Usk Development Will Benefit District.

The resumption of mining and milling operations at Usk will make that a busy place once again and, if the project for a pulp mill as announced yesterday, goes through it will become one of the most important places along the line of the Canadian National Railways between here and Edmonton. People who have interests at Usk, in view of recent developments, are very hopeful of the future. They say that Usk is the logical place for a pulp and paper mill.

White Prince Rupert people would like to see, such a plant here, the next best thing will be to have one as close as Usk. The city will benefit considerably from it. Business will be increased generally and the railway will get more goods to haul.

It is stated by recent arrivals from the Islands that a pulp mill is being planned for Buckley Bay but, at the time of writing, it was impossible to get anything definite on this.

Peculiarity Of Human Nature.

Human nature and the power of the big whip were amply demonstrated in the course of the Democratic presidential nomination balloting which ended yesterday at New York. After fighting bitterly for days and developing factional feeling that equalled if not exceeded the heat of the ultimate battle between Democrats and Republicans, in a very short time, after the movement in that direction started, things were smoothed over and everybody rushed to make the choice unanimous. Davis did not, of course, figure in the heat of the battle that waged for nearly ten days and nobody was surprised at the outcome. One cannot help but wonder, however, why the party managers could not have brought about an agreement sooner than they did. The effect on the body politic at large must have been anything but beneficial to the interests of the party concerned. However, it is an American faculty and, in a lesser degree Canadian, to be able to bury feelings rapidly and work up enthusiasm in another direction.

Chances Of Settlement In Britain Are Good.

Prospects for a settlement of the reparations question in Europe look better now than they have since the end of the war and the signing of the Treaty of Versailles. Germany seems to be favorable to accepting the terms of the Dawes' report and yesterday the welcome news came from the mouth of Premier Macdonald, following his conference with Premier Heriott, that "full and successful accord" had been reached between France and Great Britain. Italy, Belgium and the other less important Allied powers may be expected to fall in line and in any case they have not been delaying the settlement of late for the chief differences have lain between Britain and France. Subject of course to the proposals of the premiers being ratified by the representatives of the people, it really looks as if a solution was to be reached out of an exceedingly vexed problem of long standing.

FINEST SOFTWOOD HERE

BRITISH COLUMBIA POSSESSES TIMBER WITH ALL THE MOST DESIRABLE QUALITIES

Marketing the Product on Competitive Basis is Industry's Big Job

Soft wood lumber is one of the world's greatest necessities. Of all the standing timber on earth only one-third is softwood but the demand for softwood is four times as great as that for hardwood.

Softwood lumber is a highly competitive commodity. The demand for it regulates its selling value. That is to say, it is the consumer and not the manufacturer who really fixes the price list. This is especially true of the buyer overseas.

Market extension work is one of the busiest branches of the British Columbia lumber industry but British Columbia is fortunate indeed in possessing the world's finest softwoods which makes selling easier if the competition can be met.

These are the principal species of this province:

Douglas Fir, the hardest, largest, strongest and healthiest of all the great softwoods.

Western Hemlock, the younger brother of Douglas Fir and its growing rival.

Western Red Cedar, called the "tree of life," on account of its remarkable powers of resistance to weather and decay.

Sitka Spruce, the wonderful airplane spruce, the most valuable softwood in existence.

Western White Pine, B.C. Larch, Engelmann Spruce, Yellow Pine, unique products of the B.C. mountain lumber industry all owning unique properties.

The forest trees of British Columbia possess individually and collectively all the most sought for qualities that softwoods can lay claim to.

This series of articles communicated by the Timber Industries Council of British Columbia.

The Man in the Moon SAYS--

It maybe that some women can be read like a book but they can't be shut up the same way.

"NO more shall I hear the loving footsteps of my dear husband as he ventures up the front door steps," sighed the loving spouse. Upon enquiry being made as to the cause of so much despondency it was learned that the hero of the tale of woe had purchased rubber soles.

TO make a pound of butter go a long way in the home. Just drop it on the kitchen floor and leave it there to roam.

MANY a woman spoils her painting gift by being a little too heavy with the red.

WHAT has become of the garden enthusiast who used to talk about his fragrant onions?

IF the alarm clock did the work instead of the waking up stunt it would be more worth the price.

"OH father I hear a horrible noise."

"Oh say what it may be?"

"It's your mother amusing the company, son."

"With a song called 'The Rosary.'"

"IS you gwine to pay me dat dollah you owes me?" asked a darkie of his friend. "I ain't sayin' as I ain't." "I ain't askin' you is you ain't Ise askin' you ain't you is," replied the black money lender.

FINE YACHT VISITS PORT

Hal Roach, Movie Director, and Party Were Here Over-Night

The palatial American yacht Gypsy, Capt. Dickason, owned by Hal Roach, the well known motion picture producer of Culver City near Los Angeles, put into port at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon and moored at the Prince Rupert Boathouse dock. On board the yacht, which is making a leisurely tour of the Pacific coast, were Mr. and Mrs. Hal Roach, Mr. and Mrs. D. Whitney and J. Amiston. The Gypsy called at Seattle, Vancouver, Butedale and Swanson Bay on her way up the coast. Considerable wet weather was met with on the trip although no particularly rough seas were encountered. Mr. and Mrs. Roach and party are on their way to northern Alaskan points fishing, hunting, taking pictures, etc., at whatever points take their fancy. All the travelling is being done in the daytime in order that the scenery may be taken in.

The Yacht

The yacht is a masterpiece of comfort and elegance. Her dimensions are 88 feet long by 16 foot beam and she is powered with a 140 horse power Atlas-Imperial full diesel engine, has a normal speed of ten knots per hour, and carries a crew of seven including the captain, pilot and engineer. The owner's cabin, which is beautifully furnished in old rose, is situated in the mid-portion of the vessel, while the visitors quarters, furnished in yellow and gold, are situated in the stern. The dining saloon is on the upper deck and is the acme of perfection and comfort as far as utilization of space is concerned. A radio apparatus is carried in a cupboard with sounding horn attachment and attachments for connecting to the after deck for entertainment and dancing purposes. The yacht was
