WESTHOLME THEATRE

Wednesday and Thursday, 7 and 9 p.m.

"The Stranger"

Adapted from the well-known novel by John Galsworthy, noted British dramatist. The heart-appealing story of a loveable, old derelict, who shaped the destinies of a beautiful girl of the London streets, a young society wastrel and a great man of England. The backbone of any picture is the story—here's a story with the strength of Gibraltar. A more engrossing plot has never been invented, told as only a genius can tell it. Scenes laid in London. Dramatic Old Bailey trial and prison episode with real local color. Richard Dix, Betty Compson, Lewis Stone, Tully Marshall, Frank Nelson, Mary Jane Irving, and great cast.

JUDGE TELLS ABOUT DOGS

Urges Better Accommodation Here and Gives Hints to Owners of Canines

Prior to leaving for the south Stanley Dorrell, of Vancouver, judge of the dogs at the local fair, and a prominent dog fancier well known throughout the Dominion, stated that the local show was very representative of the canine world but considered that by enlarging the accommodation for the housing of the dogs at the exhibition building, and thereby making it more convenient for exhibitors that a great deal more interest both locally and in the surrounding country could be fostered. Mr. Dorrell was of the opinion that if the dog housing were increased it would be possible to get at least thirty entries from Vancouver, and said he had noticed some splendid specimens of dogs on the city streets which would doubtless have been exhibited if the convenience of exhibitors was studied more. Owing to the fact of a sudden call south Mr. Dorrell was unable to deliver his lecture yesterday afternoon.

Care of Dogs

In speaking of dogs and dog keeping Mr. Dorrell said that the first success for the show bench was housing. Good roomy kennels were necessary, the roomier the better. All breeds could be kept out of doors with success with the exception of the "toy" class. All outdoor kennels should be erected with a south or southwest aspect. The best kennels are those with concrete floors with covered in runs and sleeping quarters with no draughts and above all of a dry nature. A wooden floor absorbs moisture and needs constant disinfection. Good ventilation is indispensible. Dogs can stand cold but draughts and damp are fatal. No kennel should be less in diameter than the measurement of a dog. The kennel should be large enough for the dog to lie down in without touching the sides, and be at least twice the dog's height. Railed in runs are the best. The floor of the kennel should be sloping to allow for drainage. Dogs are taught show manners when there are a number kept together. Like humans, they enjoy society. Regarding bedding Mr. Dorrell says that nothing beats clean wheat straw. If sawdust is put on the floor it is liable to get into the dog's food, sometimes causing disastrous results.

Feeding

Feeding is a most important matter. The less cooking in the kennel the better. The staple food for all dogs should be sound wholesome dog biscuits which contain many elements of nutrition for the carnivorous animal, varied by raw meat. Puppies should be fed three times a day from their leaving their dam up to 7 or 8 months old. A varied diet of porridge and milk, brown bread soaked in milk and later sheeps' head broth. At four months dog biscuits broken up should be the omrning meal, large bones and dry dog biscuits should be the morning meal, their teeth which at this period are troublesome to them. The meat given to pups should be minced, fresh and lean. The more a dog's diet is varied the better he will thrive. Hot food should never be given to dogs. In summer boiled rice should be one of the main foods.

Exercise

Exercise is essential. A common defect in show dogs is flat, open and thin feet the result in most cases of lack of exercise. Hard roads are the best for a dog's exercise which improves the feet and develops the whole frame and keeps him in good health. Most of the complaints in dogs are due to the lack of exercise. When dogs get wet they should be dried before being put into kennels.
