Coal Prospects of Bulkley Valley Give Promise of an Industry Being Developed

(Eighth of Series of Articles on Mining in Bulkley Valley, based on Smithers Board of Trade Report)

Coal seams are found in various parts of the Bulkley Valley district and it is probable that possibly in the near future an important coal mining industry may be developed. For many years some of the valuable deposits have been held with a view to development. Some of them have been tested with diamond drills and the co-operation of the railways has been sought to help market the product. Transportation is the chief drawback in nearly all cases. Building spur lines is expensive and without them it is almost impossible to compete with other sources of supply.

The report of the Telkwa Board of Trade deals with the mines briefly as follows:

Telkwa Coal Mines

At present the only operating mine is that of the Telkwa Collieries in the vicinity of Coal Creek, about five miles from Telkwa. This is owned by J. McNeil of Telkwa and others, and has operated steadily throughout the winter season for the past two years. The coal being shipped is from a seam six to eight feet in extent and other seams in the vicinity are owned by the same parties. It is hauled to Telkwa on sleighs and there shipped, chiefly to points between Prince Rupert and Prince George. Some thousands of tons have been mined in the past two seasons. It is hoped that larger scale mining will develop in the future, though without a spur from the railway this may be impracticable.

About six miles up the Telkwa River from its confluence with the Bulkley is another coal property. This is owned by English interests and was operated some years ago. The seam outcrops on the bank of the river. From this shipments were made by hauling to Telkwa and then by rail from that point. The expense of handling by this method has retarded operation in recent years.

Another very large coal field is found in the Copper (Zymoetz) River valley about twenty-five miles west of Smithers. This field is held by Vancouver interests. Development has been carried on at different times and the field is well-proven but until such time as a railway is built to it the actual mining and shipping of coal is probably out of the question.

Lake Kathlyn

On the side of Hudson Bay Mountain, about three miles from Lake Kathlyn station, from which it is reached by road, is another coal property known as the Lake Kathlyn Coal Mines. This was worked some years ago but inadequate financing and expensive handling by hauling to the railway over an indifferent road has kept the property idle for some years past. Frank X. Frank of Vancouver is the principal owner.

Near Seaton, coal outcroppings on the bank of the Bulkley River have received development at different times. No one has yet attempted to make any extensive shipments. James Wright of Smithers is interested in this.

There are other coal properties at different points in the district which may prove to be of value but which are as yet undeveloped.

south recently, G. G. Aikens, geographical engineer for the government, compared the four states of Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana with British Columbia in area, population, topography and climate. "British Columbia stands," he said, "in point of population, just where those four states stood forty years ago." It should not take British Columbia so long to gain an additional 2,500,000 people as it took them."
