

Mix Mustard Yourself

After mixing in cold water, it takes just ten minutes to liberate from dry mustard the essential oils which give the full rich piquant flavour, and which so greatly aid digestion and assimilation of foods. Unless you mix your own mustard you miss the best part of the flavour and benefit. Have your mustard always fresh.

DR. WRINCH WAS CHIEF SPEAKER

Candidate Addressed Large Meet-at Terrace: Oliver's Return Essential

TERRACE, June 6.—Political feeling is beginning to run high and there was a large turnout to welcome Dr. Wrinch and Hon. A. M. Manson. Dr. Bleeker was in the chair and introduced the speaker in a few well-chosen words.

Dr. Wrinch, Liberal candidate for this district, spoke first. He has never been a party man as he pointed out, and is only standing for the Liberal party now, because from an impartial point of view he believes it to be essential for the best interests of the country that the Liberal party be returned to power. He refuses, however, to be tied absolutely to the party. If elected he will work impartially for the good of the whole.

Improved Finances

The first general point he dealt with was the state of the finances of the province, which, he claims, are greatly improved, reading letters from a Toronto firm of brokers to the Bowser & Oliver administration respectively. Then he explained clearly the sinking fund and the various items which compose the debt, many of which are definite assets. He touched on the better administration of the Oliver Government, illustrating it in regard to the road work. The roads were not laid out scientifically under the Bowser administration and the location of them changed by each new road superintendent. The roads which have not been kept up, which are referred to by the opposing parties as these duplicate strips, The actual roads in use have increased from, roughly speaking, 1200 to 1600 miles under the Oliver administration.

Social Legislation

Then he dealt with the social legislation in which as a doctor and working for the public welfare, he was most interested, dwelling especially upon the Mother's pension and Workman's Compensation acts. He closed with a strong appeal that the Oliver Government be returned to power.

Hon. A. M. Manson

Mr. Manson gave a powerful address traversing the whole gamut of legislation and administration and showing where the province had benefited from Liberal administration as against any other that had been in power.

CHARLES M. HARRISON IS AGAIN ON COAST

Visits Victoria and Says is Trying to Induce Hebrideans to Come to Province

Urge That They Back This Port and Prove Wisdom of Sir Wilfrid Laurier

T. Ross Mackay, Provincial Party candidate, has sent the following letter to La Presse, the Montreal newspaper:

When the first proposal was made for continuing the C.P.R. across the continent to the Pacific, strenuous opposition was entered against the proposal by the then Liberal opposition, the prophecy being made by the Hon. Edward Blake that never would such a foolish line become sufficiently profitable to pay for the axle grease that would be required in hauling freight across the impossible barriers of the Rocky Mountains. This opposition was of no avail. In the year 1881 the financial affairs of the C.P.R. had become so serious that an urgent appeal was made to the House of Commons for financial assistance. It was pointed out at the time that a disaster second only to the South Sea Bubble would be precipitated unless the Government came to the assistance of the C.P.R. Assistance was given, and in May of the following year the first train pulled into Vancouver on the Pacific Coast.

Few Had Faith

"With the completion of the road and the inauguration of a train and freight service the real struggle of the Western division of the C.P.R. and the struggle of the City of Vancouver began. Few had faith in the city—the location was considered impossible; the climate was bad; the rain was unusually wet; and all the business of the Province at that time was centred in the city of Victoria. The C.P.R., however, went ahead, assuming that the road would become prosperous and its terminus would become a real city. Passenger boats were established to China and Japan; working arrangements were made with a line running to New Zealand and Australia; the coastal fleet of John Irving was purchased. This solution of the transportation problem soon had the effect of slowly moving the wholesale houses from Victoria to Vancouver and attracting foreign trade through the infant port.

Greatest Statesman

"In 1896 Canada's greatest statesman came into power and he, realizing the mistake that his predecessors had made, not only discontinued the knocking of his predecessors but boosted for the railway and boosted for its terminal city. Slowly the conflict between the city and the C.P.R. ended—cordial relations were established and the city started to grow. The Liberal government aided its growth in every possible way by harbor development and reasonable aids to navigation.

Greater Country

"Sir Wilfrid Laurier, however, was convinced that the C.P.R. did not traverse the best part of British Columbia. He had a vision of an even greater country running parallel with the C.P.R., several hundred miles to the North. That his vision was correct is evidenced by the copper of Anyox, the gold of Premier, the paper of Ocean Falls, the spruce of Graham Island, the halibut of the Northern Pacific, the salmon of the Nass and Skeena, the untouched anthracite coal of the Groundhog, and many other natural resources as great or greater than those already mentioned, but whose greatness is as yet unheralded to a waiting world. Enough, however, is known of our great Northern and Central British Columbia, with its farming and grazing lands, to justify the conclusion of Sir Wilfrid that this country should be given a railway service. Sir Wilfrid however has gone to the Great Beyond and his successor in office unfortunately fails to grasp the magnificence and greatness of our part of the province. He evidently has decided to wash his hands of the whole affair and with that end in view has appointed a railway man of unquestioned ability, but like many humans no doubt susceptible to the influence of the big crowd. So that today the terminus of the Grand Trunk Pacific, instead of being at Prince Rupert as originally intended by Sir Wilfrid, is to all intents and purposes at Vancouver. Many refer to the line into Prince Rupert merely as a branch line.

Appeal to East

"Vancouver City today is a great and wonderful port. It is often referred to as a monument to the prophetic vision and good judgment of the late Sir John A. Macdonald. I appeal to the French and other Canadians of the east who, like myself, were admirers of our great departed statesman, to assist in giving to the City of Prince Rupert the terminal facilities, the trans-Pacific fleet, the Coastal boats, the elevators, and all the other equipment incidental to the development of a great port that has made Vancouver what it has become. If this is done our city in the north will become just as great and prosperous as that of the C.P.R. terminus and the name of Sir Wilfrid will live revered and honored instead of labelled as a branch line."

Just at the present he is inducing Hebrideans to make their homes in this province.

Mr. Harrison says that the conditions in the Old Land are improving. The government is reducing the taxation in some lines and the number that are seeking aid from the government is constantly decreasing.
