Senate Annuls Action Of Commons.

The House of Commons spent a good deal of time discussing and deciding to pass two bills recently, both of which the Senate has defeated. This is simply one of many cases where the second chamber has proved to be little more than an interference with the rights of the people to pass what legislation it may think fit.

Members of the Senate are mostly old men whose usefulness has passed and who represent a past generation in their ideas and ideals. To have the Legislation of the country controlled dustry entails a big initial outby such a body does not speak well for the intelligence of the people of Canada, who are willing to stand for the system. Until the people of Canada express their views plainly on the mat ter, evidently nothing will be done toward a change.

Borrowing Money For The Dominion.

This autumn the Dominion Government will have to borrow $300,000,000 to retire maturing war bonds and for other purposes and financial people in the East are discussing how this money should be raised. On several occasions the Government has appealed to the people of the Dominion for money for such purposes with very good results and today the people of Canada own a large quantity of Dominion Government bonds on which they draw interest.

The objection to this plan of financing is that when people invest in Government bonds they cannot at the same time use their money for developing the industries of the country. The result has been that while Canadians have been investing in Government securities, Americans have been coming here and developing the natural resources and today people from the U.S. own or control most of the big industries in this country.

An effort is being made now to get the minister of finance to borrow the three hundred million outside Canada and thus release Canadian money for purely Canadian development purposes.

Will Canadians Develop Industries.

Even if borrowing is done outside Canada, will Canadians tie. develop the industries? It is claimed by many that they will not and that if they do not invest their cash in Government securities they will invest in the United States or Great Britain. The whole question is an interesting one and no one seems to be well informed in regard to the matter. The banks find that if the people put their money into bonds, the deposits in the savings fish on one drift. department are less and there is less cash to use for loans. If it were possible to depend on the opinion of experts we should do that, but the difficulty is that most of the experts are biased becaused they are financially interested in the outcome.

In the meantime the minister of finance is sitting tight and . saying he will raise the money where he can get it cheapest, which, after all is the best policy.
