You are not smart enough to find out for yourselves."

Germany And Its New President.

Though fears have been expressed of what will happen with Field Marshal Hindenburg as the president of Germany, it is not likely that anything serious in Europe really will happen. True it seems that the Nationalists have taken control in ng patients, grants by the mu- a permanent camp. Germany again but they will not be allowed to put into effect nicipality and the provincial any radical policies. Such predictions that the monarchy will be restored are hardly likely to come to pass. Too wide a gulf lies between the Nationalists and the Monarchists for that.

Germany, we are led to believe, has been for some time breaking the strict letter of the Versailles treaty and has been building up a large civil police which amounts to nothing more or less than a new army. Hindenburg will undoubtedly be in favor of continuing this practice. It is no more or no less necessary for the Allies to take steps to prevent this now than it was before Hindenburg became president.
