LABORERS' WAGES EDMONTON 49 CENTS

City Decides to Pay that Sum But Some Pay Only 45 cents an Hour

EDMONTON, Jan. 25.—The rate of pay per hour for laborers employed by the city will be reduced from 54c to 49c per hour, according to the arrangements approved by council. This cut was made to serve more or less as a basis for the commissioners to work on in making the other salary cuts all along the line through the civic service, in order to bring about the total of a five per cent reduction in the total payroll which was recommended by the council some time ago.

The commissioners reported that negotiations had been carried on with the different branches of the Federation of civic service employees, but they had not arrived at any satisfactory arrangement with respect to the manner in which the reduction was to be applied. It was as a result of the commissioners request to council for some definite instructions with respect to the reductions that a resolution was finally submitted by Ald. Adams suggesting a cut in the rate of pay for laborers.

Largest Cut
The discussion of the method of applying the five per cent reduction which lasted well up to midnight centered around the wages of laborers. The rate which had been paid by the city was 54c per hour for experienced laborers, but private concerns in the city, according to commissioner Yorath, were only paid 45c per hour, a difference of about 13 per cent. If the cut was to be made that would be fair to everyone, the commissioner pointed out, and inasmuch as the wages paid by private concerns was the best guide it was obvious that laborers should receive the largest cut.

The Flirt to be Shown Here Tonight is Splendid Feature

Like a moth irresistibly drawn to the flaming candle, so were men drawn to Cora Madison; just a wee side glance from those coy eyes and the damage was done. Yet you couldn't blame Cora; it was as natural for her to flirt as it was to eat, but, like all her kind, there came a time when she had to pay the penalty for her indiscretions.

Booth Tarkington's story, "The Flirt," was one of the most widely read books in the country, and its entertainment value is greatly enhanced by its presentation in screen form. It was made into a magnificent film and will be seen at the Westholme Theatre tonight.

There are few persons who have not had a heart-breaking experience with a flirt, because the species come in both male and female form, hence there are few that will fail to understand the psychology of Mr. Tarkington's story, and, if they are not now in the midst of a similar experience, to thoroughly enjoy each minute of the performance.

The dairy farmers around Telkwa are interested in the fact that there may soon be a pasteurizing plant in operation here. This will mean a great thing, as then fresh milk might be sold in quantities and a better and quicker return made for the farmer.

Although they had very little practice the Telkwa Terriers put up a fine game of hockey with the Smithers' team on Sunday. The play was quick and snappy.

MINISTER OF HEALTH BRITISH GOVERNMENT

Hon. John Wheatley, minister of Health in the British Government has for many years been a prominent figure in labor and socialist movement in the west of Scotland.

He began work in a Lanarkshire coal pit at the age of 14 and continued to follow that occupation until he was 22. He is now engaged in business as a publisher. Before he was returned to Parliament for Shetleston last year he had already considerable experience of public life. He was elected to Lanark County Council in 1910 as a representative of the Shetleston area. Two years later, when the boundaries of Glasgow were extended and Shetleston was brought into the city, he was elected to Glasgow Corporation, of which he continued a member until his election to Parliament a year ago.

Mr. Wheatley has taken a deep interest in problems of public health and housing. He is recognized by all parties as
