SEES HUMOR IN LOCAL NEWSPAPER SITUATION

Michigan Visitor Does Not Understand How Two Papers Can Exist in City This Size.

The ridiculous situation of having two daily newspapers in a town of seven thousand population was what struck H. M. Myers, of Laperre, Michigan, a newspaperman, when in the city yesterday. He was passing through on his way to Alaska where he will investigate the agricultural possibilities of the interior. He says that down East a city of 100,000 often has only one paper and a town of forty or fifty thousand never has more than one. The tendency of recent years has been to amalgamate and make one good paper where formerly were two or three indifferent publications. This is better for the papers and better for the people.

BECAME SNOW BLIND WHEN OUT IN WOODS

EDMONTON, July 9.—Presence of mind, grim determination and woodcraft of the finest kind on one occasion last winter combined to save the life of John Graham, a trapper of the Fort Rae district, who is now in the city on the occasion of his first visit to the "outside" in three years.

The incident occurred when Mr. Graham, who is one of the very few white trappers in that district and who always works as a lone wolf, was making a trip over his trapline. Many miles from his cabin, Mr. Graham suddenly was aware of a severe pain in his eyes, objects began to swim before them and become indistinct, and the sight was lost completely. For the first time in his life Graham realized that he was "snowblind."

Meant Certain Death The problem of returning to his cabin immediately assumed very serious proportions. Traveling light as he was without food or blankets, the prospect of being lost in the woods for a period of days or even weeks, unless discovered by some passing Indian, which was unlikely, meant practically certain death.

Setting his mind to work in an attempt to devise some scheme of returning to his cabin without being forced to depend upon his sight for direction, Graham discovered that although his sight was gone completely, the retina of his eye would still register a slight difference between sunlight and shade.

Slept in the Snow Knowing the location and general direction of the cabin, Graham set out for it, using the impression of the sun on his eyes as a compass. Travel was very slow under these conditions, and he was forced to sleep in the snow for one night without blankets. But on the second day, late in the afternoon he came within a short distance of his cabin. Here he was sighted by one of his dogs, whose yelping gave him his location.

Reaching the cabin without mishap, Graham remained there for the next two weeks, hardly venturing from the door. At the end of that time his sight returned.

ANNUAL PICNIC OF ANGLICAN SUNDAY SCHOOL YESTERDAY

The annual picnic of St. Andrew's Anglican Church Sunday School was held yesterday afternoon at Digby Island and, while the weather was not very propitious, the hundred or so kiddies and their parents who attended had a very enjoyable outing. There were races and games under the direction of E. W. Tucker, superintendent of the Sunday School, and the teachers and refreshments were served in abundance.

Leaving the Prince Rupert Rowing & Yacht Club floats between 1 and 2 in the afternoon and returning early in the evening, the picnickers were transported to Digby Island and back by the gasoline boats of G. A. Bryant, Dr. J. P. Cafe, J. T. Cook, George Hill, A. T. Parkin and W. E. Fisher.

POLICE PROCLAIM RICH 'FRISCO GIRL ACUTELY ALCOHOLIC

SAN FRANCISCO, July 9.—Mrs. Edith Spreckles Wakefield Kendrick was arrested Sunday clad principally in an artist's smock when she attempted to liberate a team of horses tied to a telephone post. She asked the policeman who took her to the city jail; "Isn't this Independence day. The United States got liberty. Why not horses?" Police pronounced her condition to be "acutely alcoholic."

When Mrs. Kendrick appeared in court she said a hot bath after two drinks of gin caused her to dance a solo on the street Sunday when she was arrested. She was advised by the judge against taking baths under such circumstances.

PLACE GASOLINE IN DENATURED ALCOHOL IS ORDER OF BUREAU

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 9.—The internal revenue bureau has ordered that half a gallon of gasoline be used in every hundred gallons of denatured alcohol. It is said that bootleggers have succeeded in distilling kerosene, wood alcohol and other poisons heretofore used in the denatured product, but gasoline will be harder to extract, bureau experts declare.
