FORMER PRINCE GEORGE MAN IS MURDER VICTIM

Robert Tyhurst Done to Death in Wilds of Northern Quebec

Robert Tyhurst, who for some time lived at Prince George where he was investigating possibilities of establishing a pulp and paper mill, was murdered on December 4, at St. Michel des Saints, a village in the north of Quebec, where he was on business in connection with his duties as manager of the St. Maurice Paper Co., Ltd.

Since the brief report came through of his murder, it has been reported that two men have been apprehended and have made an appearance in police court.

Shot In Office

Information obtained by the Provincial detectives and testimony heard at the inquest on December 5, when a verdict of murder was returned, was that Tyhurst was seated in a chair at his desk in the office of his home talking to Louis Charron, an employee of the company, when the shooting occurred. A moment before, Armand Bourdeau another employee of the company, who had been in the room, left at Tyhurst's request to order the automobile for Saturday morning, as Tyhurst intended going into the bush to watch the progress of the work there. Bourdeau had just closed the door when the shot rang out and Tyhurst attempted to stand up, but collapsed in his chair.

For a moment both Bourdeau and Charron were so surprised that they did not move, and then both rushed to the manager's assistance. They found that he was dead. The bullet had entered the head just under an ear and the jaw was fractured.

Mysterious Auto Seen

Neighbors heard the shot, as the manager's house is located in the middle of the village. As they came from their homes they saw a large automobile turning from the side street that runs beside Tyhurst's home, and turn into the main road and speed away to the south. It was so far away even then that no one was able to give an accurate description of the automobile nor estimate how many persons it contained. One neighbor, however, recalled that the automobile, a few minutes before the shooting had gone up the side street. It is thought that it turned, and as it passed the window behind Tyhurst as he sat in his chair, it slowed down and the shot was fired. After the shooting Dr. Portancier, of St. Michel, was summoned.

Bullet Holes in Glass

Examination of the house by the detectives, upon their arrival at St. Michel on Saturday evening showed that there was a small hole in the glass of the double window, while in the pane of the inside window the hole was considerably larger. Investigation showed that there was no possibility of the shot having been a stray one fired by a hunter, as the house is at the junction of two streets in the centre of the village.

The detective questioned other employees of the company at the village closely, and found that Tyhurst had had no trouble with any of his men there.

Cut 'Phone Wires

To assure a safe getaway, the murderer or murderers cut the telephone wire connecting the main line with the bungalow. The telephone wire was also cut at each side of the village of St. Zenon, where there was a central telephone, thus preventing any communication between the village of St. Michel and outside points. The nearest point where a telephone could be found on Saturday morning was at St. Felix de Valos, fifty-seven miles from St. Michel, and it was from there that word first came to the Provincial Police at Montreal.

Inquiries were made at Joliette, at St. Gabriel and at St. Felix concerning the automobile, but nothing definite was obtained.

Believe Revenge Motive

Detectives investigating the case are of the opinion that the motive for the crime is revenge. It is believed that in handling his business Mr. Tyhurst may have incurred the ire of some men whom he had at times to discharge or lay off.

A relative of the dead man, Mr. J. Robertson, of 263 Bishop Street, Montreal, stated to the Montreal Gazette, that he had heard Tyhurst say six weeks ago that his life had been threatened, detectives believe by a former employee of the company. Mr. Robertson and J. P. MacLaurin, a friend of Tyhurst, were of the opinion that this threat had come through an anonymous letter.

At the request of the St. Maurice Paper Company, Limited, agents of the Pinkerton National Detective Agency started work on the case to assist the Provincial police.

The funeral of Tyhurst took place from the residence of his cousin, D. Robertson, Bishop St., Montreal.

The esteem in which the late Mr. Tyhurst was held by his personal friends and business associates was shown by the mass of flower offerings, among which was a wreath from two of the murdered manager's office boys.

Shortly before he was struck by the fatal bullet, Mr. Robertson had been talking over the long-distance wire to his wife in Three Rivers, and had told her that he was going to bring her and their three-year-old son James to Montreal to live in the near future.

CANADA GOOSE SHOT IN SOUTH

Was Leader of Flock of Brown Geese: Mate Returned to Scene of Disaster

PARSONS, Kans., Dec. 23. — When a mammoth white Canadian snow goose was shot at the Island, in a bend of the Neosho, it terminated what is believed to have been a love story in birddom.

Hunters of the community believe that the death of the goose was the final story in a tragic story of bravery, noble leadership, lasting love and fidelity—the sequel to a tragedy enacted two years ago that was marked by news stories and editorials throughout the land.

Stalked Three Years

That was the woeful death of "Snow King," so dubbed by his slayer, who had stalked the bird for three years as he made his southward flight dauntlessly leading a flock of brown geese. Majestically the great bird soared over the river and field where his hunter lay, cleverly keeping his distance. But finally man's carefully laid plans were fruitful. Disguised as a cow, with bell around his neck and gun holding the tail in proper position, he deceived the goose when it stopped to feed in a cow pasture. And Snow King fell.

At intervals since Snow King's death, a great white goose had been noticed about the scene of the tragedy. Farmers talked of its beauty; hunters coveted it—but it always eluded them. It always returned, however, to the scene of Snow King's last stand. It is believed the bird would join different flocks for it was seen to arrive with one bunch and then another, but always remaining after the others moved on southward.

Pretty Story

Sentiment of the community, mixed with bits of out-door lore, have woven a pretty story about this second bird, which has been called "Canadian Beauty."

One hunter recalled having wounded a goose and of keeping it in camp. Its wild called and called for it and finally ventured into camp rather than be separated from its mate. Another added that when a goose mates, it mates for life; that if it loses its mate it will not stay long with any flock and will fly and swim and feed alone.

SPORT CHAT

The basketball players of the Prince Rupert High School are to be congratulated on the showing they made at Anyox in the series at the end of last week and the youngsters at the smelter town are to be complimented on having got the best of them. The best teams undoubtedly won in a set of games that left nothing to be desired as far as the closeness of the contests was concerned: The locals may have been suffering a little through having not had quite as much practice as they might have had but that is neither here or there. In view of these matches, Prince Rupert fans will look forward with a great deal of interest to the return games to be played here early in the New Year.

Lew Perfetti of Long Island City will meet Fidel La Barba of Los Angeles, world's flyweight champion, in a boxing tournament to be staged tonight in Madison Square Garden, New York City, for the Christmas fund. Perfetti substitutes for Joe Lazarus of Bayonne, N.J., who was forced, on account of illness, to cancel the engagement. The match will go six rounds because Perfetti is under 21 and cannot fight over any longer route in New York State.
