

"Child's Eyelids Inflamed. Stuck Together and Bled"

Mr. E. P. Kimball, Entwhistle, Alta., writes: "Our little girl from birth was troubled with inflamed eyelids and in spite of several remedies, grew worse until at the age of sixteen months her eyes could not be opened after sleep without bleeding, a waxy discharge sticking the lids together and adhering with great tenacity. The child's grandmothers were consulted by mail, and both responded with a little sample box of Dr. Chase's Ointment. These were used as directed, and lasted until we could obtain a further supply from Edmonton. Improvement was very marked from the first application. The waxy discharge was easier removed and did not reappear. Inflammation subsided and has not returned."

SYNOPSIS OF LAND ACT AMENDMENTS

PRE-EMPTIONS

Unreserved, surveyed lands may be pre-empted by subjects over 18 years of age, by aliens on declaring intention to become British subjects, conditional residence, occupation, or improvement for agricultural purposes. Information regarding regulations regarding pre-emption is in Bulletin No. 1, Land Series, "How to Pre-empt Land," copies of which can be obtained free of charge from the Department of Lands, Victoria, B.C., or to any Government Agent.

Pre-emption will be granted covering land suitable for agricultural purposes, and which is not timberland, carrying over 8,000 board feet per acre west of the Coast Range and 100 feet per acre east of that range.

Applications for pre-emption are addressed to the Land Commissioner of the Land Recording Division in which the land applied for is situated, and are made on printed forms, copies of which can be obtained from the Land Commissioner. Pre-emption must be occupied for agricultural purposes, minimum value of $10 per acre, including value of cultivating at least five acres before a Crown Grant can be made.

For more detailed information see Bulletin "How to Pre-empt Land."

LITTLE BABY PEGGY IN THE FAMILY SECRET

Wonderful Baby Actress to be Seen Here at Mid-Week Showing

Little Baby Peggy never knew her father. She only knew that her mother was sad most of the time; and that her grandfather was cross, and said she was "always in the way."

She wanted to play with the happy children of the neighborhood, the poor little ones who could get dirty and whose parents were always eager to greet them with broad, round smiles. One day she ran off and got lost. A dirty, hungry looking young fellow picked her up and brought her to the station house, leaving her in the kindly arms of the law.

Naturally, the child forgot about her rescuer until one midnight when in the country, she hears a disturbing noise from the vicinity of the ground floor. Without disturbing her mother she crept out of bed, and cautiously walked into the drawing room.

To her surprise, a man was bending over the contents of the family safe. He dropped his mask in surprise. Immediately she recognized him as the "kind man who picked her up when she was oh, so tired."

He tried to tell her that he would not take her things—when an automatic barked.—The baby's mother dashed downstairs; her grandfather likewise entered.

It's a love story.

SINNERS IN SILK IS REJUVENATION STORY

Man is Given Youth by Treatment of Monkey Gland Order and Gives Way to Jazz Craze

The action of "Sinners in Silk" takes place in and around New York, particularly the deck and swimming pool of an ocean liner, a country house in the exclusive Westchester district, a fashionable apartment on Park Avenue, a magnificent villa located on the roof of a down-town skyscraper.

The story is of a man broken in health and past middle age, who returns to America after an absence of twenty years. He meets on shipboard, during a festive swimming party in the ship's swimming pool, a very beautiful and a very modern young lady, to whom he is attracted. He is travelling with a distinguished physician, a disciple of Dr. Steinhach, the Viennese specialist, who tempts him to undergo a rejuvenation treatment which will restore his youth.

God of Jazz

"You will find your country altered since last you were here," the doctor tells him. "A new and terrible generation has been reared. Its god is jazz; its slogan speed; Love is free to-day, free for the taking."

Merrill yields to the temptation, undergoes the treatment and twenty years are lifted from his life. He immediately enters the gayest set of young people and becomes the sponsor of a succession of "wild" parties. And he does not fail to get himself talked about in scandalous gossip. After a series of stirring episodes and intrigues Merrill all but succeeds in taking the girl whom he met on ship board and the one girl he really desires, away from the young man who truly loves her.

But in the end he steps aside in the young man's favor and resumes his former and milder ways of life. He has found that there is no free love; that one always must pay for love, sometimes with sacrifice, sometimes with self-respect, sometimes even with one's heart's blood.

His Own Son

It also develops that the young man he wished to cheat of the girl, is his own son, whom he had not seen since early childhood, when he deserted his wife and the boy's mother. The young fellow has a letter from Merrill from his mother in which is stated that if the father thinks himself worthy, he is to acknowledge his son. This is what makes him to give up the unnatural life of gaiety.

FORTUNES ARE FOUNDED ON SMALL CASH SAVINGS

It's not what you make it's what you save that counts. It is a recognized fact that a business conducted on a cash basis can be operated much more economically than one conducted on a credit basis. However, when there is no inducement to pay cash, why do so? More and more the world over the cash system is coming into use. As a result of our adv. of the past week we found that given the proper inducement the people of Prince Rupert, too, are willing to pay cash. Have you investigated our proposition, if not why not? The proof of the pudding is in the eating thereof. F. W. MOERSCH, Grocer, Phone 13.

LILY OF THE DUST IS WEEK END PICTURE AT THE WESTHOLME THEATRE

"Lily of the Dust," coming to the Westholme at the week end, is a production bound to satisfy the most finicky picture fan. Pola Negri is the star. Every time people come to the conclusion that she has just about reached the heights of characterization she comes along in a new picture to surprise them with something new.

"Lily of the Dust" was adapted by Paul Bern from a novel by Hermann Sudermann and the play by Edward Sheldon. Pola has the role of Lily, a poor but very beautiful girl, whose fascination for men is a curse to her. In love with one man, she is forced by circumstances to marry another, only to learn that marriage without love is most unhappy. Men are attracted to her, and she finds herself being pushed along the easiest way that eventually leads to destruction. Fate takes pity upon her, and in the end she finds happiness.

Is your wife wiser than you?

IF YOU read only the stock and sporting pages, and your wife is like other women, she is wiser than you. She reads the shopping news.

She likes to hear you jingle money in your pockets. She likes to stretch money to the limit, so she won't have to ask for more. She likes to shop strategically. Know what she does.

Comfortably at home in a cushiony armchair, she scans advertising columns. She compares, judges and selects the goods she desires; maps her route; with least effort and minimum time, goes direct to the planned store and buys.

She obtains what she wants at the lowest price it is offered. She is certain of full satisfaction, for she knows advertised goods live up to their claims. She saves time and steps, and returns sufficiently alert to enjoy new advertisements—and to prepare you an appetizing dinner.

These advertisements are written for your benefit too. Read them. Help her help you save.

WHAT FUR ARE YOU BUYING?

Cat Skin Changed to Half a Dozen Different Names by Dyeing and Treatment

RABBIT IS POPULAR

Oh, where, oh, where has my pussy-eat gone? Oh, where, oh, where can she be? Will her name be ermine or pahlmi or chevre, When she is returned to me?

Then again, pussys name may have been changed to chatigre, barondukie or any of a number of others by the time she reappears among old acquaintances. And not only her name, but her appearance will be transformed so completely that smart indeed will be the person who can recognize her.

No game warden has announced an official open season on cats, alley, house or Persian, yet at a fur sale in the east it frankly was admitted that forty thousand cats had been killed for their pelts. And that was for one wholesale house.

Many Processes

A style authority says: "Anything that can be done to hair nowadays can be done to fur." Can—and is. Dyeing, bleaching, permanent waving, clipping, any and every process to which hair can be subjected has become common in the fur industry. The result is, the fur market is flooded with remarkable products influenced, if not actually manufactured, by chemical reactions. With this development, the fur and advertising trades are co-operating to keep fur advertising fully trustworthy.

So with but a few unauthorized exceptions, the prospective fur buyer is made cognizant of the nature of the merchandise he is inspecting. Not only cat fur, but that of other more or less lowly animals, is treated by one or another process and rechristened. Thus, dyed rabbit becomes bay seal, French seal, Laskin seal, sealine, near or northern seal. Dyed opossum becomes stone marten; dyed muskrat, Hudson seal; Jap mink or Jap weasel, Jap Lilinsky; dyed marmot, marmink.

Summer Ermine

Not only is fraud eliminated as far as possible, but by improving and beautifying such pelts, furs that otherwise would be unavailable except for the favored few, are placed within the reach of limited purses. Summer ermine is an example. As its name would indicate, summer ermine—the real thing — was obtainable only at a certain season of the year. Being very rare, it, therefore, was very expensive. Soon, however, it was discovered that cat fur could be bleached and dyed until a very pretty imitation resulted.
