SHOT HIMSELF AFTER MAKING CAREFUL PLANS

Death of Constable Canning of Provincial Police at Smithers Was Premeditated

Further particulars of the death of Constable C. C. Canning of the provincial police at Smithers is given in the Interior News just to hand which says:

Smithers was shocked in a horrifying manner when on Friday evening the news went around that C. C. Canning, who until the day previous had been on the provincial police force, had ended his life. Financial trouble, coupled with the loss of his position, are thought to have been the motive behind the rash act, so deliberately planned and so thoughtfully carried into execution.

Took Revolver

The unfortunate man spent the previous night in a room at the police station after turning over the equipment of his position, and he left the place next morning by the rear door while Chief Service was absent, and as subsequent events proved he again took his .38 revolver. Taking a circuitous route by Second, Queen and Broadway, Canning went to a house he had occupied with H. L. Robinson, who in passing the door later on as he was leaving, observed Canning stooped before his trunk.

Nothing more was thought of the matter until late afternoon, when enquiries resulted in a trip to the house, and the terrible tragedy was revealed.

Centre of Forehead

After Mr. Robinson's departure, Canning had carefully locked the door, and entering Mr. Robinson's room he took a reclining position on the narrow bed, sent a bullet into the centre of his forehead.

Capt. Charles Calhoun Canning, who was thirty-one years of age, came to Smithers direct from his home near Belfast last summer, and after working at Barrett for a time, he joined the provincial police force. A well educated young man, being a B.A. of Trinity College, Dublin, he could converse readily on many subjects, and he had qualities for which he was liked by many.

Served in War

He had served through the Great War and in his effects are several medals won by service as well as testimonials from his rank and papers of his various promotions. In October, 1914, he was appointed second lieutenant in the 11th Irish Rifles, and although he came out of the war with the rank of captain, he had acted as adjutant.

The funeral yesterday morning was well attended by his acquaintances, many floral tokens being in evidence. Interment took place in the Smithers cemetery, Rev. R. E. W. Biddell officiating.

PRACTICE BASEBALL GAME LAST NIGHT

A practice baseball game was held on the Acropolis Hill grounds last night between the local all-star team, which is to battle against Ketchikan tomorrow and Sunday, and a scrub team selected from the remaining city players. The game was played for the purpose of coaching the all-stars, Fred Gilhuly acted as coach. The all-star battery consisted of Fortin, pitcher, and D. Frizzell, catcher, while Dan Lidstone took the mound against the stars and Dave Balfour caught.

Sport Chat

The fourth game in the Stuart Shield series, which will be played tonight on the Acropolis Hill grounds, between the G. W. V. A. and the Sons of Canada, should result in some good football being shown on the field. Both teams can put up a good brand of football and the betting on the result will doubtless be even money. It will certainly be a game worth the price of admission and given a fine evening the game should be witnessed by a large crowd of soccer enthusiasts. The following teams will be fielded:

G.W.V.A.—Knox, goal; Lord and Barton, full backs; Findlay, Murray and Hunter, half backs; Robertson, Russell, Norwood, W. Mitchell and Johnson, forwards. Reserve, D. Gurvich.

One is constantly hearing complimentary expressions of opinion on all sides on the new Gyro playground equipment, which was thrown open to the children of the city by Mayor Newton yesterday. The raising of money for the very fine apparatus has been quite a task and the members of the Gyro club are to be highly commended upon the measure of success attained. The equipment is made to stand hard wear and is built on concrete bases which will give it a long lease of life. It must certainly be a source of great satisfaction to those Gyro members who helped in the successful termination of the project to see the amount of pleasure the kiddies are getting out of the use of the apparatus. It is doubtful whether any park in British Columbia can boast of a more complete or a better selection of playground equipment than that now standing in the McClymont Park.
