Help Of All Asked To Study Halibut.

Professor W. F. Thompson of Stanford University, who is at present here engaged in work leading up to a detailed study of the Pacific halibut, asks that fishermen, fish dealers and others co-operate with him in his work in order that proper means for conserving the supply may follow. The banks to the south are practically fished out and the Heceta Straits banks are partly depleted. To prevent the work of depletion continuing to a point where fishing becomes unprofitable is the work of this scientist and his assistants. All will doubtless be glad to help him in carrying it on in the best manner possible.

Canadianism Being Urged.

Everywhere in his country there is a movement toward greater loyalty to the country. In other words Canadianism is being developed.

In all these patriotic movements there is a lot of talk and bluster and with it all some achievement, because a lot of people are influenced by talk and bluster.

The real thing is very often obscured in any national movement. What might be a worthy aim would be to make Canada the best land in which to live.

If we have any love for Canada, we can best show it by actions rather than words. What have we done, individually or collectively, to make Canada a great nation? Have we done anything? Is there any action to which to point that is worthy of emulation?

The first thing of real value is to make a good home, to raise a fine family, to take part in public life, to help beautify and cleanse the city, to help produce or educate, to create worthy ideals for ourselves and our children and to exercise care that no action of ours tends to disgrace the country or delay its development. That is Canadianism.

When 4,000 Feet in Air Keeps in Touch For 110 Miles at Chicago

CHICAGO, June 13—Telephone communication between airplane pilots flying 4,000 feet in the air and radio station WLS, was maintained clearly over a distance of 110 miles during the military show here recently. When the army flyers descended at Chanute Field the reception was still strong, indicating that intermittent talking might have been continued over a greater distance.

The previous record for communication between a land station and an airplane by radio was 40 miles. Spectators at the show were listeners in during the tests, the radio station re-broadcasting the conversations. This was another feat said by radio engineers to have been successfully performed for the first time.

The army planes used a 50 watt master oscillator sending set, with three 50 watt tubes, an oscillator, modulator and speech amplifier, in addition to a 5 watt amplifier. The radio station used a heterodyne receiving set while the army men used an army S. by Lloyd Osborne.

POPULAR WRITERS IN NEW BOOKS AT THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

Several prominent and popular writers are represented in some of the new books recently added to the library. Among the books are:

"Some Aspects of Modern Poetry," by Alfred Noyes.

"Essays, Literary and Critical," by R. L. Stevenson.

"The Garden of Folly," by Stephen Leacock.

"The Treasure House of Belgium," by Emile Gammarts.

"To Lhasa in Disguise," by W. M. McGovern.

"Robert Louis Stevenson," by Graham Balfour.

"An Intimate Portrait of R. L. S." by Lloyd Osborne.

Mrs. Bowen Colthurst Lectures to People of Terrace on Women's Work

COUNCIL OF WOMEN

Big Questions of Day Discussed at International Gathering Recently

TERRACE, June 13.—The Terrace - Kitsumsalum Parent-Teachers Association had the great privilege of hearing Mrs. Bowen Colthurst, a delegate to the recent quinquennial convention of the International Council of Women. She explained the aims and object of the organization which is pledged to no particular propaganda. There are no restrictions of color or creed. Their motto is "do unto others as you would have others do unto you," and all who subscribe to this are welcomed to the league. Forty-two nations sent delegates this year. Ireland, Guatemala, China, and Palestine have joined recently.

Resolutions were all made in English, French and German. Various standing committees presented conclusions to which their discussions have led on such subjects as law, suffrage, peace, child welfare, trades and professions, etc.

Nationality of Women

Under law for example, come such subjects as proposals for an international agreement on the subject of the nationality of married women. Lacking an international agreement, complications are constantly arising. One case, as an illustration, waited of a Danish woman who, according to the law in Denmark which is similar to that of Canada, lost her nationality as a result of her marriage to an American. She is not an American citizen because, according to the law of United States, she did not assume her husband's nationality. When she wished to join her husband in the States she found it impossible to get a passport from Denmark which had cast her off and equally so from United States, which would not accept her. She finally secured one through a personal friend from the Italian government.

Question of Peace

Inevitably the question of peace and of the League of Nations came up. The American papers had a very suspicious attitude toward it, fearing propaganda. Peace is essential and vital. All reforms and advancement along other lines will be swept away unless a foundation of peace is secured. The old peace program of asking people to stop fighting and urging them to love one another was weak in the very fact that the good responded and the bad did not. At present the league is seeking some means by which force may be put on the side of right. An international committee may be appealed to and a nation may have justice done it. The position must be worked at and remodelled. But it should have the sympathy of the nations and they should never feel they will lose prestige or individuality by it. It is often regarded as impossible but the stopping of duelling was regarded as that at one time. We are surrounded on all sides by scientific inventions which have been looked on as utterly impossible when first dreamed of. Pre-eminently, peace must ever be of interest to women.

Under education, it was decided to encourage the widest possible exchange of teachers and students.

The necessity of good history books was dwelt on. Children should learn of other countries from a sympathetic, not an antagonistic point of view. Foreign lands should be presented from earliest childhood as intensely interesting—never as ridiculous.

Members of the educational committee, of which Mrs. Colthurst is a member, were entertained at lunch. Each member gave a three-minute talk on characteristic features of education in their land. One striking statement was that Finland has no compulsory system of education but none are allowed to marry till they can read and write.

Sex Morality

It was urged sex morality be taught, approaching it from the study of natural law. Nature study and biology should occupy a prominent place on the curriculum.

The work of the League of Nations should be taught in the schools of all the nations and the council of women pledged itself to endeavor to see that this is done.

It is often asked what can the council of women do? They have no legislative power. Laws are passed after public opinion demands it and the council of women can be and have been, instrumental in forming it. Take for an example of their work the growth of public opinion against child labor and see how much has been done along this line.

Mrs. Colthurst was for some years at the head of the Irish branch of the Parents' National Education Union and by special request gave some account of their work, which is similar in some respects to that done by the P.T.A.

Letter From Mrs. Donaghys

At the beginning of the meeting a letter was read by Mrs. Sundal from Mrs. Donaghys, a former Terrace resident, on the work being done by the P.T.A. Association in Los Angeles, of which she is a member. Of outstanding interest was the fact that Western Ave. School, in which she is interested, had adopted a school in the foreign district and provided funds to serve every child attending the poorer school with porridge every morning. They also had taken very definite steps in sponsoring better films. Saturday matinees were given at which only better films were shown.

TERRACE NOTES

Mrs. Geo. Little entertained a number of her friends on Tuesday afternoon to meet Mrs. Bowen Colthurst, who gave them a most interesting informal talk on the more social aspect of the Quinquennial convention at Washington.

T. Brewer of Smithers is a business visitor to town this week.

News has just reached Terrace of the death at Hazelton Hospital of John Niedhart of Remo. Mr. Niedhart was one of the earliest settlers to take up land at Remo. He was the most progressive rancher, being the first to introduce stock and later bees into the district. He was always one of the best liked in the district.

Mr. and Mrs. Altemus of New York are in town for a few days.

Fred Bohler is in Hazelton Hospital.

A. Y. Wilson of Remo was in town Friday.

Miss Janet Young spent a few days in Prince Rupert when she went down to try her Junior Examination in music.
