Salmon Production in South Not Ten Percent of Its Former Volume

anning operations must cease if industry is to be preserved says government report

VICTORIA, August 1. - With its sockeye production reneed to less than ten per cent of its former volume, the Fraser iver can never regain its position as the greatest fishing stream; the world unless operations cease for a period long enough give the salmon a chance to rehabilitate themselves accordig to the annual report of the Fisheries Department.

In recent years, says the report, sockeye spawning has been onfined almost exclusively to the lower reaches of the river and e run above Yate Canon, which formerly furnished the most valuable part of the pack, is now so reduced as to have little commercial significance. "If no change is introduced in
