BRINGING UP FATHER

BRITISH WOULD HAVE A BOXER

Kind of Man Who Would Succeed if Trained is Described

SHOULD BE LEGAL

Whole Time Required to Make a Champion Who Could Win Laurels

(By Canadian Press)

LONDON, March 5.—The ideal type of boxer and the reason that Great Britain is not represented in the group of leading heavyweight boxers in the world, is described by Lieut. Commander, the Hon. J. M. Kenworthy, R.N., M.P., for Central Hull, in a letter to the press recently.

Commander Kenworthy, who himself is a boxer of note, having been for three years champion heavyweight (officers) of the British Navy, says that it is a matter for grave concern among British sportsmen that all the first class boxers of today are non-British and that for two generations no British boxer able to capture the world's heavyweight championship has been produced.

Raw Material

"We have the raw material among our splendid manhood," the Commander writes, "but, just as there is big money in boxing, so big money is needed to bring out the best talent and to train it for the years necessary for even a good man to enter the first class. Given a youngster of the right type, he must be prepared to make boxing a life time pursuit; and in order to attract the big money required the sport must be put on a much firmer foundation than at present.

For a man to be a champion heavyweight he must not only be big, but of the right build and very strong; thick necked, broad-shouldered, with hands not too large but very firm, and the distance from the end of the wrist to the knuckles must be short. Long-faced men are of no use; a possible champion must be square or round-faced with no very prominent feature. Our future champion must have great speed and above all, quickness of brain. High intelligence is needed and educated men with the required physique have the advantage over uneducated or partly educated men. Men who take up boxing must live cleanly, be temperate and of good and cool temper. Boxers are seldom violent in private life and the man who looses his temper is of no use for the ring.

His Training

"Having found our man, he must devote his whole career to boxing; training and boxing every day under the tuition of one of the greatest masters of ring-craft, with a number of first class sparring partners always available. This all costs money and the required amount cannot be obtained while boxing remains illegal. Modern boxing is a typically British sport and our methods have spread and been copied by every sporting nation in the world. There is no more betting on boxing than on other sports and it brings much revenue to the state through the entertainment tax. The sport is no more dangerous than football and is less hazardous than fox-hunting and steeplechasing. It is high time that the anomoly of the illegality of British boxing should be removed. Parliament, I believe, should step in and end it. If this were done and the sport given a little official encouragement, apart from the splendid example set up by the King and the Royal Prince, British boxing would look up and a British heavyweight fit for the championship class would emerge.

tion from carrying on the contest, then the contest is illegal." There are elastic laws to punish all connected with a boxing bout that has been found to be illegal and even the railway companies conveying persons to such a prize fight are liable to a fine of not more than £500 and not less than £200.

Young Stribling, who is described as the most sensational boxer of the decade and who is often mentioned as a contender for the heavyweight boxing crown, is only 20 years old and has been boxing professionally for little over three years but, in that time, he has boxed some of the greatest pugilists in the game such as Mike McTigue, Ad Stone, Paul Berlenbach, Tony Marullo and many others. He says the greatest victory he ever won, however, was a ten round scrap with a basher named Red Herring who, at the start of the battle, handed him a vicious jolt on the nose which shook him to his heels and from which he did not recover until the seventh round. Eventually, Stribling got the decision.

There are only three entries for the city individual billiard championship contest. They are Fred Pyle, Col. S. P. McMordie and Sergeant Jebson. The competition will be decided by the highest total of points in a schedule of six games to 500 points. There will be a cup for the winner, a medal for the runner-up and a cue for the player making the highest break. The schedule of games will be as follows:

March 12.—McMordie vs. Pyle.
" 13.—Jebson vs. Pyle.
" 17.—McMordie vs. Jebson.
" 18.—Pyle vs. Jebson.
" 19.—McMordie vs. Pyle.
" 24.—McMordie vs. Jebson.

The Lord Templeton was built in Belfast in 1886, for many years she was used as a tramp ocean going sailing vessel but for the past four years has been tied up at Oakland, California.

This Lassie Has Her Colds "Rubbed Away"

The mother of this attractive little girl, Mrs. E. E. Emmans, of 215 Seventh Ave., N. E., Portage La Prairie, Man., is one of the many Canadian mothers who are enthusiastic about the vaporizing salve, Vicks VapoRub, for treating children's colds. Mrs. Emmans writes: "My little girl had croup at night pretty badly and Vicks did her a lot of good. I have also used it with very satisfactory results for head and chest colds."

Vicks is just "rubbed on" for sore throat, tonsilitis, bronchitis, croup or deep chest colds. When so applied, Vicks has a double direct action: internally medicated vapors are inhaled while, at the same time, externally, it is absorbed through and stimulates the skin.

INSPECTOR PARSONS RETURING TO WEST

Has in Custody Sowash, Alleged Hi-jack Murderer, Whom He Arrested in New Orleans

T. W. S. Parsons, local inspector of provincial police, according to despatches in southern papers, is on his way from New Orleans to Vancouver having in custody Harry F. Sowash who is wanted on a charge of murder in connection with the double killing of Capt. W. T. Gillis and his son, William, who were slain when a supposed hijacking raid was made on their launch, Beryl G., last September. Sowash was arrested in New Orleans by Inspector Parsons after having been apprehended by detectives of that city.

"Cannon Ball" Baker is already at Vancouver under arrest on a similar charge having been brought west from New York by Inspector Dunwoodie. Charlie Morris, the third defendant in the same case, is being held in Seattle where he is fighting extradition.

GLOOMY DEAN AND PORTS OF PACIFIC

Inge Says Pacific Trade Will be as Important as That of Atlantic

Dean Inge says that in the future Pacific trade will be as important as Atlantic trade, and for that reason nothing can prevent North America from being the centre of the world's commerce, according to a Victoria paper. This prediction has not the gloom which is commonly ascribed to the Dean's utterances. Certainly Canada has no reason to be alarmed over the growth of Pacific trade, even at the expense of the supremacy of the Atlantic. Canada has a long coast line and splendid ports on the Pacific. British Columbia is a province of rich and varied resources, and back of it is one of the granaries of the world. The shipment of wheat through an easy grade in the Rocky Mountains is the beginning of a movement fraught with tremendous consequences, not only for Pacific trade, but for the development of British Columbia and the adjacent prairie country. Canada is just as well equipped for trade on that side of the continent as on the east, and can look forward cheerfully to the fulfilment of the prediction of Dean Inge.

SCOTTISH BISHOP IS OPPOSED TO CONTROL OF BIRTH IN BRITAIN

EDINBURGH, Mar. 5.—Speaking on birth restriction at a meeting of the Edinburgh diocese of the Episcopal church Bishop Walpole said "that it is quite clear to my mind that Great Britain should follow America and France and prohibit the use of contraceptives in order that our place among the nations may be preserved."

The bishop had previously pointed out that conditions now are what they were 50 years ago. Forty per cent of divorces occurred in those families where there were no children, he said adding that he believed that in only a small proportion of these cases were children impossible. Divorce, he said, hardly ever occurred where there was a "reasonable" family.

Sport Chat

Prize fights and boxing contests were early regarded as contrary to law in England. Various statutes were passed from time to time as far back as the reign of Richard II. prohibiting various games and even football, at one time, was specifically prohibited. The present state of the law as regards boxing in the Old Country is: "In deciding whether a particular boxing contest is illegal or legal, it is necessary to examine the intentions of the combatants. If their real object is to inflict such injuries as to prevent him either from these injuries or exhaus-
