JANET SMITH CASE ANALYZED

Vancouver Star Defends Colonel McMullin and his Department.

UNHEALTHY ATMOSPHERE

(Vancouver Star) Correspondents of The Star ask why it has changed its position on the Janet Smith case.

It has not. It pressed for investigation from the beginning, and, if necessary, it would still continue to press for the same thing. But investigation is proceeding. One of the most efficient police bodies to be found anywhere is handling the case. The Star has complete confidence in Chief McMullin, in Inspectors Owen and Cruikshanks, and in their subordinates.

Extreme Difficulties

These men are working under extreme difficulties. Municipal bungling at the beginning, followed by well-meaning but inexperienced attempts to assist, have destroyed clues and have cast a fog of uncertainty over every available item of evidence. And, on top of all, busy tongues have added to the din and confusion.

What is wanted today is a calm and judicial atmosphere. This is necessary for the sake of the memory of Janet Smith herself and in order that Wong Foon Sing may have the fair and impartial trial to which he is entitled under the British system of justice.

Every suggestion that the officers of the law are not honestly performing their duties to the best of their ability adds to the difficulties of the position. When The Sun takes advantage of the situation to turn it into a political attack on the attorney-general, it is but following its own worst traditions. It thereby undoes with one hand the good it sometimes tries to do with the other in building up confidence in British Columbia.

Machine Working

Whatever mistakes have been made by individuals, the law machine of the province is working steadily and consistently towards a solution of the case. The Star believes today that everything that can be done is being done, and that the integrity, courage and ability of the provincial police are beyond question.

Other countries and other times have seen unsolved mysteries. Scotland Yard has failed

FRUIT CROP IS NOT VERY GOOD

Scarcity of Strawberries and Apricots Owing to Failure

PRICES OF PRODUCE

Housewives who contemplate preserving Terrace strawberries should not delay making arrangements to secure them, as the quantity reaching this city is about 50 per cent of that which came in last year. The crop is very poor this year, and the prices will not be cheaper or the quality better than now. Last evening only four crates arrived by express for this city, whereas 100 crates could easily be used on the local market. A 24 basket crate, extra fancy, is now selling at $3.75, and choice grade at $3.25. Cheaper berries for jam will possibly be on the market.

New arrivals this week end in the vegetables line will include green corn on the cob, and the retail price will be two heads for 25c. The price will be easier within the next two weeks when local B.C. crop comes in. Wax and green beans will also be on the local market this week end and the opening price will be 35c per lb. The price should decline before another week. New green peas are now plentiful and are selling at 3 lbs. for 25c. Bing cherries, for canning, in prime condition, are plentiful and preserving of these should be general at the present time. Australian grapes are due this week and the retail price will be 10c per lb.

Apricot Crop Failure

The B.C. apricot crop is practically a failure this year. There will be no carload lots arrive in Vancouver this year and the local market will depend primarily on Washington and the price will not be much lower than $2.50 per crate. The time for preserving these will be within the next two weeks.

New season's apples are due this week end, and the retail price has not been set as yet. Kasaba melons are arriving this week end and will retail at 10c per lb. Honeydew melons and Persian melons are also due before the week end.

The first shipment of Bartlett pears arrives this week and the opening price will be 75c per dozen.

Red currants are now arriving and black currants will be plentiful next week. Raspberries will also arrive in good quantities.

The butter market is a little higher and the first of the week will see an advance from the present price of 45c to 50c per lb., or two lbs. for 95c.

Flour has taken a drop, possibly due to the good reports of the crop conditions on the prairies, and is now selling at $2.85 for No. 1 hard wheat flour.

Don't Judge from Appearances!

THE earth looks flat enough! That's why so many thousand years came and went before our ancestors even suspected the terrestrial globe of being round. Their eyes deceived them!

Don't depend on appearances to guide you right. Don't buy goods on the strength of looks alone. Merchandise with a well-known name has the call. Only the maker of a good product can afford to advertise his name. Attempts to popularize unworthy goods cannot succeed.

Wise merchants and manufacturers seek the good papers to tell the stories of their wares. The publishers seek the reputable advertising for their readers guidance. Well-informed buyers seek news of good merchandise through the columns of the best papers.

This proves the value of advertising. Neither advertiser nor publisher can prosper without your patronage. Therefore, it is to their advantage to cater to you. They do it, too.

It is distinctly to your advantage to be guided by the messages they lay before you—the advertisements.

Read them regularly!

One cannot burn the candle at both ends

You wouldn't light a candle at both ends and expect it to last very long. And you can't attend your many duties as wife and mother, then pile on wash-day labor, and expect to keep yourself fresh and vigorous. Why not let us take care of washday toil and trouble? One of our many services will fit exactly both your needs and your purse. And you can "keep the home fires burning" without burning the candle at both ends.
