interesting Breach of Promise Case Followed by Dispute Over Magis Circle

MONTREAL, April 26. - The Gazette says editorially: A question of universal imortance and significance to all who embark on the currents of matrimonial stipulations has been decided by a considered; judgment of Mr. Justice McCardie in the King's Bench Division of the High Court of Justice in London. The issue arose out of an action for breach of promise of marriage. A jury had awarded the young woman plaintiff damages, but there remained for the judge to decide the merits of a counter-action in which the young man sought to recover possession of the engagement

In this instance, as it was the young man who refused to carry out the engagement, the ring was awarded to the woman, whose case, it is interesting to observe, was successfully pleaded by a woman barrister. The learned judgment brought several interesting points to light. Before the
