WHITE BEAR IS FRIENDLY

Elmer Palmbom of Surf Inlet And Forest Ranger Scott Got Close View.

URSUS KERMODEL AT HOME.

A fine specimen of Kermode's white bear, known scientifically as Ursus Kermodei, was seen a few days ago at the head of Rivers Bight, Princess Royal Island, by Elmer Palmbom and Assistant Forest Ranger Scott. They had anchored in the bay for a short time while getting themselves a meal before returning to Surf Inlet, where Mr. Palmbom is engaged with J. R. Morgan Co., and were quite near the shore when they looked up and saw the little bear playing on the shore. They had guns but did not shoot as the bear seemed too friendly to engage in hostilities. They went ashore and watched him for a short time and were quite near enough to take photographs only unfortunately they had no camera with them.

The bear was apparently an adult but smaller than the ordinary black bear.

ATTENDED CONVENTION SHRINERS LOS ANGELES

Dave Roberts Home After Holiday Spent in the "Sunny South"

Returning on Saturday's train from a trip of several weeks in California, Dave Roberts, C.N.R. locomotive engineer, reports a very pleasurable vacation.

He went south primarily to attend the big Shriners' convention in Los Angeles, and the vast crowds of these gaily attired personages were continuously objects of interest and attention.

It rained in Los Angeles while the city was entertaining these visitors. Rained hard, too, for several days, until the visitors paraded forth with fishing rods to the street corners, dragged old boats through the streets, and merrily twitted the natives about their salubrious climate. These little incidents only served to fill in until "the clouds rolled by," and the Shriners parade was staged. Bands and bands, and more bands to the number of about one hundred were interspersed in that vast conclave that swept through the streets and stalled traffic. It was a wonderful sight and one not soon forgotten, Dave says.

When returning home Mr Roberts chanced to be in Portland for the rose carnival which appeared rather tame. Vancouver was accorded first prize for the best float and naturally some good advertising.

"The whole trip," Mr. Roberts said, "was very delightful and those people over there certainly know how to boost," a fact which might not be overlooked by local people.
