NOT FAIR TO PRINCE RUPERT

Former Head of Railway Said Railway Nearly as Good as One to Vancouver

HAS WRONG CONCEPTION

D. B. Hanna Writes Book in Which he Says Thing Said to be Incorrect

(Omineca Herald)

D. B. Hanna, one-time president and general manager of the Canadian National Railways, having succeeded to that position when the C.N.R. and G.T.P. were amalgamated, has blossomed out as the inspiration of a book known as "Trains of Recollection." Mr. Hanna was formerly general manager of the Canadian Northern, and probably has been a good railway man, but when it comes to writing a book of the nature of the one which bears his name as author, he should at least refresh his memory and not depend entirely on "recollection."

Information supplied by a man who has filled the important positions that Mr. Hanna has is usually taken, and rightly so, as authoritative by the rest of the world. Thus he should be particularly careful of his facts and more particular in not allowing his personal prejudices to run away with his obligation to be fair.

Discusses Grades

In discussing grades through the Rockies Mr. Hanna says the Canadian Northern has a grade of only twenty-six feet per mile, and adds that the G.T.P. grades are almost equally as good. As a matter of fact, the G.T.P. grade against westbound and also eastbound freight is only four-tenths of one per cent, or twenty-one feet per mile between Red Pass Junction and Prince Rupert. The Canadian Northern eastbound grade is seven-tenths of one per cent.

Mr. Hanna gives the maximum load for a freight train over the Canadian Northern as 3,768 tons. He does not refer to the more favorable haul on the G. T. P., which is 75 loaded cars, or a total of 4,500 tons.

Is Not Fair

It is true that traffic from the east to Prince Rupert means a rail haul of 189 miles further from Red Pass Junction than it would be to Vancouver. But this is more than offset by the greater load that an engine can haul. It is also true that Prince Rupert is 275 miles further from Liverpool than the southern ports, but on traffic going to the Old Country that distance would add practically nothing to the costs. Therefore, when Mr. Hanna tells his story about grades he is not quite fair to the northern route. His unfairness has also been a big disadvantage to developing traffic for the G.T.P. to Prince Rupert. He quoted big figures when referring to miles, but he told nothing of the actual cost of hauling freight. He did not mention that in common practice the railways actually give a lower rate for the long haul than they do for the short haul. He was obviously boosting the Canadian Northern branch of the Canadian National Railways at the expense of the G.T.P. branch. Unfortunately, many shippers and politicians take his story as gospel, and do not suspect the camouflage.

Hard to Educate

The northern route has had much of this unfair treatment from the headquarters staff, especially when most of that staff was recruited from Canadian Northern ranks under Mr. Hanna. It makes it hard now to educate the shippers and the politicians to the fact that they have a really cheaper route to the world's markets via Prince Rupert than they have by going to the south.

FISH SCARCE IN FAR NORTH

Dogs Die Because of Lack of Usual Food in Barren Lands District

HORSES TO BE KILLED

Rivers Give Every Sign of an Early Breakup Lady Traveller Says

EDMONTON, March 6 — Indians on the barren lands are suffering intense hardship because of the shortage of fish in the northern waters. The consequence of its shortage is to leave their dogs in a wasted condition thus prohibiting the hunting of caribou, which have been plentiful during the winter.

Dorothy Lorenzen, the first woman to come out of the far north this year and the first traveller to reach the city from Fort Smith since the present excitement over the mineral prospects there, arrived in Edmonton on Friday, completing her journey by way of McMurray. She states that the scarcity of fish seems to be general in the north, and adds that the dogs of the white men as well as of the Indians, are the main victims. Several of the animals have died from their weakened state due to lack of food.

May Slaughter Horses

One means of saving many dogs from starvation will probably be taken, Miss Lorenzen goes on to say, by the slaughtering of some of the horses now being utilized to rush northwards the supplies of the Dunn party which, once this purpose is served, will be useless for anything else and would themselves be apt to feel the pinch of hunger. Old-timers in the north are unable to advance any cause for the phenomenal thinness of the fish catch this winter.

The health of the Indians around Fort Smith, Miss Lorenzen asserts, has not been marred by any epidemic such as that which took place at Fort Good Hope. Two Indian women, however, died on the barrens whether from sickness or privation she did not know.

White Fox Plentiful

The fur catch on the barren lands has been better, from current indications than that elsewhere. Marten and white fox have been trapped successfully in large numbers but the fur is not as heavy in quality as in previous years.

Rivers in the north are giving every sign of an early break up. On Miss Lorenzen's trip out travel had to be close to the banks of the river all the way, as the ice had fallen low in the centre and, at places, the water had overflowed into the snow that lay on top. There are many camps along the road from Fort Smith to McMurray so that the party was never forced to spend a night outside
