DIED SUDDENLY WHILE AT WORK

Thomas Jones, Well Known as Football Referee, Expired This Morning

With tragic suddenness, Thomas Jones, well known in the city as a football referee, fell dead at 9.45 o'clock this morning in the blacksmith shop of the drydock where he was engaged at his work as a foreman plater. Deceased, who was working alongside his brother, Robert Jones, complained of pain and said that some one would have to be obtained to relieve him at his work as he felt unable to carry on. Thereupon he collapsed and fifteen minutes later he expired in his brother's arms. A physician was called and pronounced life extinct. This morning was the first time he had complained.

The late Mr. Jones, who was 39 years of age and a native of Dumbarton, Scotland, came to Canada from the Old Country about two years ago and, after a short stay in Vancouver, arrived here in March, 1924, and joined the drydock staff, where he was a valued workman. Throughout his residence in the city, he took an active part in athletics and was a popular soccer referee.

Besides the stricken widow and two little daughters, May, aged 11, and Lillian, aged 9, who reside on Second Avenue in the Drexel Rooms and are today prostrated with grief at the sudden loss of husband and father, deceased is survived by an aged father, William Jones, who still resides in Dumbarton, Scotland; three brothers, Robert Jones, 612 Young Street, Prince Rupert; Alex Jones, Detroit; and Leslie Jones, Vancouver; and three sisters, Mrs. Thomas Givens, Mrs. Kenneth McKenzie, and Mrs. George Sinclair, all of Vancouver. Another brother, William Jones, who was a chief engineer with the British India Steamship & Navigation Co., died from fever last year in Calcutta.

The late Mr. Jones was a member of the Masonic Order. Funeral arrangements, which are in the hands of the B.C. Undertakers, will be announced on receipt of advice from relatives in Vancouver.
