LORD CURZON DIED TODAY WAS STATESMAN OF TYPE SELDOM SEEN THESE DAYS

became secretary of state for foreign affairs in 1919 and continued in that office in the Bonar Law government after the Lloyd-George rule had been smashed by the Tories. Meanwhile he had risen two more steps in the peerage—to an earldom and then to a marquisate. There remained only a dukedom to be obtained and Lord Curzon generally was credited with a burning ambition to achieve this highest of titles for those outside of royal blood.

It was at that time that his accumulation of honors operated against Lord Curzon in his ambition to become the British prime minister. When Bonar Law retired in 1923 because of ill-health there was besides Lord Curzon only one other man regarded as likely for the post—Stanley Baldwin. In Curzon's favor there was his long and notable record in politics and the government service, while Baldwin virtually was a novice in politics, but had proved a strong chancellor of the exchequer who had settled the American debt question with honor and satisfaction. Weighing in opposition to Curzon was the new twentieth century tradition against appointing as premier a peer who could not meet attacks on the government in the House of Commons. Hence, Mr. Baldwin, being a commoner, received the place.

Treaty With Turks

Lord Curzon consented to remain in the foreign office in the Baldwin government. He went to Lausanne to lead the Allies in making their peace treaty with the Turks, who had re-entered Europe and avenged against the Greeks the expulsion of the crescent from Europe in the World War. The treaty let the Turks back into Europe and returned to them a large part of what they had lost in the war. For this Lord Curzon was severely criticized and in the grumbling that preceded the fall of the Tories and the rise of the Labor government in the winter of 1923-24 much of the dissatisfaction was directed against him.

With the fall of the Conservative government Lord Curzon was obliged to relinquish his post as foreign secretary. Some persons thought that in the prime minister's parting page of honors the name of Curzon would head the list, with a dukedom at last. But there was no dukedom in the list.

Lord Curzon was born at Kedleston, January 11, 1859, the eldest son of the Rev. Alfred Nathaniel Holden Curzon, the fourth Baron Scarsdale. He married twice, taking an American as his wife on both occasions.

Arrangements are under way for a big dance to be held on Easter Monday night, April 13.. The bachelors of the town and district have banded together under the leadership of Billie Henry and are laying plans for an evening's enjoyment that they claim will beat anything ever held this far north.

The Hospital dance held on St. Patrick's night proved a great success, financially as well in point of attendance, in a measure this was due to the large and happy crowd that came over from Telkwa. A supper provided by the ladies of town, music, rendered by the Gray orchestra, a good floor and a merry bunch of dancers made the affair one of the most enjoyable held this winter.

There was born at the Bulkley Valley District Hospital on Thursday, March 19, a daughter, to Mr. and Mrs. Axel Peterson of Evelyn.

Cooper Wrinch, druggist of Hazelton, spent Thursday in town.

Sport Chat

Billy Gibson, manager, announces that Gene Tunney has despaired of getting a match with Mike McTigue for the world's light heavyweight title and henceforth will disport himself in the heavyweight ranks. Billy says Tunney's best weight now is 185 pounds and that he is ready to embark upon a campaign that will lead to a match with Dempsey.

With Tommy Gibbons and Harry Wills as the outstanding contenders, they are still talking down East of having Jack Dempsey fight this year in defence of his title. There is nothing definite about anything. Something is being accomplished however. Press agents are being well paid for efforts that will no doubt result in Dempsey's next battle being a record breaker as far as proceeds for Jack, Tex Rickard et al are concerned.

He and his brother are now running a big farm in the state. They bought it with their earnings in the mat game.
