WAR CROSS IS UNVEILED

Impressive Event Took Place Last Night in Anglican Church — Regimental Parade

An impressive event important in the activities of local ex-servicemen took place last night when the Vimy Ridge memorial cross presented to the First Battalion, North B.C. Regiment, by the Imperial War Graves Commission was unveiled and dedicated in St. Andrew's Anglican church. The church was crowded.

To participate in the ceremony, officers, non-commissioned officers and men of the First North B.C. Regiment under the officer commanding, Col. J. W. Nicholls, and led by the regimental band of twenty pieces under Bandmaster Wilson, paraded from the armory to the church. The regiment presented a very smart appearance as it marched along the streets and the performance of the band was indeed creditable. The parade was joined by about thirty members of the Great War Veterans' Association in civilian attire.

In the course of the service at the church the memorial cross was unveiled of its Union Jack frappe by Regimental Sergeant-Major William Brown. The "Last Post" was sounded by Sergeant William Rance. Archdeacon G. A. Rix offered dedicatory prayer and delivered an impressive sermon imbued with the solemnity and significance of the occasion. There was appropriate music by the choir, including a special anthem, and Bandmaster Wilson rendered a cornet solo. After the service, the members of the regiment paraded back to the armory where they were dismissed.
