Trap Licenses To Be Discussed.

Tonight there is to be a meeting in the city hall when those opposed the issuing of trap licenses will have an opportunity to voice their views. This is the time for those for or against to set themselves on record. It is useless to howl after the action has been taken.

There are arguments for and against these particular traps. The sympathy of any business person must go out to the company which put a lot of money into the traps on the assumption that they would secure the licenses only to be turned down when they had completed their end of the undertaking.

Opposes Taking Of Cases To Britain.

A King's Counsel of the Manitoba Bar gave an address recently in which he urged the desirability of Canada settling her own legal cases instead of taking them to the Privy Council in England. It is the view held by a great many Canadians.

The appeal to the Privy Council has in the past sometimes been used by corporations and rich people as a means of squeezing out poorer litigants who could not afford the cost of carrying their cases that far. Now by arrangement only very important cases are sent to the privy council so that the abuse of the privilege has been done away with.

It is very probable that the supreme court of Canada will soon be made the final court of adjudication.

First Tourists Here Yesterday.

The first large group of tourists arrived here yesterday and they spent some time in the city before continuing on to Alaska. They will also call on their southbound trip. A number of local merchants make an effort to cater to these people and the number who do so is increasing. Every dollar they leave here is a dollar found money.

In many cities the tourist business has assumed huge proportions and Prince Rupert should endeavor to get a share.

Small Policy Is Advocated.

The writer of a letter published in the Vancouver Province and reprinted in this paper today takes a very narrow attitude on provincial questions. He blames the newspaper for not taking the part of his own city against all others, especially on the grain elevator question, claiming that as the paper derived nearly per cent of its revenue from Vancouver it should urge the cause of that city and not do the boosting for the whole province.

There are a few people in Prince Rupert who think that a newspaper published here should be just as local as the writer of that letter would have the Province. They forget that the city is dependent on the surrounding towns and villages for its success. They also forget that if a newspaper is to be anything more than a little local sheet it must cater to the districts around. Prince Rupert people should be as interested in the success of Stewart, Anwoy, Alice Arm, Smithers, Telkwa and Burns Lake as they are in their own city.

The Vancouver Province sets out to be a newspaper for the whole Province of British Columbia and beyond. It is one of the national newspapers and as such cannot afford to be narrow or parochial in its attitude on public questions. It is the policy that will eventually make for the permanent upholding of Vancouver brought about through the development of the whole province.

Little Critics Do Not See Far.

There are always a lot of little critics in any town who see very little beyond the end of their noses. They lack vision. They have no imagination and would like to see everyone else equally restricted. Happily there are not many of them although now and then they are able to influence the rest of the community to some extent.

WHEAT POOL IS PLEASED

Morning Star Thinks Vancouver is to be Handled Over to Them

The Morning Star of Vancouver in an editorial article under the caption "Has the Pool Won?" has this to say:

According to an Ottawa despatch the conferences in progress over the proposal that the Wheat Pool lease Number One Elevator here have ended in a "settlement agreeable to both sides." If the terms of the settlement are those contained in the telegram, there need be no doubt that they are satisfactory to the Wheat Pool. "The elevator," it is stated, "will continue to be operated this summer by the Harbor Commissioners, but it is agreed that by the end of October the Commission will notify the pool whether or not the elevator will then be leased to it. If it is to be retained under the Harbor Commission, the pool will then be free to go ahead and provide such facilities of its own as are required."

Camouflage

This is simply so much camouflage. Beneath the smooth phraseology which implies that the disposition of the elevator is still an open question may be discerned the intention to hand it over to the Wheat Pool next fall. The Commissioners will continue to operate during the summer—when the elevator is doing little or no business—but before the end of October the pool is either to step in or "be free to go ahead and provide such facilities of its own as are required." The pool, however, as everybody knows, is perfectly free to go ahead at once and provide its own facilities in Vancouver. Moreover, it cannot wait until October before it makes its arrangements for handling the new crop through this port. It follows that it would not delay beginning building operations a single day were it not very sure that the government would provide it with facilities by surrendering Number One Elevator through the Harbor Board.

Protest Futile

There can be no reasonable doubt, if the despatch is authoritative, that when Colonel Kirkpatrick returns to Vancouver he will have a very clear idea of the decision the Harbor Board is to render four months hence—when protest will be futile in the face of the accomplished fact.

THERE are always a lot of people in town who want to run things. They might begin with the lawn mower.

MEN are always simple-minded; As boys they probably believed in Santa Claus and ghosts and possibly fairies and as they get older they get fat in hair restorer, colored water for medicine, or they think when they lend a five dollar bill they will get it back.

OBJECTION TO PRINCE RUPERT

Correspondent of Vancouver Province Objects to Stand of That Paper Favoring This Port

A man who signs himself James H. Stevenson of Haro Street, Vancouver, writes to the Vancouver Province objecting strongly to an editorial article published by them recently in which the leasing of the Prince Rupert elevator to the wheat pool was defended. The letter says:

The Letter

Not long ago The Province editorially rebuked Mayor Taylor for protesting against the leasing of the Prince Rupert elevator by the Alberta Wheat Pool at a nominal rental of $100 per annum—this, in the opinion of the Mayor, and for that matter every loyal citizen who is interested in the progress of our city, being rank discrimination against Vancouver.

In the opinion of those who understand the grain shipping question, this will mean that practically the whole of the Northern Alberta crop will be shipped from Prince Rupert. That is bad enough, seeing that Vancouver would have got a fair share—fully 65 per cent—of this grain if the Rupert elevator had been on the same footing as regards fixed charges, etc., as the government-owned elevators are, but the announcement in a recent paper that the particular wheat pool which wishes to lease No. 2 elevator here will, if turned down, probably build at New Westminster rather than at Vancouver, is anything but a pleasant reading for Vancouver citizens. For this means that the bulk of the Southern Alberta pool grain will be shipped from the first-named port. What, then, will be left for Vancouver heaven only knows!

Boost for Province

As, in the past, The Province has always pulled for New Westminster, Prince Rupert and even Victoria—all keen competitors—as much as Vancouver, from which it derives 90 per cent of its revenue. There will, doubtless, in the near future go up in the form of an editorial a shout of joy that New Westminster is to have another elevator. In this connection it may not inappropriately be asked: Is Vancouver to do the boosting for the whole province? Not by any chance do either the press or the people of Victoria, Prince Rupert or New Westminster reciprocate and do any boosting for Vancouver. On the contrary, they knock us for all they are worth, and yet we have our leading and most influential newspaper all the time, in season and out of season, boosting for our competitors. Surely there could be nothing more unpatriotic and nonsensical than this.

I am an old-time resident and taxpayer in Vancouver and have been hoping that with the advent of better times, to which the development of Vancouver as a grain shipping port has contributed, real estate values, which as we all know have seriously depreciated of late years, would return to something like the figure at which they previously stood. But when I see the lack of public spirit on the part of our leading citizens, the inertia of our Board of Trade, and the disloyalty of our press, I simply despair and feel like pulling up stakes and getting out, concluding that Vancouver will never be a big city the same as, say, Seattle, Portland or San Francisco.

If nobody left school early there would be nobody to hire the college graduates.
