MILK FROM PRIZE HERDS

Pacific Milk yesterday received a letter from Mrs. Andrews, of Seattle, who is visiting friends in Nanaimo.

She likes Pacific Milk and wants to know what gives it such richness and fine flavor. This good milk comes from prize herds. To these and to the pasture lands of Fraser Valley, our rare climate and careful handling must go the credit for the richness and natural flavor.

MOUNTAIN CLIMBING IS AGAIN IN SEASON

Party Yesterday Climbed Mount Morse and Found Snow All Gone From Top.

The mountain climbing season is here again. Yesterday a party climbed to the top of Mount Morse going up from a point near the Prince Rupert cannery. The view from the top was superb in spite of a slight heat haze and the outline of the Queen Charlotte Islands shore could be glimpsed.

Mount Morse is not as wet as usual at this time of year and there is no snow at the topmost crevices, although there is a small pool of water there, sufficient for the use of climbers.

Some climbers also scaled Mt. Oldfield on Kaien Island.

ELEPHANTS AT CIRCUS BROKE TRAINER'S RIBS

Took to Woods at Nelson Following Earlier Breakaway at Edmonton

NELSON, Aug. 9. — Five elephants at a circus went on a rampage at Cranbrook while being unloaed and one man, the boss elephant trainer, sustained several broken ribs. The animals were frightened by the barking of a dog and took to the woods. The animals are still missing.

The same animals went on a stampede at Edmonton recently when the trainers declared that the high altitude affected them. In telling of the latter occurrence an Edmonton paper states that 14 elephants from the Sells-Floto circus recently stampeded through the west end of the city and went on a wild rampage which did not end until the last of the missing "bulls" was found in a clump of brush near 107th Avenue and 117th Street. Frightened by the yapping of a little dog, a small elephant called Mary, which, with three other elephants, had just been hitched to an animal wagon at the C.P.R. depot, trumpeted shrilly and then with a mighty heave broke away from the harness and started on the run up Jasper Avenue. The fright was contagious, and before the circus men could do anything to prevent it, 14 elephants were making off through the railway yards and along Jasper Avenue. Eight of the animals were soon recaptured, but six were loose for several hours.

Crashing through the fence of the general hospital garden, three of the elephants ploughed their way through potatoes and berry patches, sending clouds of dust in the air as they rushed on to smash their way through fences on the other side. Meantime other elephants were careening along Jasper and adjacent streets, trumpeting as they ran and knocking down fences like matchwood as they tore through gardens and across vacant lots.
