Union Of B.C. Municipalities Endorse City Manager Plan.

The city manager plan of civic government has been endorsed by the Union of B.C. Municipalities at their annual convention. That is falling in line with the modern trend. It means that before long we shall be able to have a city manager if we want it.

The present method of government by committees will be set aside as obsolete and the more efficient method will take its place.

Whalen Company Plan Reorganization.

The Whalen Pulp and Paper Company has a reorganization scheme in hand that promises to give the present owners of the property a chance to recover part at least of what they invested.

It is to be hoped that whatever scheme is adopted will protect the interests of the present owners. There have been too many cases where the owners have been sold out to large outside interests who have reaped the benefit of the failure of the parent concern.

Miners Of Britain Again Dissatisfied.

Again there is a tense situation in Great Britain over the question of wages in the coal industry. The government stepped into the breach recently to prevent a strike and the men went to work again.

Britain depends upon her coal for her industrial life. Cut off the coal supply and everything is cut off. Every time the coal mines are closed, even temporarily, much business is lost to the country, and very often it never returns.

No Country Can Advance Much Faster Than Others.

If any country advances faster than others in the matter of high wages, it suffers loss of business and there is consequent unemployment. In Britain the wages are much higher than in many other European countries, hence business goes to the other countries.

In Canada wages are higher in the West than the East, hence most of the factories are in the East. The West cannot compete.

By the use of labor saving machinery and by increased efficiency a country may be able to pay high wages and yet compete successfully, just as does Henry Ford in the United States. That is exceptional and does not disprove the general rule that the business goes to the country or the section of the country where wages are low.

Wages Should Be High As Possible.

We believe in high wages. We believe in men being paid as much as it is possible to pay them and still make a success of the business. In cases where wages are high there has to be a spirit of co-operation with a view to getting the best possible results.

MUSICAL DAY ROTARY CLUB

Good Program Enjoyed by Members at Luncheon Yesterday Afternoon

ADDRESS ON NURSING.

There was an amusing day at the luncheon of the Rotary Club yesterday afternoon when the program was in charge of Colonel J. W. Nicholls. The Westholme orchestra played several selections, and there were vocal numbers by Mrs. Sid Johnstone and Miss Nada Johnson.

There was a short variation in the program when Miss Randall gave an address on the nursing profession. She said it mattered little whether the hospitals were carried on as they are today, whether there was a scheme of health insurance or a hospital tax was levied.

The hospital in the early days meant shelter and a certain amount of nursing care. It was a place in which to die. Today it was a place where sickness was prevented and a little spat added to life.

The nurses who cared for the sick had little reward for their services. They cared for the young Canadians coming into the world, watched over the mother and nursed her back to health, looked after the cripples and the sick, many of whom came to them without friends in the world.

REVELLE IS STORY OF WAR AND AFTER

It Begins in 1918 and Shows the Great Events Which Closed the Horrible Calamity.

September, 1918. The Great War is nearing to its close and London is a whirlpool of hectic artificial gaiety. The world is going to pieces; laugh while there is yet time. . . . happy laughter, wild laughter, hollow laughter! Any laughter rather than the laughter of the guns. . . . but above all the laughter of the flappers who live for one end only; one burning passionate conviction, the boys who are back on a few days' leave. Give them a good time!

Mothers of sons sit alone. They hear the never-ending tramp of soldiers marching to the grave.

Typical of all the flappers is Micky. Before the war she lived with her brother, Fred, over a tiny greengrocer's shop, sewing a little and keeping the two rooms clean. . . . a little mother. Then war took Fred from his work and Micky carried on alone, brave as a soldier, happy as a child, waiting for the bloodshed to end.

Widow's Shop

Downstairs, the tiny greengrocer's shop is kept by a widow, the mother of three fine boys; Sam, dour, strong and grim; Ted, a careless, happy youth, and the Kid, the youngest, a thinker, but ever a boy. And Kid and Mick are just a little fonder of each other than mere friends.

Above Mick live a quaint pair of maiden sisters, the Misses Fitch, existing on a pittance and very respectable. They had missed the glamour of love, but war had shaken their reserve and stirred in them feelings which they hardly knew they possessed.

And then the Great Night! The boys are coming home! Seven days' leave! The quiet little house is all agog with excitement which even the maiden sisters share. Mick is a flurry of joyous expectation. Mother is quietly happy, waiting with radiant smile for the brief re-union with her boys.

War is Over

Then Armistice! London raving mad! The hell of war is over! Hotels and streets thronged with happy, riotous crowds. I is early morning before Mick and mother return home. There is a letter on the mat. The light of mother's eyes goes out. A white-faced girl just moans and falls. A great silence.
