Declares No Excuse For Reading Erotic, Morbid and Perverted Sex Stories

Letter Gives Point of View of Many Who Object to That Class of Literature

The Letter

Sir- Whenever a book dealer starts to write about literature and what people read and do not read, there is a lurking suspicion I that he is actuated by a selfish motive, or at least has some business promotion at the back of his head. Well, I was a lover or books and good literature, long before I was a merchant, and have always been more of a student than a merchant.

One of the first bumps I got as a merchant was to learn that I was there to sell the public what they thought they wanted and not what I thought they ought to have, and that is what every merchant soon learns if he stays in business. So the retail merchant is not to blame for the flood of sex magazines that are being bought and read in Canada, today. He, as a dealer, just the same as other dealers, is selling! SAID WALTZ REPUGNANT same as other dealers, is selling the people what they ask for and think they want.

Pickled in Sex There is a growing sentimen to ban these magazines from Canada, and they no doubt should be banned and no thoughtful citizen who has the social welfare of Canada at heart will say other wise. But this is only a palliative. The real trouble lies much deeper than anything that could be remedied by banning a few magazines. The real question is, why do people want to read that kind of bunk? These abnormal lurid stories of people who are pickled in sex and think and talk of nothing else, and who who while human salamanders go through fires of temptation and get little scorched, but never get burned, I suppose they read them for the same reason they go to see the lurid and silly movie serials; to get a little vicarious romance and excitement that they do not get in the monotonous grind of everyday life. There may be some excuse for seeing the silly movie serials, when TAKE NOTICE that, sixty days after there is nothing better to go to, of Lands for a licence for recreation, but there is no follows: | such excuse for the reading of layed. at the erotic, morbid and perverted sex and marked T.J.B.'s southwest stories when the best literature 80 chains, thence south 80 chains, in the world is here in abundthence west so chains, to point of com- ance and free for the asking at the public library, or for sale so cheap as to lie in the reach. tall, in books and in good magazines.
