FLORIDA BOOM ABOUT BURST

Newspaper Discusses Other Booms and the After Effects on Speculators

(Ketchikan Chronicle)

There is no longer doubt that the Florida boom has burst. There have been individual reports to this effect, but now it is officially admitted. Business is dull in Florida, and the tourists have come back north much earlier than usual, just why, we have not learned. This makes business still duller. The stocks of railroads in Florida have suffered a decline, because it is expected they will not earn as much as when the boom was on. The reason for the Florida collapse was that central property cost more than it would rent for, and houses and lots more than the average home-maker was willing to pay.

We have read of real estate booms before. We recall the ones at Duluth and Kansas City. Many thousands of dollars went into both these places, and has never come out. Values were on too high a scale, and there are house lots in Kansas City which are not worth what was paid for them 40 years ago. Most of those who bought in the Kansas City and Duluth booms got frozen out by the assessments for sewer, curbing, paving, water, gas, etc. They let their lots be sold by the tax collector.

Values in Florida are always several jumps ahead of the increase in population, and you always had to pay more than present worth of property. Population will probably continue increasing fast in Florida because its attractiveness for an all-the-year-around residence is becoming increasingly recognized. But values got too far ahead in this last boom and the time at last came when there was a surplus of sellers and a deficit of buyers. There is where Florida is now at, and it may stay there for longer than we might at first suppose. It takes a lot holder who has been able to sell out at any moment at $50,000 profit a long time to come down to accepting not only a loss of the profit, but then some.

100 PASSENGER AIRPLANE MADE GERMAN FIRM

DESSAU, Germany, April 15.—The Junkers Company has completed a model of a 100 passenger airplane, which, it is estimated, can fly across the Atlantic ocean in twenty-four hours.

If successful, it will forever replace the Zeppelin as it would carry an equal weight; it would cost less to build and considerably less to operate, needing only benzine and no helium, and also would be safer.

"We have worked out the scheme completely and believe it entirely feasible," said one of the chief engineers. "Naturally the great difficulty is the engine, that is, to have a sufficient power without too great a weight—a problem that also existed with the Zeppelin—but that, also we believe ourselves competent to overcome if given a free hand."

It is explained that under the Versailles treaty Germany is not permitted to build a workable model or to make a trial flight.

The Junkers monster model has virtually no boat, the cabins, kitchen, and other compartments being built into the thick metal wings, as is also the engine room under the patent held by Junkers.

WAR ON JAZZ IN COUNTRY DISTRICTS

LEEDS, England, April 15.—War on jazz has been declared by the English Folk Dance Society which has launched a campaign to establish a centre for the folk dance as a memorial to Cecil Sharp, its founder.

It is planned to popularize the old-fashioned dances, particularly among the less sophisticated of modern folk in the smaller towns of the country, ignoring cities until they begin to jazz themselves out.

BONUS TO MEN WHEN THEY GET MARRIED

DUBLIN, April 15.—Bachelors have been placed on par with women as to salary by the Irish Free State civil service.

If single men enter the civil service and marry later they get a lump sum payment on marriage equivalent to twelve months back pay of the difference between the two scales. In addition allowance subject to a maximum of 75 pounds is payable to them in respect of each child up to the age of sixteen.

SOUTH AFRICAN COLOR BAR BILL

Bishop of Pretoria Comes Out Strongly Against Measure as Wrong Step

PROTECT WHITE WORKER

Symbolizes Inherent Inferiority of Native and Resolve to Use Him

LONDON, April 15.—There are many thinking people in South Africa who are alarmed at the color segregation policy of the present government. These people have found an outspoken champion of their thoughts in the Bishop of Pretoria, Dr. Talbot, who has not only attacked the native and Asiatic policy of the government, but has now shown many of the dangers and the fallacies that lie hidden in the Color Bar Bill. It would seem that this bill, limiting the labor activities of the native, will shortly be on the Statute-book of the Union. A solemn warning of the probable consequences has been written by the Bishop of Pretoria in the March issue of "Kingdom," the official organ of his diocese.

All Souls Equal

Beginning with the argument that Christianity stands or falls by its assertion of the equal value of all souls before God, Dr. Talbot goes on:

At present the great mass of native life is at a lower level of human attainment than the European. Not that we can say that the native is inherently inferior to the European. Evidence from America of what has been attained by the negro suggests that he is not inherently inferior, but that he is in the main at a lower level of development compared with the European. It would be sheer sentimentality to deny this.

And yet this conclusion does not mitigate my deep-seated dismay at the trend of present South African legislation at the expense of the native. I cannot think that the need to protect the white worker from being swamped by native labor justifies the introduction of the principle of the color bar into the law of the land. I do not disregard unsympathetically the anxiety of white labor lest it be swamped, for, after all, it is working with a partner—namely, capital—that has evinced again and again a terrible predilection for cheap labor. I noticed that the President of the Chamber of Mines in a recent public speech had little more to contribute to the discussion of the problems of South African industry than the contention that the one thing to do was to import and to keep on importing as much cheap labor to the mines as possible. But I do believe that the protection of the white worker should be secured by regulation within industry, and not by legislation.

An Evil Omen

The passing of the bill by the Assembly is an evil omen for the future. Even though it is leniently and gently administered it cannot but engender a sense in the intelligent native's mind that the white man means to keep the black man down. It is not only a question of its actual provisions, nor its administration, but its symbolic character. It will symbolize the inherent inferiority of the native and the resolve to use him only as a means to white convenience. It will hang in front of native hope and aspiration that which suppresses, confines, and excludes. I think it is a blind and essentially tyrannical measure, and if it is finally ratified it will have inevitably disastrous results to the true peace and wealth of South Africa.

It makes it worse that the bill includes Indians with natives in its scope, for the argument about actual inferiority is not nearly so strong in regard to the Indian as in regard to the Bantu. There are in India, and there may well be in South Africa, Indians who though of dark skin are on a level with the finest flower of European culture. That an able gifted son of India should be barred on the ground of color from rising to his fullest development and capacity is a great wrong, and it brings out into added relief the injustice done to the Bantu people.

In Wrong Direction

Surely this legislation is in the wrong direction—namely, that of discouraging native growth. The right direction is that of encouraging native progress. If the black man can rise to the level of capacity with the white men, then it should be the endeavor of the white men not to keep them out but to bring them in at the white level of conditions and reward. This would entail the surmounting of great difficulties. It would be no short cut to this end, it would be no solution of the native problem. There is no short cut, there is no solution. There is no short cut through this whole business. But it is the right direction. It would fill the native's soul with hope and aspiration. It would leave the road open before him.

No doubt some people will say to me, "Yes, but the Color Bar Bill is part of the Prime Minister's general scheme of native policy. It is part of the policy of differential treatment—viz., working towards the development of native life in native reserves in the country and the securing of the fullest industrial opportunity for Europeans." Well, I think we must do our best to believe that, and I intend to do so. But the Color Bar Bill is a wretched preliminary to the rest of the policy. It is no better than passing a harrow over a cricket pitch before the match is begun.
