IWA Seeks to Release Poje

VANCOUVER (CP) — International Woodworkers of America will seek release from jail of Tony Poje, union official, pending appeal of his three month sentence and $3,000 fine.

Poje, business agent for the IWA local 1-80 at Duncan, was sentenced Tuesday by Chief Justice W. B. Farris, on a contempt of court charge. Fourteen other IWA members were fined $300 each.
Chief Justice Farris said the men "willfully disobeyed" a court injunction against picket action at Nanaimo during the summer lumber strike.

BLACKWOOD on Bridge
By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

Can It Be Better To Win Eight Tricks Than Nine?

Mr. Champion will never learn that it doesn't pay to give bridge lessons during a game. Especially when the pupil is Mr. Muzzy. On several hands preceding today's, he had lectured Mr. Muzzy on the subject of holdup plays. He paid for that in today's hand. And, of course, he will pay again.

Mrs. Keen led the six of spades and the five went on from dummy. Now, on the bidding, it was clear to Mr. Champion that his partner had practically nothing — certainly no quick entry of any kind. Therefore, if Mrs. Keen was going to run her spade suit, entry to her hand could be gained only in the spade suit itself. So Mr. Champion made the very fine play of the queen of spades. If Mr. Muzzy had the guarded king (as seemed likely) he could hardly duck since, as far as he knew, the ace of spades was on his left.

If Mr. Champion played the ace of spades at trick one, Mr. Muzzy could duck the second lead of the suit, win the third and then the connection between the defenders' hands would be broken. Beautifully thought out. But wait. Mr. Muzzy serenely played the deuce of spades on the first trick. Startled by this development, Mr. Champion now decided Mrs. Keen had the king of spades. He laid down the ace and another one. But Mr. Muzzy won the third round, lost a trick to the king of diamonds, but romped home with nine tricks. Mr. Champion let out a roar of rage. "Why didn't you win the first trick with the king of spades?" he demanded. "How many tricks would I have won then?" asked Mr. Muzzy, innocently. Mr. Champion swallowed hard. "Eight," he snarled, "but don't you see, you couldn't AFFORD to duck." "I don't get it," Mr. Muzzy replied. "How can it be better to win eight tricks than nine? Isn't this what you were telling me about—the holdup when I have only one stopper in your suit?" "But how did you know you had ANY stoppers when you let my queen of spades hold?" Mr. Muzzy screamed. "All I know," needed Mr. Muzzy, "is that I used the hold-up play and I made my contract."
