NIGHT LIFE OF NEW YORK

Tale of Boy Who Wanted to Have His Fling Among Bright Lights of City

In "Night Life of New York." Allan Dwan's latest picture here! tonight Rod La Rocque has the role of a rich man's son, a youth for whom the night holds no terrors except that of having to go home before daylight. The father, played by Ernest Torrence, has different ideas - as fathers so often have-and even | though the small town in which he and his son live offers all rather limited field for deviltry. the wants to cure his son of his wild habits.

The "Sure Cure"

In such a case, what could be more natural than to send the boy to New York with the object of letting him get himself intol a few real scrapes which would make him content with family! Hife in the old home town? Rod goes therefere to the wicked city with a bankroll and the parental blessing-in fact, father has his - son's good so much at heart that arranges for the boy to meet a certain celebrated lady in the city, a lady of the genus known It as "fast steppers." TE sat in the window-corner of the Pullman's smoking compartment, and breathed fatly and uttered large opinions in a suety voice. It grew late, as so often it does; and he put the quietus on a discussion with the ponderous statement:

"I don't read advertisements. They have no effect on me at all. I'd never miss them if they stopped printing 'em."

Then he glanced at his advertised watch and sought his lower birth.

In the morning the ad-skeptic contorted himself out of his advertised pyjamas into his advertised underwear, drew on his advertised socks, adjusted them with his advertised garters, got into his advertised clothes, laced his advertised shoes and added himself to the congestion in the wash-room.

There he shaved with an advertised razor, using advertised shaving cream; brushed his teeth with an advertised toothbrush and advertised dental cream, washed with advertised soap, and brushed his hair with an advertised brush. Buttoning his advertised collar on an advertised button, he neatly knotted his advertised tie, gave his advertised suspenders a tug or two, and finished dressing.

Let us leave him there, this man who never reads advertisements!

Everything worth using is advertised. Everything that isn't, rarely is.
