Need Of Getting Wider Outlook.

When we read about the communists in London objecting years ago at the time when Santa to Labor ministers wearing court dress, we are reminded that Claus was interred. we are influenced by such small things as dress and that we take too much stock in the small things of life and not enough in the WHAT I like is the kind of larger things. If a person walks down town in this place wearing a suit he knows that I know that he is of flannels or a golfing suit he is the object of remark. That is lying in order to save my feelbecause flannels and golf clothes are not the usual thing to wear ings. on the streets here. If a person walks down Granville Street in Vancouver wearing a suit of overalls in the middle of the after- FOR real unadulterated enternoon he is the object of notice even among the crowds that pass tainment the radio has a long and repass there. We are much like sheep. We want to do as way to go to catch up with the the others do, even if doing that thing is wrong.

The group represented by the communists in London are apt to sneer at everything that is common to some other groups. SILENCE may be golden, but We all lack the wider outlook which will allow any man to do as girls with golden hair are not he likes as long as he does not injure or needlessly annoy his by any means silent. neighbors.

The tendency of the day is toward more individuality and THOSE who start work Monless influence from the mass, and yet we are a long way from day morning with that tired feelfreedom. Anyone wishing to go to church on a hot Sunday could ing after the strenuous exercise not do better than wear a suit of light flannels. Women wear of the day of rest will feel comlight clothes yet men feel they have to struggle into heavy gar- forted to know that the tired ments that attract the sun's glare and envelop themselves in feeling is just a state of mind. ancomfortable vests. Happily there are some who break away from the traditions of the coterie and attire themselves as they wish. In doing so, however, they are often made to feel that being wicked is that the wicked they are singular and that their attitude is more or less resented people cannot enjoy the thrill by the rest of the community.

People Here Are Beauty Callous.

When there is a gaudy sunset here, everybody raves about his Sunday outing is all dressed it. The colors are striking and attract the multitude. It must be up. admitted that they are beautiful beyond compare. What we fail to recognize, however, is the more common beauties of water' and cloud and forest that present themselves every day. The we were all clams and did not ! official photographer for the Thiepval party says we are beauty have to pay taxes. But then eallous. We see so much of it that we do not realize it is there. It no longer affects us. Perhaps we are.

What Are We Doing To Help The Fair?

Everyone knows that the exhibition board committees are HUGE REVENUE working hard to make the annual fall fair better than usual and that they have met with unusual success in connection with the display of minerals that will be here, but it is the intention now to draw attention to the fact that everyone can do something to make the event a big one. It is the co-operative effort of the whole community that counts.

There are people with gardens who can put in one or more entries in garden produce. Too much trouble? If everyone said that, there would be no fair. If we get the idea of trying to make the exhibit a representative one, we shall all enjoy going to see it.

Take flowers as an instance. The exhibit of flowers has not been up to the mark for several seasons. It has not been representative of the city. A great many people grow flowers and grow them well. Yet the exhibit is small. This year we suggest that those who have flowers get a little of the sporting instinct shown by the British and American airmen who were here and put in their exhibits for competition. If there is but one exhibit from a garden it is worth putting in. The prize is a secondary consideration.

We Like To Beat Each Other In Business.

We like to beat each other in business. We try to make our own particular business the best possible. We are anxious to serve the community in which we live and do it in the best 526,000 income tax was paid by possible manner. That is the spirit that builds up a community and that makes for success. So there should be a spirit of emulation at the exhibition. We must do the best we can and if we are beaten we can try again next year. It is community work that has made other places succeed. What about Prince Rupert?
