CANTONESE ARMIES WINNING IN CHINA.

The Cantonese armies have been steadily sweeping northward until they threaten to overrun all China with a possibility that they will take over the Government in the near future. This arouses the interest of everyone in the party that has been able to achieve such signal successes.

The Canton Government represents the Kuomintang Party, which is the largest, and certainly the most active, political party in China. It was founded by the late Sun Yat-sen and has passed J. through several phases since the overthrow of the Manchu dynasty fifteen years ago. In the early days of the Republic it professed the most advanced democratic and constitutional principles that were then current in the world. It failed politically with the failure of Parliamentary government in Peking; it suffered severe reverses in the north, but was able, with a few interruptions, to retain power in Canton throughout the period of civil war. At the same time its influence has made itself continually felt in the movement of modern ideas in China, in educational work and in various manifesta- The resolution, an artistic word picture tions of the nationalist spirit. Of late the party has recovered in Mr. Brady's able style, was as folstrength, mainly-as its supporters frankly admit-owing to its alli- lows ance with Soviet Russia.

IS ORGANIZED ON SOVIET SYSTEM.

The methods of military and political organization through life-long and meritorious service he has which the Cantonese have won their victories were taught them by rendered to the Conservative party and Moscow. The weapons of the strike, of the boycott, and of rioting have been used with a deliberation and a persistent purpose that have not hitherto been observed in China. On the other hand, capably rendered to the people of this party discipline has been strengthened, and, according to the gen-province. eral report, the discipline of the Kuomintang armies contrasts fa- "Mr. Bowser entered the Legislature vorably with that of the armies of the various war lords, In a word, in 1903 and was appointed attorneythe aid given to the Kuomintang by Moscow-not so much through general in 1906, when Sir Richard Mcthe supply of munitions as through the dispatch of agents and ad- Bride was premier. IS NOT AT PRESENT COMMUNIST MOVEMENT.

This, of course, does not mean that the Kuomintang is a Communist Party, or that, if it does defeat all its enemies, China will be transformed into a Communist State. That at present is not the intention or even the hope of the Moscow Bolshevists. The principle laid down by Lenin for Soviet propaganda among the peoples of Asia was that no attempt should be made to convert them immediately to Communism, but that their national discontents should be fomented and their national movements stimulated and organized with a view to a systematic attack on what he called "the capitalistic principles of government and continuand imperialistic Powers." This procedure has been closely follow- ously placed the people's interests before ed by the Bolshevists in all the ramifications of their work in China. Their influence is plainly seen in the Hong-kong boycott and in the organization of that anti-British movement throughout China which has already caused such enormous losses to British trade. They boast of the successes of the Kuomintang, and claim them as their vancement for the good of that party. own. In a speech at the recent Communist Party conference in "In valuations of citizenship one such Moscow Bukharin said:-"The fact of the Chinese revolution and man is worth ten other men of sordic the victorious march of the united forces is of the greatest import- motive and of selfish spirit. "I was greatly Distressed With Pains in the Back"

Mr. Alfred McNeill, Chapel Rock, Alta., writes:

"During the winter of 1920-21, was greatly distressed with pains back and felt tired and depressed most of the time. Particularly during the night I was roubled with frequent urination, ome nights having to rise almost every hour. I tried several different treatments without success, until finally I began using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and they relieved my condition before I had finshed the first box. I am feeling better this summer than I have for years, and although in my 67th possible, however, that it may for some time be in a position to! speak with a certain authority for a considerable portion of China and that the only way to get a good many things done will be by dealing with it directly. Direct dealing, in fact, has already had some success, both at Canton and on the Yangtze.

Evidently the farce of making diplomatic protests to a powerless nominal government against the constant infringement of treaties by war-lords, revolutionaries, and uncontrollable bandits cannot go on much longer. Great care is needed, however, before deciding on an alternative. If the Canton Government should succeed in establishing itself as the National Government of China the Powers will, of course, have no choice but to deal with it as such.

FRIENDLY ATTITUDE IS NEEDED TODAY.

It is probable that the more moderate elements do not like the strong Bolshevist influence to which the party owes so much of its present success, and that they hope, when the battle is won, to be able to free themselves from it and to modify that extreme hostility to other powers, and particularly to Great Britain, which has been the dominant note in the party's popular agitation. It may be that, with the extension of responsibility, the healthier kind of Chinese national sentiment will prevail in the Kuomintang councils and that Chinese subtlety will be a match for Bolshevist intrigue. But no one can yet say that this will be so, and the penetration of the Kuomintank organization by Moscow methods gives the Bolshevists a strong hold and endless opportunities for mischief. A friendly attitude to the Chinese people and to genuinely constructive Chinese nationalism, coupled with the protection of all legitimate British interests, is the principle which the new British Minister has gone out to pursue, and will certainly pursue with skill and energy. This policy can be applied with the flexibility necessitated by a changing situation. But it is far too early to assume that to hail the Kuomintang as victors would be the short way out of endless troubles in China.
