Outdoor Appeal To Healthy Person.

The out of door appeals to every normal, healthy individual, says the foreword in "Campcraft and Woodlore," a booklet issued by the Canadian National Railways. Possibly it is the blood of our ancestors that causes us to thrill at the thought of the holiday spent in the open, away from all the artificialities of modern life. But whatever the cause we revel in the bigness, the freshness and the wholesomeness of it all. And it is wholesome. The lungs expand to inhale the pure, clean air. The muscles harden under the unwonted exercise of paddle and portage. It's an education, too, to view at close range the marvels of nature and to learn something of the wondrous ways of the wild.

Day Of Professor Seems To Have Come.

The day of the student of science seems to have come. The Vancouver Province, in a leading editorial, says of the university specialist:

"We laugh a good deal at the professor, smile at his dreams and theories, sneer at his pedanticies, joke about his absent-mindedness and make fun of what we regard as his lack of touch with the practical. All the same, we are coming more and more to trust the professor's advice on practical questions. He has his finger in almost every industrial pie in the land. He teaches commercial men and bankers the theories of economics and finance. He discovers new and cheaper processes of manufacture. He creates new plants for the florist and farmer and works out elaborate breeding tables for the stockman. He instructs the engineer regarding stresses and strains. He lectures the lumberman on forest mensuration and engineering. He tells the forester and farmer and amateur gardener how to control fungus diseases and insect pests. The hardy prospector spends less time than he used to trailing float over the hills and more at the professor's feet, learning about geological formations and shear zones and crystals and the colors in a blow-pipe flame."

"And now, it seems, having cleaned up everything on land, the professor is going to sea. He will take up fishing. From headquarters at Halifax and Prince Rupert, the Biological Board of Canada is offering lectures and laboratory courses to the fishermen of both coasts. The object of the new departure is two-fold. The fisherman is to be shown how his product may be prepared for market so that it will have a greater appeal and so that transportation costs may be lessened. And the consumer, it is hoped, will be tempted to make greater use of fish than he does at present. As fishing is one of the great industries of Canada, and very important to British Columbia in particular, anything that will increase the interest of the Canadian consumer in fish must be of benefit to us. We can only say, therefore, more power to the professor's elbow."

A Liberal Viewpoint On Empire Dismemberment.

Bruce Hutchison, press correspondent at Ottawa of several Liberal papers in this province, writes the Vancouver Star from Ottawa:

"The poor old broken-down, worn-out and feeble bogey of Empire dismemberment was dragged out of its cupboard by Conservatives in the Commons the other day to scare Liberals and Progressives away from the Government's attempt to smash the Atlantic shipping combine. Evidently taking their cue from some of the more reactionary British newspapers, like the Morning Post, the Conservatives solemnly suggested that the Government's subsidy scheme might result in trouble between the Canadian and British authorities. They really grew quite alarmed about it. They professed to see the misguided Canadian Government busily borrowing away under the very foundations of the Empire. It is the same old bogey which they used against Sir Wilfrid Laurier in 1911 and which scared a large proportion of the electors then—the charge that the Liberal Government was paving the way for Canada's annexation by the United States. It was laid tenderly away with moth balls after 1911 and then propped up in front of the electors occasionally as the need arose. Now it is in the open again, somewhat dilapidated, somewhat moth-eaten and somewhat shaky on its feet."

500 SETTLERS ON WAY WEST

Arrive Saturday on Canopic and are being Distributed by Railway

HALIFAX, March 30.—As fine a body of new settlers as ever came to Canada were landed here yesterday from the Canopic of the White Star Dominion line, and are now travelling towards various destinations in Quebec, Ontario and the Western provinces, on board a special train of all-steel cars operated over the Canadian National Railways. There were approximately 500 in the various parties which passed through the immigration departmental inspectors this morning, and officials of that branch frequently commented on the splendid appearance, the fine physique, the sturdy children and the general air of confidence and alertness which marked these groups from the British Isles who have come to test the Dominion as a land of opportunity.

The total of 500 was formed of several parties, one being made up of 33 families brought to Canada under the scheme of the assisted settlement of approved British families on which the government of Great Britain and of Canada are co-operating. These families numbered in all 168 individuals and will settle in various parts of the dominion. In addition there also came by the Canopic another party of farm laborers and a small party of boys, the latter brought to Canada under the auspices of the British Immigration and Colonization Association of Canada, with which organization the department of Colonization and Development of the C.N.R. is co-operating.

Fine Groups

The family group formed an especially interesting body of new comers, and officials of the department of immigration and Colonization who were on hand to receive them and direct them, had a busy time answering questions fired by spectators who were visibly impressed by them. These families went through the inspection with flying colors and made themselves comfortable on board the special train. A striking feature of all these families is that the helpmate has also had farm experience, nearly everyone having some specialty. Such as butter making, poultry raising, or gardening. While these families with bigger boys and girls also claim some experience of a similar character.

TO SEE CANADA

Tourist Travel to be Larger This Year Than Last Say Railway Officials

WINNIPEG, Mar. 30.—Tourist traffic to Canada during the coming summer promises to be considerably in excess of recent years, according to passenger traffic department officers of the Canadian National Railways. Reservations for June, July and August by special parties in the United States, who will travel extensively in Canada, are much heavier than at this time last year, and the enquiries are also in excess of those received during the corresponding periods of 1923 and 1924.

An interesting feature of tourist traffic to Canada this year will be tours by members of school teaching and student bodies. In the United Kingdom it is a usual procedure for teachers and students from Canada to visit Great Britain in large numbers each summer, but it has not been customary for the teachers and students of the British Isles to return those visits. This year, however, at least three large parties of this type will visit Canada. The largest will be composed of members of the League of Empire who will sail from Britain on the Cunard line to arrive at Quebec early in July for a trip across the Dominion and back over the lines of the Canadian National Railways. During the trip they will visit practically every important point between Quebec and Vancouver as well as spending some time in Jasper National Park and other playgrounds. Two other parties will arrive in July, one composed entirely of women teachers and the other of school-masters.

The women will visit Quebec, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Niagara Falls, Buffalo, Washington, Philadelphia, and sail for England from New York. The men will visit Quebec, Montreal, Ottawa, and spend several days in Algonquin Park and then proceed to Toronto, Niagara Falls, and Albany before reembarking on board ship at New York.

THERE is a picture here at the week end with a plot something like this:

The incensed gentleman wanders up a street in the wee small hours. He stops at a house and knocks at the door. Someone calls from the second storey window:

"What do you want?"

"Dush Shamu Schmidt live here?" he asked between his coughs.

"Why, you are Mr. Schmidt, aren't you?"

"Shure, I know it, but do I live here?"

Mrs. Alex Foster, R.R. No. 2, Portion, writes: — "I took a severe cold which settled on my lungs, and my cough was so bad, at times, it seemed as if it were tearing my lungs to pieces. I sent and got a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup and I got relief after the first few doses, and by the time I had finished the rest of the bottle I was completely relieved of both my cold and cough."
