HONEY-MOONING IN THE GAY NINETIES

MONTREAL Paper Tells How Bride and Groom Conducted Themselves in the Old Days.

MONTREAL, July 20.—"Honey-mooning in Montreal in the Gay Nineties," says the Montreal Gazette. "What did John and Mary do then, poor things? No so badly after all. John bought a tandem with gleaming nickel trimmings—'You'll look sweet upon the seat of a bicycle built for two!' he sang gallantly as Mary and he paddled along Sherbrook St. They both did quite a little shopping at So and So's Annual Clearance Sale. Mary bought a house jersey for 50 cents, a pair of colored fabric gloves for 12 cents, and a pair of kid buttoned boots for $1.26, while John indulged in a pair of calf lace boots for $1.80 and some fancy tweed trousering at 45 cents a yard.

"They were a dashing couple as they stepped off the train, John with his light grey topper the exact shade of the stripe in his elegantly tight trousers which came well down over his buttoned boots, his figured cravat with its diamond horse-shoe pin filling the small triangle above his flowered waist-coat, and his drooping black moustaches which, in his opinion, made him look even older than his twenty-one years. And Mary! Mary's travelling costume was electric green velvet with a smart short jacket trimmed with jet em-broinery over a yellow silk blouse criss-crossed with black insertion. Mary's footwear? As she stepped gaily along, occasional glimpses of a patent leather toe-cap could be seen—Mary's skirts obeyed the dictates of fashion and swept the ground, while her hat with its saucy cluster of plumes resting lightly above her coiffure made a praiseworthy attempt to sweep the sky."
