Terrace Fair Shows Excellent Produce of Farms and Gardens and Proves Adaptability of Soil

TERRACE, September 25 .- At the sixth annual Fair of the Terrace and District Fall Fair Association, held on Thursday, September 23, in G.W.V.A. Hall this district upheld its reputation of former years in proving its suitability and adaptibility to the growing of grains, grasses, field roots and vegetables as well as the more hardy fruits of all kinds.

Weather conditions were splendid, the day being wonderfully bright and sunny, though somewhat cold for this time of year.

Owing to the very early and unusually hard frosts of the past week the display of this year did not nearly equal in size that of the preceding year, the more tender vegetables having all been* cut down as well as practically all the lowers in the district. The latter were very much missed as in former years the profusion of flowers adding immensely to the attractiveness of the fair building. There was nevertheless a creditable showing of roses, asters, sweet peas, stocks and pansies as well as a number of attractive looking otted plants.

APPLES GOOD

Fruit undoubtedly reigned supreme throughout the day, exclamations being heard on all sides as to the splendid display and the wonderful coloring of the fruits, especially apples. The idea ing the fair at a later date than usual was that a week or two at this time of year would make a great difference to the coloring and maturity of the fruits and vegetables, which it undoubtedly did. It proved fatal, however, as far as flowers, tender fruits and vegetables were concerned and no
