PROSPECTORS IN ALASKA FIND ANIMALS TRAVEL ON LITTLE FOOD
ANCHORAGE, Dec. 23.—Tobacco chewing reindeer, possessing the stubbornness of a mule and the fighting qualities of Gene Tunney, bid fair to challenge the supremacy of the malamutes in the field of Alaskan transportation.
This is the belief of W. G. Culver, formerly of the United States bureau of education, who says Eskimo herders of Broad Pass are finding a ready sale to prospectors of sled-broke reindeer for draught purposes.
The use of dogs entails hauling dog feed to the base of operation and feeding the animals during the summer months when they have no work to perform. It has been found more economical to utilize a pair of reindeer for hauling supplies over the spring snow crust and then butcher the animals for meat at the end of the journey.
Where it once required fifty pounds of tallow, 100 pounds of cornmeal and 100 pounds of rice with addition of dried salmon to feed a dog during the summer, 100 pounds of cornmeal and a small quantity of reindeer moss suffices to cover a journey of a hundred miles with a reindeer team, and the prospector's grub bill is reduced to the extent of about 100 pounds of reindeer meat.

FLYING IN DOMINION HAS GREAT FUTURE
Says Sir Alan Cobham, Famous British Aviator
TORONTO, Dec. 23.—"There is greater opportunity for the development of aviation throughout the Dominion than there ever will be in the home country, for the simple reason that whereas in England we are handicapped with short distances, very bad visibility and a lack of the necessity of flying, in the Dominion we have vast distances to be covered, as a rule, good flying weather and an opportunity of proving that flying is the quickest means of transport."
