life of a trout and their uncomfortable living quarters.

As the turbulent waters of the creek surged past him his sympathies went out to the speckled buties as they constantly strove to hold their own in the impetuous flood. As he rescued them one by one from the torrent and placed them in the selected bucket he murmured to himself "There, there, little ones, rest in peace."

In due time our hero arrived at the temporary biological station with the two pailsful of material for experimental work.

The object was to improve the living conditions of the various varieties of trout found in local waters. Having been commissioned to procure live trout for an exhibition display Bob waited for the wettest day of the month and then, armed with gum boots and untried fishing nets, proceeded to fill the order. Sifting on the banks of Shawatlans Creek, while Jup. Pluvus wept down his manly neck and into his high boots, Bab started in to lure the wily youngsters with all his art and skill. While the rain poured down his back and the peppy fish dashed past his net Bob meditated upon the hardships of the life of a trout and their uncomfortable living quarters.

As the turbulent waters of the creek surged past him his sympathies went out to the speckled buties as they constantly strove to hold their own in the impetuous flood. As he rescued them one by one from the torrent and placed them in the selected bucket he murmured to himself "There, there, little ones, rest in peace."

In due time our hero arrived at the temporary biological station with the two pailsful of material for experimental work.

The object was to improve the living conditions of the various varieties of trout found in local waters. Having been commissioned to procure live trout for an exhibition display Bob waited for the wettest day of the month and then, armed with gum boots and untried fishing nets, proceeded to fill the order. Sifting on the banks of Shawatlans Creek, while Jup. Pluvus wept down his manly neck and into his high boots, Bab started in to lure the wily youngsters with all his art and skill. While the rain poured down his back and the peppy fish dashed past his net Bob meditated upon the hardships of the life of a trout and their uncomfortable living quarters.

As the turbulent waters of the creek surged past him his sympathies went out to the speckled buties as they constantly strove to hold their own in the impetuous flood. As he rescued them one by one from the torrent and placed them in the selected bucket he murmured to himself "There, there, little ones, rest in peace."

In due time our hero arrived at the temporary biological station with the two pailsful of material for experimental work.

The object was to improve the living conditions of the various varieties of trout found in local waters. Having been commissioned to procure live trout for an exhibition display Bob waited for the wettest day of the month and then, armed with gum boots and untried fishing nets, proceeded to fill the order. Sifting on the banks of Shawatlans Creek, while Jup. Pluvus wept down his manly neck and into his high boots, Bab started in to lure the wily youngsters with all his art and skill. While the rain poured down his back and the peppy fish dashed past his net Bob meditated upon the hardships of the life of a trout and their uncomfortable living quarters.

As the turbulent waters of the creek surged past him his sympathies went out to the speckled buties as they constantly strove to hold their own in the impetuous flood. As he rescued them one by one from the torrent and placed them in the selected bucket he murmured to himself "There, there, little ones, rest in peace."

In due time our hero arrived at the temporary biological station with the two pailsful of material for experimental work.

The object was to improve the living conditions of the various varieties of trout found in local waters. Having been commissioned to procure live trout for an exhibition display Bob waited for the wettest day of the month and then, armed with gum boots and untried fishing nets, proceeded to fill the order. Sifting on the banks of Shawatlans Creek, while Jup. Pluvus wept down his manly neck and into his high boots, Bab started in to lure the wily youngsters with all his art and skill. While the rain poured down his back and the peppy fish dashed past his net Bob meditated upon the hardships of the life of a trout and their uncomfortable living quarters.

As the turbulent waters of the creek surged past him his sympathies went out to the speckled buties as they constantly strove to hold their own in the impetuous flood. As he rescued them one by one from the torrent and placed them in the selected bucket he murmured to himself "There, there, little ones, rest in peace."

In due time our hero arrived at the temporary biological station with the two pailsful of material for experimental work.

The object was to improve the living conditions of the various varieties of trout found in local waters. Having been commissioned to procure live trout for an exhibition display Bob waited for the wettest day of the month and then, armed with gum boots and untried fishing nets, proceeded to fill the order. Sifting on the banks of Shawatlans Creek, while Jup. Pluvus wept down his manly neck and into his</p