LLOYD GEORGE LAND SPEECH

Best Soil and Good Workmen He Says But System Prevents Development

LONDON, May 21. — Lloyd George addressed a crowded meeting in the Guildhouse, Eccleston Square, Westminster, on the subject of his land policy. Miss Maude Royden presided.

"The question of the land, he said, entered into all our social and economic problems. It concerned such questions as housing, the health of the people, employment, the security of our shores, it entered into the question of food, and even of trade and our financial balances. All these questions were involved in the problem of the land. Westminster, the richest city in the world, contained men so rich they they would regard the Count of Monte Cristo as a sort of second-class millionaire who was trying to show off with an inadequate bank balance. (Laughter). Yet of the population of Westminster over 10 per cent were living in conditions which were officially recognized as overcrowded. The infantile mortality under those conditions was very high. This was not the fault of the council. They had either not got the land or the price was so prohibitive that it was quite impossible to build at a cost which would make it possible for any working family to pay a rent for a decent tenement. Westminster was not alone. In Birmingham, one of the greatest cities in the Empire, people lived in houses classified as unhealthy.

Another Side
We had the largest market in the world for food, and yet we only produced half of what we could produce if we used the soil of this country. If the unemployed were engaged on the land there would be a ready market for their produce, the speaker said.

"We have capital with which to develop it," he added. "We have about the best soil in Europe, and as good workmen as in any land under the sun. All you want is a system which will enable you to develop the resources that Providence has placed at your disposal here. This is why I have always been interested in the land question, and why I am doing my best to call my countrymen's attention to it. And people are getting angry about it. They are getting fretful, some thoroughly disagreeable, and some very abusive.

What was wanted in dealing with the land was a little vision and foresight. Our present system was antiquated, and was not adapted to modern times. It was impossible to run a factory on the principles of the feudal system. Things were bad enough in the mines, but the worst thing was the remnant of the feudal system, which had been condemned by two or three commissions. Agriculture must be put upon a business footing.

EDUCATIONAL AND HISTORICAL TOUR

The Canadian National Railways will operate a forty-three day Personally Conducted Educational Tour to Europe this Summer, sailing via the S.S. "Athenia" from Montreal, July 9, direct to Glasgow. Proceeding from there, the party will visit different points of interest in Scotland, England, Holland, Belgium, Switzerland and France, also an opportunity to visit the Battlefields. Returning to England, will sail from Liverpool on S.S. "Aurania" August 13, for Montreal. Considering the number of points visited, the accommodation provided, and entertainment offered, this is one of the lowest priced Tours ever operated to Europe.

Applications for pre-emption are to be addressed to the Land Commissioner of the Land Recording Division, in which the land applied for is situated, and are made on printed forms, copies of which can be obtained from the Land Commissioner. Pre-emption must be occupied for five years and improvements made to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivating at least five acres, before a Crown Grant can be received.
