DIGBY ISLAND

FISH PACKER WENT ASHORE BARLY THIS MORNING-EXPECTED TO FLOAT THIS AFTERNOON WITHOUT DAMAGE

About five o'clock this morning, on a falling tide, the well known local owerboat Towena hit the rocks on Digby Island, just the other side of Ritchie Point and later in the morning he was left high and dry but was expected to be floated this afternoon. First news of the Towena's plight was brought to port by Capt. Andy Johnstone of the steamer Catala. The Prince Rupert Boat House was informed and ▲ Capt. Swanson sent the Pachena, Capt. Paul Armour, to investigate. It was · found that the vessel was undamaged and that she would probably float on this afternoon's tide.

The Towena, which has been engaged in salmon fishing, was on her way from . Metlakatla to the Skeena River when a the stranding occurred and a young boy A was at the wheel at the time.
