LAFOLLETTE LONGEST SPEECH ON RECORD IN UNITED STATES SENATE

Spoke for Over Eighteen Hours in 1908: Vice-President Against Marathon Talking

WASHINGTON, April 8—Vice-President Dawes' spectacular attack on one-man marathon talking events in the senate, and the more recent eight-hour speech of Senator Copeland of New York against the Isle of Pines treaty, has led capital attaches to dig up noted instances of lengthy senatorial addresses.

The unofficial record is held by Senator La Follette of Wisconsin. Speaking on a currency measure, on May 29, 1908, he held the floor for 18 hours and 20 minutes.

A 15-hour speech is credited to Senator Falkner of West Virginia, on January 16, 1891, when the Force bill was under discussion. Senator Allen of Nebraska on October 11-12, 1893, engaged the attention of the Senate for 14 hours on the repeal of the silver bill; and a similar period was consumed by Senator Carter of Montana on March 2-3, 1901, while discussing a rivers and harbors measure. Senator Jones, Republican, Washington, made a 13-hour and 35 minute speech on February 8-10, 1915, during consideration of the ship purchase bill; Senator Burton of Ohio spoke for 12 hours and 10 minutes on a rivers and harbors bill on September 18-19, 1914; and Senator Smoot of Utah is credited with a speech extending 11 hours and 35 minutes on July 22, 1913, when the Underwood tariff measure was under debate.

The chamber at the other end of the capitol can lay claim to no such prolonged oratorical efforts. House rules preclude any lengthy address by one man, the longest being two or two and a half hours, when the chairman of a committee, in charge of a major bill, is explaining its provisions.

WHY SHE WAS SINGLE

At a meeting of Quakers an old farmer, notorious for his lack of manners, turned to a prim elderly maiden lady, and said to her, "Tabitha, will thou tell me why thou hast never married?"

"Certainly, friend Joseph?" responded Tabitha, in a voice audible all over the room. "'Tis because I am not so easily pleased as thy wife was!"

Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Fulton and family are sailing on the Prince George Friday morning for Vancouver.
