MAPLE LEAFS

THIS AND VICTORY OF SONS OF CANADA OVER TERMINALS WERE FEATURES OF LAST NIGHT'S GAME

Sons of Canada, 30; Grand Terminals

Grand Terminals, 19; Grotto, 26. Maple Leafs, 8; Adanacs, 13.

Tuxis 10, Stars, 14, The Maple Leafs Ladies' League basketball team suffered its first defeat of the season at the hnds of the Adanacs last night. The game was featured by heavy checking on the part of the Adanacs who prevented their opponents getting away in their usual manner. In the first half the Adanacs were superior in combination and this together with their heavy checking, gave them a good lead over their opponents. The last half was featured by fast passing and heavy checking and play was very even. Possibly the Maple Leafs had more shots on goal in this period but they were not playing in their usual form and the shots went wide of the mark.

The Sons of Canada uncorked surprise for the Grand Terminals in the closing moments of the Senior league fixture when Shenton and Wrathall started on a shooting spree which brought their team up from behind to win by three points in the last few seconds of the game. The end of this game created more enthusiasm than had been evident during the whole evening.

Gradual, though interrupted, decline of the power of the batter in the American League is given striking evidence in the 1926 record. The slump the past season was marked from that of the previous season of 1925, when the batters showed signs of reasserting themselves, after being halted in 1924, and its * real impressiveness appeals when averages of 1926 are compared with those of 1921, when batting had reached its high peak and sluggers were supreme. A few figures will serve to show the slump of the batters. In 1921 the Detroit team led the American League in batting with a team average of .316. Cleveland was second with .308. St. Louis was third with 304. New York had an even 300 pecentage. The lowest batting team that season (Philadelphia) batted .274. In 1926 Washington was the batting leader of the league with .292, Detroit second with .291. Boston brought up the rear with a mark, of .256. A year ago, in 1925, Boston was last with an average an even ten pointe above that of 1926.

Individual batting honors in the American League for the 1926 season were not decided until the final drive, when Henry Manush of the Detroit Tigers gradually forged to the front, In mid-season the Detroit outfielder stood well down the last among bat-As late as the first week in July he stood fifteenth in the list of regular batters in percentage. In harmony with lower batting averages in the American League in the 1926 season, lower percentage of earned runs off pitchers was shown.
