Praise Given to Maritime Paintings

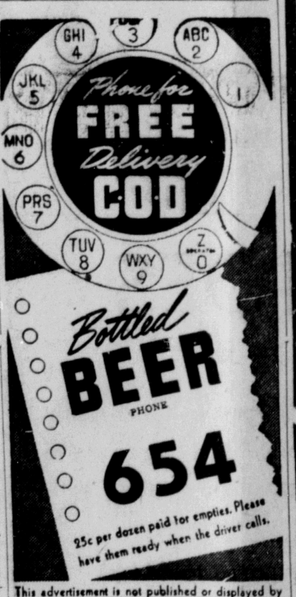

YORK, England (CP)—Stanley Royle, the Sheffield landscape painter and former director of fine arts, drawing and painting at Mount Allison University, Sackville, N.B., has received acclaim in his home country.

Members of eight Yorkshire art clubs, who attended an exhibition of paintings and drawings here, said, after viewing his paintings:

"There should be a gallery in London devoted specifically to landscapes of Commonwealth countries."

Royle's works such as "Fishing Village of Prospect, N.S.," and "Evening Light, Prospect," are outstanding examples of traditional painting. He received a silver medal at a prominent Paris salon for them.

A judge at Scarborough said Mr. Royle's work has a special gift of the "bold management of large canvases" despite the fact that most artists are seen at their best in small scale.

BLACKWOOD on Bridge

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

Mr. Muzzy Bids Well, but What a Player!

Strangely enough, Mr. Muzzy made a pretty good bid on his cards in today's deal. As if determined to uphold a tradition, however, he fell completely apart in the play.

Mr. Meek's opening lead was the queen of clubs and Mr. Muzzy won with the ace. Surveying the hand, it first appeared to him that he could lay it down for 12 tricks.

He caught himself just before laying his cards face up on the table and took another look. Laboriously, he came to the conclusion that he really had only 11 sure winners.

Well, obviously, it was up to a finesse in spades or diamonds. So, after taking two rounds of trumps, Mr. Muzzy finessed the queen of spades. The king won and a spade was returned. He came back to his hand with a trump and tried the diamond finesse. Mr. Dale won with queen—and that was the setting trick.

Mr. Muzzy was disgusted. How could one man have so much bad luck? What ever happened to the law of averages? Two finesses to take and they were both wrong.

But Mr. Muzzy had not given himself every chance. He loves to finesse and he spent all his time worrying about spades and diamonds. He never gave a thought to the third plain suit, clubs. He could have increased his chances by playing in the following manner:

Win the first trick with the ace of clubs and take two rounds of trumps. Lead a diamond and finesse the jack. When this lost, Mr. Dale would have to return a diamond or a club. In either case, win, the return and throw a club from the closed hand on dummy's third diamond.

Then ruff a third lead of clubs. There is the chance that the clubs will break 3-3, in which case dummy's fourth club would furnish a parking space for Mr. Muzzy's losing spade.

If the clubs fail to break, the spade finesse is still available. In other words, without giving up anything, Mr. Muzzy could have had a try at developing his 12th trick in ALL THREE plain suits.
