

WENT THROUGH PRINCE RUPERT ON WAY HOME

HARVARD LAW STUDENTS MADE WONDERFUL TOUR TO ARCTIC OCEAN BY CANOE

RETURNED BY YUKON

Arrived Late for Classes but Bearing Stirring Tale of Adventure

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 16.—Four young argonauts have returned late for the opening of their classes at the Harvard law and business schools with a stirring tale of adventures in the far northwest to explain their tardy arrival.

After the close of their classes last June they paid $100 for a much used automobile in which they drove to Regina, Sask. Leaving their automobile there in the custody of the chief of police, they proceeded to Edmonton, where they purchased two canoes, shipped them to waterways, paddled down the Clearwater to Athabasca River, through Lake Athabasca, down the Slave River, through the Great Slave Lake and on down the MacKenzie to the tidewater of the Arctic Ocean—3,000 miles from Harvard.

CROSSED DIVIDE

Returning, they selected a section of the Continental Divide which seemed to offer a good crossing and portaged, paddled and waded by way of the Rat, Little Bell, Porcupine and Yukon rivers to Fort Yukon. There they found a government radio station and one of them sent through the air a long-suppressed query to his family: "Safe. Said I pass my exams?" They then stevedored and freight-handled their way through Fairbanks and Seward to Prince Rupert and thence to Regina, where they found that the chief of police had given them up for lost and had transferred the wheels of their automobile to his own. Stalled by snow on the Saskatchewan prairies, they were obliged to complete their return journey by train.

The four adventurers were Alfred E. Detwiler of Philadelphia, Sherwood K. Platt of Chicago, Alexander Lettie of Pittsburgh and Pierce Onthank of Boston, all graduates of Williams College. Each spent about $250 beyond the cost of their automobile, and they're all satisfied that the trip gave them more thrills than it would be possible to obtain anywhere else for the same amount of money.

PLANS FROM GEOGRAPHY

They made all their plans from a map of North America in a high school geography. Although they had to live for weeks on game, only one of them had had experience with firearms and that as a member of the Williams rifle club. Yet, except for snow in August and mosquitoes all the time, they had no complaint to make. They found the Indians and Eskimos much more cordial than natives of the typical New England vacation resorts and quite as prosperous, because of the high price of furs, bringing a good trapper $5000 easily in a season. A missionary who had been offered $10,000 by an Eskimo trapper for his radio set, told them of listening in on hockey games broadcast from Boston Arena.

CHARLES FOLSOM IN INTERVIEW AT SEATTLE

An interview appears in this month's Pacific Fisherman with Charles Folsom, formerly of Prince Rupert in regard to a proposed halibut pool from which the following is an extract:

"Mr. Folsom states that the Prince Rupert association has already had considerable success in getting its operations under way; that a number of business men of that place are actively participating and have offered financial backing, and that the provincial government has put up a new wharf and building for the association between the Booth and Pacific fish houses on the Prince Rupert waterfront. Local Druggists Have Modern Remedy for Colds

A Vaporizing Salve which is Rubbed Over Throat and Chest for Colds.

When Vicks VapoRub, the "external" method of treating sore throat, bronchitis, deep chest colds, or croup, is applied over throat or chest, the ingredients are released as vapors by the body heat.

These vapors, inhaled with each breath carry the medication directly to the affected air passages, loosening the phlegm and relieving the congestion. At the same time Vicks acts as a counter-irritant, stimulating the skin, and thus helps the vapors inhaled to break up the inflammation.

Colds are usually relieved over night.
