With the possible exception of the Senior League game between the Colts and Elks, the opening matches of the basketball season on Friday night were quite up to expectations. The Maple Leafs and Gil's put up a real keen tussle in the Ladies' League in spite of the good start the former got in the first half. Future matches between these two live organizations will be looked forward to. In the Intermediate League, the Colts were value for their victory over the Grotto but the latter showed promise of proving serious contenders as the season advances. Perhaps, the Colts were a little disappointing in the Intermediate League but they were faced with a pretty formidable aggregation representing the Elks. The former will likely improve in team work as the season goes on and the latter do not need to plume themselves over much for the Sons of Canada may be expected to prove as tough customers in the future as they have consistently been in the past.

Tonight's basketball matches will be just as attractive as those on Friday night when the Elks' Home was filled to capacity. To start with the Maple Leafs and Gil's are coming up again in the Ladies' League. The latter gave the former something of a shock with their come-back in the second half of the first game. The tables may be turned this time. Contrary statements notwithstanding, the Leafs will have to give all they have this season to hold the Benson Cup. Their opponents are a likely looking bunch and have at least two stars of former years in their ranks—namely Caroline Mitchell and Leona Parker. In the Intermediate League, the Regiment will try out conclusions in their opening game with the Colts. They will have all they can handle. The Sons of Canada will play their opener of the season with the Colts who will have to bolster up the team that was so decisively beaten by the Elks on Friday.

Vancouver Paper Draws Attention to Wild Stories in Connection With Janet Smith Case

In its issue of Monday the Vancouver Star has the following editorial article on its front page:

"Inspector Owen of the provincial police denounces those who, over their tea cups, bandy about lightly, the names of others, whom they suspect, in connection with the death of Janet K. Smith.

His rebuke may be merited. Trial by tea table probably antedates trial by jury, for which it is a poor and cruel substitute. But it will never be cured by the ban or the curse of police officers. It can be largely prevented by their efficiency.

Tea table thrives where there is inertia and ineptness in administering the law. There were both in the unfortunate case cited.

It is reduced to a minimum, when, by vigor, impartiality, and intelligence officers of the law inspire public confidence in both their ability and their single mindedness.

It was thus that the Northwest mounted Police on the plains, and Chief Justice Begbie in the turbulent mining camps of Cariboo, by dealing swift and evenhanded justice when the law was broken, left no ground for innuendo and little for speculation.

tion. When this paper demanded a sleepless search for the murderer of Janet Smith, it invoked the most effective means of stilling the tongues of slander. When the police, by their zeal, capture the criminal or establish his identity, the voice of suspicion will be silenced.

The remedy for the evil of which Inspector Owens complains, lies largely in the hands of the police. It consists, not in denouncing gossips, but in robbing them of their occupation.
