WIFE USURPED THE FUNCTIONS OF SHERIFF

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—John F. Kelley was sheriff of Suffolk County from 1920 to 1922 but his wife usurped his functions so frequently that he had to dismiss her as matron of the jail. The ex-sheriff gave this information in an answer filed in a separation suit brought by his wife in the Supreme Court in Brooklyn. Mrs. Kelley in her suit had said that she found it necessary on several occasions to lock her husband in a room in the jail at times when he had been drinking. It was in her official position as jail matron, she set forth, that she imprisoned the sheriff when she alleged were frequent occasions.

The Man in the Moon SAYS:

IF the city authorities had stuck to the good old tanglefoot as prescribed at Kalamazoo instead of covering the streets with tar in their efforts to alleviate the house-fly menace it might have been better appreciated by furious housewives.

SILENCE is golden. That is why some people are always in debt.

THE tar baby has come home to roost, as Bastus says.

IF you go to the United States you have to learn the meaning of the expression "gubernatorial primary." It means something the same as in this country when we say "machine politics."

SOME people take vacations and others make motorboat trips.

ONCE upon a time there was a small boy who turned up his nose at pie and declared apples were fit only for pigs to eat, but that was away back in the millenium. IF you wish to make your mark,

Cross the street,
If you'd see the radio spark,
Cross the street,
When you've done that go on home,
You'll get cracked across the dome,
So you never more will roam,
If you cross the street.

STATES ASKING BETTER RATES

Canadian Railways Give Better Deal to Farmers Than American Says Washington

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—(By Canadian Press).—The La Follette leaders have determined, among other things, to force to the front in the coming presidential campaign the issue of high freight rates and the question of a sweeping revision or repeal of the Cummins-Esch law, which is a large part of the law governing the railroads.

They have come to this conclusion for a variety of reasons but the particular thing which has prompted it is the recent decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission refusing a reduction of rates to the farmers on grain, grain products and hay. This action of the commission, which was by a bare majority, with five of the eleven members dissenting, has disappointed and angered the farmers in the grain and hay states. The situation is therefore ripe for an attack on the pending railroad law.

Study Canadian System
In this connection, with the railroad issue being forced to the front, it is interesting to know that increasing attention is being given in Washington and in the country generally to the workings of the Canadian government-owned railroads. Various members of Congress are studying the Canadian railroad system and seeing how it compares with the United States system. Farmers' organizations are keenly interested because of the fact that the Canadian roads allow rates more favorable to agriculture than the roads in the U.S.

Make Comparisons
Senator Cummins, former chairman of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, is one of those who has undertaken a study of the Canadian roads. Comparisons of Canadian and American railroad policies are likely to be frequent in House and Senate whenever revision of the railroad law here is taken up in earnest. The believers in government ownership here, not to mention opponents of that policy, are narrowly watching the affairs of the Canadian roads and how government ownership succeeds. In the present perturbed state of public thought on the railroad question in this country, it is apparent that if the Canadian roads forge ahead under the control of the government, a strong impetus will be given to government ownership here.

TERRACE NOTES

Dr. Phye and his brother of Connecticut who visited this part of the country some years ago, were in town on Monday and Tuesday of last week and remarked on the wonderful development of the country.

Mrs. Leon Werko went to Smithers on Thursday returning on Saturday.

MECHANICAL DOG THAT ANSWERS TO SPEECH

TORONTO, Aug. 11.—In the course of an address on the vocal organs in connection with music Sir Richard Paget illustrated it by exhibiting a toy dog "Radio Rex" which answered to its own name.

Called "Rex," he popped out of his kennel, but with other names, he refused to budge. "This illustrates the greater energy of the vowels in comparison with the consonants," said the lecturer. "It also emphasizes the importance of the lower resonance half of the vowel sound." Rex is attuned to a note of about 500 vibrations per second, it appears. When a vowel is uttered one half of which is a note of about this frequency, Rex knowingly responds, but unless this particular stimulus is given, he is dumb. The consonants don't worry him. Called "Reex," or "Roxx," he didn't hear, but to "Rex," "Raux," or "Rurx," he responded promptly.

Ten Years Ago in Prince Rupert

August 12, 1914.

A special meeting of the city council is to be held for the purpose of cancelling the request made by Mayor Newton while in Victoria that troops be sent here to guard the city. In the meantime, the old Premier Hotel, the skating rink and a Grand Trunk shed have been secured to house the troops which are said to be already on the way from Vancouver.

The gravity with which the situation is considered is indicated by the fact that martial law has been declared in Great Britain.

United States papers say that many foreign ships are to take out American registry in order to avoid the risks attending the flying of belligerent flags.
