BITTER OPPONENT OF PRINCE RUPERT HOUSE OF COMMONS

Hon. R. J. Manton, at one time a Liberal and now a strong partisan Conservative, living at Fort William, took another opportunity recently to criticize the elevator vote at Prince Rupert. He had been criticizing Government expenditures on the Atlantic, when he said:

"Then we have the Prince Rupert elevator, a scandalous expenditure, $1,350,000 which was voted in the House the other day. This elevator is two hundred miles farther from Edmonton than the elevator at Vancouver. This $1,350,000 which is to be spent on the Prince Rupert elevator is just about as useful as a fifth wheel on a wagon."

Mr. Manton was a member of the Meighan cabinet.

After much Peach brandy had been consumed, Neganie expressed dissatisfaction with the work of Johnson Louie who was in his employ and struck him in the chest with his fist. Louie collapsed on the floor and expired some three hours later. It was challenged by the defence.

Accused, on being charged with unlawful killing, pleaded not guilty through Charlie Alphouse, the Chilcotin interpreter. Small of stature, primitive looking and ill dressed, Neganie, as he stumbled into the court room accompanied by an officer, seemed as if he did not know where he was going or what was going to happen next. Unable to fully understand English, he closely followed the evidence as it was translated to him by the interpreter. He had the customary native solidarity, which is more marked in interior Indians than those of the coast.

The chief witness was Louie Johnson, son of the dead man. As primitive appearing a group of natives never before made their appearance in a local court. The taking of evidence was a slow and laborious proceeding and double interpretation had to be employed from Shuswap to English and then from English to Chilcotin again.

Court adjourned at 5 o'clock last evening and resumed at 10 o'clock this morning, the first witness then to be called being Dr. G. A. Charter of Williams Lake who performed a post-mortem on deceased. Attorney General A. M. Manson prosecuted and E. F. Jones defended.

The action dealt with the Prince John group of claims at Stewart.

The court after three days' hearing decided that plaintiff had no right of action. To allow them to succeed would be a miscarriage of justice. Defendants had spent considerable money on the property yet it was contended that by a slip they could be relieved of their claim.

Canada is to Have a Flag of Her Own it is Decided and Committee Appointed to Recommend Design

OTTAWA, June 10.—Falling in line with Australia and New Zealand, Canada is to have a flag which will be recognized as the flag of the Dominion. The government has passed an order appointing a committee to consider and report upon the most suitable design for a national flag for shore use.

A distinctive Canadian flag so far is authorized for use only on Canadian government owned vessels and ships of Canadian registry.

Three suggestions are before the committee. The first is to continue the use of the red ensign with the Canadian arms in the centre. The second is the national flag. The third is to adopt an entirely new design.

Neganie the Chilcotin Indian, Found Not Guilty of Murder, is Discharged by Assize Court Today

Another story of how liquor and Indians fail to agree, this time the result being fatal, was slowly unfolded at the Supreme Court Assizes yesterday afternoon and today in the trial of Neganie, an Indian of the Chilcotin tribe, who is charged with manslaughter in connection with death of Johnson Louie, a native of Shuswap tribe, on March 28 last in the Williams Lake district.

According to the crown witnesses, there was a drunken brawl on the night in question. After much Peach brandy had been consumed, Neganie expressed dissatisfaction with the work of Johnson Louie who was in his employ and struck him in the chest with his fist. Louie collapsed on the floor and expired some three hours later. It was challenged by the defence.

Accused, on being charged with unlawful killing, pleaded not guilty through Charlie Alphouse, the Chilcotin interpreter.

Small of stature, primitive looking and ill dressed, Neganie, as he stumbled into the court room accompanied by an officer, seemed as if he did not know where he was going or what was going to happen next. Unable to fully understand English, he closely followed the evidence as it was translated to him by the interpreter. He had the customary native solidarity, which is more marked in interior Indians than those of the coast.

Prefacing his outline of the crown's case to the jury, Mr. Manson asked that no significance be attached to the fact that it was the attorney general who was conducting the prosecution. He was simply acting as crown prosecutor whose duty it was, not to obtain a conviction or to persecute any person, but simply to assist the jury in reaching a true verdict.

The following jury was empanelled: A. T. Parkin (foreman), Sam Wood, F. W. Wescob, G. A. Kelsey, James Hunter, G. (continued on page six)
