HAIR PULLING

NORMA TALMADGE AND GERTRUDE ASTOR BETWEEN RIVALS IN "KIKI"

Norma Talmadge and Gertrude Astor recently engaged in a hair-pulling match in Hollywood. They fought like a pair of wildcats, scratching and kicking, until the stage hands separated them.

When the battle ended the honors were about even. Miss Astor had lost part of her hair, while Miss Talmadge was minus her skirt, which was torn off during the melee.

Then they shook hands amidst the applause of many interested spectators. Miss Talmadge and Miss Astor weren't really angry; it was all part of the "shooting" of "Kiki," Norma's latest picture showing here at the week-end, BATTLE NECESSARY The story of "Kiki" calls for a knockdown, drag-out battle between Miss Talmadge, playing the part of a Paris waif, and Miss Astor, as a French theatrical star. They are rivals-in the picture-for the heart of a theatre manlager, Ronald Cloman.

Director Clarence Brown declared that t should be a real fight, with no doubles or love pats.

"Fight!" urged Brown. "You're bitter enemies. French women-when they get mad enough-make Carmen and other wild ones look like kindergarten girls. Now, get in front of the camera and light-and keep on fighting until I

OTTAWA, Oct. 4.-Diamond Jenness Chief of the Division of Anthropology is the Victoria Memorial Museum, has just returned to Ottawa from a four months' field trip to Bering Strait, Alaska, where he was excavating some of the ancient Eskimo ruins and studying the local dialects in an effort to determine the origin and antiquity of an ancient Eskimo civilization that has left its traces in Canada from the Mackenzie River Delta right across to Hudson Bay. He reports that travelling in this region is very uncertain on account of the small size of the coastal vessels, the lack of sheltered harbors, and the storminess of middle and late summer. Much of his work was necessarily in the nature of a reconnaissance, but he was fortunate in making some interesting discoveries.

to Asia, he unearthed ruins belonging to four distinct periods, all of which preceded the discovery of Alaska by Europeans; and-significantly enough- the remains in the ruins of the second period coincided very closely with those from the oldest known ruins in Arctic Canada. Subsequent excavations on the Diomede Islands confirmed those at Wales, and revealed also the presence of a still earlier culture of which no traces have yet been found within Canadian territory. The most remarkable feature of this earlier culture was some beautiful curvilinean engraving, curisian natives in the South Pacific; but since contact with Melanesia seems en tirely out of the question, one will have to seek among the neighboring Indian tribes, or in Near-East Asia, for the sources of this strange Eskimo art, so unlike what we know from Eskimos
