MIKE MANSON AND HIS PARTY

Conservative Leaves Behind Old Tactics and Praises Liberal Policies.

Opposition members got a shock Thursday when Michael Manson of Mackenzie, a stalwart old-line Tory, departed from the policy followed by other members of the opposition during the debates this season, says W. A. DeGraves in the Vancouver Star. He openly acknowledged the government's road policy was wisely conceived and ably carried out, and the handling of the forestry industry was not only all that could be desired, but that it was being handled in the only common-sense business-like way possible.

Mr. Manson not only took up the cudgels for the government, but in taking them up he rapped some of his colleagues across the knuckles when he referred to their utterances in the House and asked "What is the good of talking such nonsensical stuff as that?"

In the corridors as Mr. Manson was speaking, several of his colleagues voiced their opinions.

"If that's a Conservative speech then I'm a supporter of the Government," said Rolf Bruhn, of Salmon Arm. Other Conservative members also thought that, for an opposition speaker, Mr. Manson was a wonderful aid to the government, but they soothed themselves with the consolation that when it came to a vote Mr. Manson would be found behind his leader.

Mr. Manson was frankly eulogistic of the minister of public works and the manner in which government work was carried out in the Mackenzie district.

NEW BOOK OUT RALPH CONNOR

"Treading the Winepress" is His Latest Novel Just Published

A very large reading public will welcome the announcement of a new book by Ralph Connor, for ever since the days of "The Sky Pilot" he has been a favorite author with thousands, particularly in his native Canada. His new book, "Treading the Winepress," is a most interesting one, with plenty of action and thrill, an appealing love story and a touch of seriousness throughout that will give the careful reader pause to think. In spite of its Biblical title, however, it is not in any sense an "uplift" book. Nor is it a war story, though its action covers that period.

The really surprising part about this author is how much he packs into a story, and this latest work is no exception. It presents a group of very real characters, and a fund of rapidly moving events that hold the attention from beginning to end.

The story opens in a little Nova Scotia fishing village, and much of the action takes place there. The quaint folk of that vicinity are the principal characters. Tony Mackinroy, the handsome cultured son of a marvellous father who has been a fisherman, sailor and naval officer in his day, is the central figure. To this quiet village comes a party of American tourists, young ladies and gentlemen, and during their stay their yacht is wrecked and of course Tony goes to the rescue. He falls in love with Dina, one of the girls of the party and she with him, but it is not till the outbreak of war makes separation imminent that either of them speaks.

Tony does special service during the war, in charge of his own gunboat. The war section of the book is comparatively short, though its influence is felt through the whole story, but the surprising twist that is given to the whole chain of events. A big powerful theme has been handled in a most sincere and convincing way.

HISTORY AND OTHER BOOKS ARE ADDED TO LIBRARY COLLECTION

"The Human Parson," by Sheppard.

CANNOT DISMISS SCHOOL TEACHERS ILLEGAL MANNER

Action Brought Against Board of School Trustees Results in Damages and Costs

EDMONTON, Dec. 8.—Affecting the teaching profession and all school boards of the province as being the first judicial interpretation of the new form of contract between teachers and school boards, as approved by the minister of education under the School Act, a judgment has been handed down by his honor Judge Lees at Wetaskiwin. The judgment is from the action brought by Melville E. McGregor, a high school teacher of High River against the Black Mud school district of Millet for damages for illegal, wrongful dismissal. In the result the plaintiff is given judgment for $90 and full costs of the action.

McGregor claimed that the school board did not hold a meeting for the purpose of giving him the privilege of attending to hear the board's reasons for proposing to terminate the contract, but merely sent him a letter notifying him that 30 days from date his contract would be terminated. He quit teaching on February 20, a Friday, but returning on the Monday was prevented from going on with his duties. He secured another position three weeks later and sued for loss of salary and cost of moving.

The defence was that there was no contract of hiring inasmuch as no resolution authorizing the board to enter into the contract had been passed.

BILLIARD PARLOR TAKES LEADERSHIP

Interesting First Division Billiard Tournament was Played Last Evening

The Prince Rupert Billiard Parlor made a good showing in last night's first division billiard tournament by winning four of the five games and defeating the Great War Veterans by an aggregate score of 1215 to 1083. The victory puts the Billiard Parlor ahead of the Vets in the league standing by a margin of five points so the two teams will start the second half of the season after the New Year almost on even terms. Neither George McIlmoyle, regular first man for the Billiard Parlor, nor Col. McMordie, first man for the Vets, participated in the tournament.

The individual scores were as follows:

C. Balagno (Billiard Parlor) 215; Sgt. Jebson (Vets.) 250.

George Waugh, 250; Fred Pyle, 219.

J. Hillman, 250; J. Andrews, 203

W. Mitchell, 250; Dr. J. A. West, 231.

M. Andrews, 250; G. P. Tinker, 180.

The league standing is as follows:

P. R. B. P.	3	4558	1140
G. W. V. A.	4	4553	1138

SPORT CHAT

Young Jack Dempsey, Tacoma light heavyweight, won a decision over Harry Dillon of Winnipeg after a fast six round bout in Tacoma last week. Dempsey floored Dillon with a left hook to the chin in the last round after wearing the Canadian down with body punches in the earlier rounds.

Vic Foley, Vancouver bantamweight boxer, who is now in Toronto preparing for his title bout with Bobby Eber on Friday of this week, has been officially recognized by the Ontario Boxing Commission as "the only legitimate champion of any division in "Canada."

The leading amateur football clubs of the Old Country have been thrown into consternation by the sudden demand for income tax payments on the clubs' operations of the past five years. The authorities have refused to make allowances even for capital expended on ground improvements. An instance of the burdens on the clubs is that St. Albans will be required to pay $5,400.
